Suburbanites To March On O'Hare Airport?

by BOB LAHEY

A mass of "nice people" from the suburbs may march on O'Hare Airport to disrupt international air traffic unless they receive some relief to nerves jangled by roaring jet aircraft, their spokesman told a federal panel yesterday.

The gentle threat came during the course of the second day of hearings by the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) at the Sheraton-Chicago Hotel.

Nearly 100 witnesses paraded before a six-man panel which spent two days collecting evidence for recommendations to Congress on legislation for control of "noise pollution."

Much of the testimony in the Chicago hearings, one of six conducted simultaneously at various locations in the country, centered on noise at O'Hare and other major airports in the Midwest.

One of the most dramatic presentations was given yesterday by George Franks, chairman of the O'Hare Area Noise Abatement Council.

IT WAS HE who indicated to the panel that direct action is being considered by suburbanites who he said have received only lip service from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and other governmental agencies during a 10-year campaign to curtail noise around O'Hare.

After outlying campaigns ranging from letters to the President to appeals to local officials, Franks said in answer to a member of the panel, "We may hold our next meeting out on the runway."

Franks and other members of the Noise Abatement Council later confirmed that a sit-in at O'Hare will definitely be considered by early next summer unless they receive relief from noise over the summer months.

A suburban village official, Ted Deka of Wood Dale, dramatized the noise problem for the hearing officials when he presented letters from school officials testifying that teaching is suspended in Wood Dale schools for 20 seconds each time an airplane takes off or lands at O'Hare.

ONE LETTER, from J. R. Coad, superintendent of Bensenville Elementary School Dist. 2 and Fenton High School Dist. 100, estimated that those disruptions totaled the loss of 20.3 pupil-teaching hours per day.

Coad's letter also informed the panel that one elementary school for the handicapped located near O'Hare before recent construction of new runways there will be sold by the district because teaching had become impossible.

Also testifying was Ron W. Edwards, a member of the Elk Grove Aviation Committee and the Noise Abatement Council. Edwards told the panel that Elk Grove had adopted a master plan in 1967 in an attempt to allow orderly development while accommodating anticipated increases in noise irritation from the airfield.

He said the village spent $30,000 on the plan, basing its forecasts on information from governmental agencies and O'Hare officials. But he said later changes in runway construction, made without informing local officials, destroyed the effectiveness of the plan.

FRANKS' presentation brought an ovation from an audience which had been lulled for two days with technical and scientific data concerning the problems of noise produced by jet aircraft. He said that in desperation the Noise Abatement Council had abandoned appeals to government and produced copies of a letter he recently mailed to twelve major airlines appealing to their "humanity."

"We have followed the due process," Franks said, "and we will run due process right into the ground. But then we may go out to the runways."

Franks appealed to the EPA to ask Congress to take control of airports away from the FAA and give it to an agency which would have the power to force airlines to give considerations to people on the ground.

After Franks' testimony, a panel member, Prof. Sheldon J. Plager of the University of Illinois School of Law, asked Franks, "If we fail in what you are asking us to do, what then?"

Franks replied, "Don't fail. Don't put that burden on us. We are nice people; we want to stay that way."

CAMPING JUST ISN'T what it used to be. As more and more people jump on the camping bandwagon, the canvas tent and the isolated wooded area are being replaced by mobile homes and over crowded campsites.

Camping Today Means Comfort-Plus

by LINDA LUNCH

A couple of sleeping bags, a canvas tent and a secluded wooded area. That's what camping used to mean.

Today a camper can sit for hours in a rented camper truck waiting for an opening in an overcrowded campsite.

The crowded campgrounds, rented trailers and elaborate equipment are all part of the modern camping picture, said Jack Walsh, of Elk Grove Village Sports Inc. in the Grove Mall.

More people than ever are taking an interest in camping. Our reservation board for camping equipment is nearly complete for the month of August," he said. "All 12 of our tents are booked each weekend and we could probably rent out another third."

People's needs in camping range from a simple tent-lamp-stove setup to a camper truck with all the conveniences of home.

"Two years ago we carried twice as many tent campers as we do now. I don't know whether it's because of the economy or what but most people prefer to rent tents now," Walsh said.

ELK GROVE Sports Inc., like many other stores, will rent everything in camping equipment from a canvas tent with sleeping bag to tent campers with built-in sinks and stoves, complete with running water.

"People usually start with simple equipment and evolve to more elaborate set-ups," Walsh said. "They rent a tent the first time and then a tent camper. Eventually if they stick with camping they'll go on to purchase the equipment."

Younger people are usually happy with a traditional tent setup, he said, but sub-urbanites, with children usually want to go first class.

"Some suburbanites with three or four kids will rent a mobile home trailer because they just don't want to do without the comforts of home," Walsh said.

Backpacking equipment is available to those who want "to get away from it all," according to Walsh.

"Backpacking is for someone who wants to go in the wilderness and sleep on the ground, who wants to get away from everything," he said.

CAMPING IS attractive not only to people interested in getting back to nature but for people wanting an economical way to travel, Walsh said.

Counseling Center Saved!

That was the happy report issued Tuesday by officials of The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center, which faced an Aug. 2 deadline to meet the most serious financial crisis in its history.

The Northwest suburban family service agency had to raise one-half of its current $15,000 deficit by Monday or face the necessity of cutting back service to area families.

If a minimum of $7,500 could be raised by the budget deadline a private foundation has agreed to make a "matching grant."

To help the Center reach its goal, the Herald June 21 launched an emergency fund appeal to its readers.

By yesterday, the fund total was $9,162 — $1,862 over the minimum needed.

"With several more days to go, we are hopeful additional last-minute contributions will bring the fund total to at least $9,500," said Charles E. Hayes, Herald editor in chief. "The response of our readers as well as township officials, churches, and civic organizations has been most gratifying. We hope others will take advantage of this final opportunity to help preserve the only family agency available to our suburbs which is equipped to solve family problems."

Donations may still be sent to the Herald "Center Fund," P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

A final list of donors will be published in Tuesday's Herald.

Among the flood of last-minute donations to the fund were gifts of $300 from the Kiwanis Club of Des Plaines and $100 from Honeywell, Inc., Arlington Heights.

Several individual donations ranging from $25 to $50 also were received yesterday as well as numerous $5 and $10 gifts.

and 50 million people camp more than once in state and federal parks, Walsh said, an amount the campsites were never planned to handle.

"MOST FEDERAL parks are very scenic but don't have the luxuries like flush toilets. State parks usually go full style with flush toilets and everything that goes with them," he said.

Private campgrounds, although more expensive, usually fill the needs not met by state and federal camping sites. Brochures from camps with names like Yukon Trails, Birchwood Resort and Out Post exclaim the virtues of free hot showers, mini-bike trails, fishing ponds, archery ranges and movies, extras not found in most public parks.

"Most people think it's fine to go out to communicate with nature," Walsh said. "But they also like to see hot water, flush toilets and be able to go to a store once in awhile."

ANOTHER ADVANTAGE of private parks, according to Walsh, is that campsites can be reserved ahead of time.

"It's frustrating to drive four or five hundred miles to your favorite campsite to find it filled up for the night. By reserving a place at a private campsite you guarantee yourself a place to stay," he said.

How to choose a campground and what equipment to use are problems for novice campers. There are not enough courses on family camping, Walsh said to provide answers for the growing numbers of campers.

"There are camping books in the library but they deal mostly with woodcraft," he said. "I think the park districts are missing the boat when they don't offer a course in family camping."

Construction Shows Slight '71 Increase

Construction increased slightly in the first six months of 1971 in Elk Grove Village, according to Thomas Rettenbacher, supervisor of building and zoning.

Indications are that it will continue to increase, according to Rettenbacher, after a 7.3 per cent decrease in construction last year.

"It's a good year," he said, though noting the village is not experiencing the "terrific growth of other years." He foresaw continued steady growth in 1972.

The value placed on new construction in the first half of the year was $12,668,337, up slightly from the same period last year when it was $11,619,863. Fees collected by the village have risen from $67,000 to $83,000.

The value of construction of 31 buildings in the industrial park accounted for almost $5.5 million. Almost $3 million was accounted for in 190 residential units. The remainder of the new construction was in commercial and other areas including alterations.

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT in the village is about 45 per cent complete, according to Rettenbacher. However, he said there is more land earmarked for industry north of the village limits to the tollway and south in DuPage County.

Thirteen permits were issued in June for industrial buildings.

Two permits were issued in June for commercial developments: a bank at Tonne Road and Devon Avenue and a movie theater in the Grove Shopping Center.

Seventy-two permits were issued for residential units in June, to Centex Corp. for the construction of 18 structures known as quadplexes (four units in one structure) north of Biesterfeld Road along the east side of Wellington Avenue.

Rettenbacher said he expects permits to be issued this year for several other large developments in the community. Among them is the expansion of Alexian Brothers Medical Center. Additions will extend outward from the front of the main building at Biesterfeld and Eisner roads.

Centex Corp. is planning to begin construction in the area south of Nerge Road where 344 homes are planned for 89 acres west of Ill. Rte. 53. The area is zoned for single-family homes, 7,500 square feet each.

Centex is currently in the latter stages of construction of 317 homes north of Nerge and west of Rte. 53.

SHELL DEVELOPMENT Corp., Chicago, is expected to obtain permits later this year for the first phase of 594 multiple family units including apartments and townhouses known as the Perry Grove development east of Fleetwood Lane and north of Landmeier Road.

Rettenbacher did not know if permits would be issued for the proposed Boardwalk apartment complex to be built near the medical center at 752-756 S. Arlington Heights Road. The development includes 144 units but has been delayed for a couple of years.

All permits have been issued for the completion of 448 additional apartment units at the Terrace apartment complex at Elk Grove and John F. Kennedy boulevards. The total number of units

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The Apollo 15 astronauts are in lunar orbit after firing their main spacecraft engine partly by hand. They are preparing to begin a rich, six-day harvest of secrets held by the moon for billions of years. Today they will begin their long-awaited descent to a small valley ringed on three sides by rugged mountains and flanked by a mile-wide chasm.

House and Senate leaders have reached a behind-the-scenes compromise that could provide Lockheed Aircraft Corp. with a government guaranteed loan in time to stave off bankruptcy. Under the agreement, the Nixon administration would abandon its demand for a broad $2 billion loan guarantee fund to help other big U.S. firms in financial trouble. Opponents of the loan would drop their filibuster against help for Lockheed.

Rail talks have resumed in Washington but little hope is seen of averting a rail strike set today against six more lines.

Ford Motor Co. announced it will hike new car prices by at least 4.9 per cent and Chrysler said its price increases would be "in the same ballpark." General Motors refused to say if GM cars would cost more.

The State

Chicago newspapers contend former Gov. Otto Kerner bought $25,000 worth of race track stock while he was governor in 1966 and sold it 10 months later for $150,000. Federal sources say Kerner reported the profit as a capital gain. Only 50 per cent of a capital gain is taxable and the tax comes to only 25 per cent. Illinois Racing Board records of the alleged transaction are missing, perhaps destroyed, according to the board's secretary.

The World

Chile's pro-Marxist government looked toward the U.S.-owned telephone company and First National City Bank of New York as its next targets in progressive nationalization of the country's major private industries.

Sudan President Jaafar Numeiry said the reaction of the Soviet press to the execution of 14 ringleaders in last week's short-lived Communist coup has strained Sudan's relations with eastern Europe.

The War

Three battalions of Laotian army troops have retaken from the Communists the strategic town of Saravane, which guards a main junction on the Ho Chi Minh supply trail in southern Laos, U.S. military spokesmen announced.

Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk said that President Lyndon B. Johnson "did not have any plans" to widen the Vietnam War prior to the 1964 Gulf of Tonkin incident. Rusk testified before the Senate judiciary subcommittee on separation of powers.

The Market

The threat of a steel strike and a rail strike that has shut down four major roads helped send the market reeling to its lowest level in six months. After tumbling nearly 17 points in two previous sessions, the Dow Jones Average plunged another 10.59 to 861.42. Other indicators also were down. Declines overwhelmed advances, 2,232 to 206. Volume swelled to 14,570,000 shares from 13,940,000 the day before. Prices eased in moderate turnover on the American Exchange.

Middleton's Medical License Is Revoked

The medical license of Dr. James Middleton was formally revoked yesterday by the Illinois Department of Registration and Education.

Dr. Middleton, a Des Plaines area physician who has been indicted on charges of sexual assault and illegal possession of explosives, had been found guilty by the department of three violations of the state Medical Practice Act.

The revocation order came yesterday morning when the state department announced that Middleton will not be granted a rehearing on the charges, according to Edward Price, the department's chief attorney.

The doctor was accused of failure to notify Illinois officials that his license was suspended in Missouri, where he formerly practiced medicine.

He also was charged with unethical and unprofessional practice.

DR. MIDDLETON'S attorney, Edward Genson, yesterday said a court appeal of the Registration and Education Department's ruling "would be called for" but said he will have to consult Middleton before deciding to file the appeal.

The doctor has 35 days to submit a request for administrative review of his license revocation to the Cook County Circuit Court.

Genson said the hearings before the department's state medical examining board were a "travesty of justice." He had objected to the hearings being conducted while Dr. Middleton faced criminal charges.

The doctor was arrested last December after two women said he had drugged and sexually assaulted them at his office, 968 Elmhurst Rd., in unincorporated Des Plaines.

Subsequent raids by federal agents on Dr. Middleton's office and his Chicago apartment, 2800 N. Lake Shore Dr., resulted in indictments announced this week against the doctor for illegal manufacturing and possession of explosives.

Dr. Middleton will appear next Thursday in criminal court, where Judge Robert Downing is expected to rule on Genson's contention that the grand jury which indicted Middleton for deviate sexual assault and aggravated battery was prejudiced against him by pretrial publicity.

Local O'Hare Control Urged

by LEON SHURE

Increased community, regional and state control over Chicago decisions on O'Hare Airport expansion is recommended by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC) in a summary made public yesterday of its massive two-year study of O'Hare noise problems.

In the 20-page summary of the still-to-be-released report, the regional planning agency recommends coordinated, local, state and federal actions on zoning and area development to deal with the increasing noise problems.

In what may be its most controversial recommendation, the NIPC study asks that the state be given power to condemn the most noise affected areas.

Apparent leaks by some NIPC officials of this recommendation brought community protests this week that NIPC was advocating large-scale leveling of homes. NIPC officials denied this, and the summary states that large-scale condemnation is financially unfeasible.

AT A PRESS conference Monday, NIPC officials outlined the contents of the 250-page O'Hare study report but the release yesterday of the summary at last provided a first hand look at the report's recommendations for reducing noise near O'Hare.

The $60,000 study, financed by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and the Department of Transportation, terms the area directly northwest and northeast of O'Hare — Des Plaines, the Northwest suburbs, Park Ridge — as being "the most affected" by the airport noise.

Maps released Monday by NIPC spokesmen indicate that if no action is taken to decrease jet noise, by 1975 more than half of Des Plaines will be subjected to uncomfortable and unhealthy noise levels.

In the affected parts of Des Plaines, including the southern, northeastern and downtown areas of the city the only type of construction adequate to withstand noise and protect residents would be highly insulated apartments, under NIPC standards.

In the O'Hare area, "the two runways built since 1965 will enlarge the noise impacted area to include the homes of half a million persons by 1975" the summary states. The most "seriously affected are patients in ten hospitals, children in 181 schools and 2,400 mobile homes."

Florence Parsons

Mrs. Florence Parsons, 68, a resident of Arlington Heights for three months, formerly of Glenview, died Tuesday in Evanston Hospital. She was born Aug. 12, 1902, in New York City.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow in the chapel of the funeral home, with the Rev. Charles Williams of the First United Presbyterian Church of Skokie officiating. Entombment will be in Oakridge Cemetery, Hillside.

Surviving are her husband, Allen D.; one daughter, Mrs. Meredith Lillich of Syracuse, N.Y., and two grandchildren.

Family requests, in lieu of flowers, memorials may be made to Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children, 2211 N. Oak Park Ave., Chicago.

Alice Kosinski

The body then will be taken to St. Emily Catholic Church, 1400 E. Central Road, Mount Prospect, where a funeral mass will be said at 11 a.m. Burial will be in St. Joseph Cemetery, River Grove.

Surviving are one son, Anthony M. and daughter-in-law, Patricia Kosinski of Chicago; three grandchildren; one brother, Stanley Burkacki, and a sister, Mrs. Helen Cagle. She was preceded in death by her husband, Anthony S.

Family requests, in lieu of flowers, spiritual bouquets will be appreciated.

Funeral arrangements are being handled by Walter J. DeVriendt Funeral Home, Chicago.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. today in Piser North Suburban Memorial Chapel, 9200 Skokie Blvd., Skokie. Rabbi Mark Shapiro will officiate. Interment will be in Shalom Memorial Park Cemetery, Palatine. Friends are asked to pay their respects at time of service.

Surviving are his widow, Dorothea, nee Sabath; two sons, Joseph and daughter-in-law, Marilyn Splansky of Palatine and Rabbi Donald and daughter-in-law, Greta of Cincinnati, Ohio; one daughter, Susan Splansky of New York; and five grandchildren.

FROM OUT OF THE PAST. An old-time steam engine pulls passenger cars filled with visitors to the Illinois Railway Museum in Union, about 60 miles northwest of Chicago. The oldest piece of equipment in the museum dates from 1899. Volunteers maintain and restore the railway equipment. More

Union Choo-Choos Back Into History

by SUE JACOBSON

The rolling countryside surrounding the little farm town of Union, Ill., is peaceful most of the time.

Now and again, though, the silence is broken by the clang of a streetcar and the whistle of an old-time steam engine.

For Union is only a short distance from the site of the Illinois Railway Museum. With more than 100 pieces of old railway equipment on exhibit, the museum is billed as "the world's largest operating railway museum."

An active contributor to the development of the museum is Nick Kallas, a Mount Prospect resident and a coordinator of the Young Adult Program for returning high school drop-outs at Wheeling High School. Kallas spends most of his weekends at the railway museum, helping to restore the old trains and equipment to their original condition.

Kallas said he first became interested in trains when as a boy he sold newspapers on an "L" station in Forest Park.

Increasing interest in the restoration process of old trains led him to join the Illinois Railway Museum about eight years ago. The museum, a nonprofit corporation, is open to all who pay the modest annual membership dues.

THE WORK of maintaining the museum and restoring the items to resemble their original condition is done on a volunteer basis by museum members. The group now includes about 50 regular members and 500 associate members; most are from the Chicago area.

The museum was started in 1953 at North Chicago. A Chicago streetcar — vintage 1907 — purchased from the Chicago Transit Authority, was the first piece of equipment in the museum.

In 1965 the museum was moved to a field near the small McHenry County town of Union, population 600.

Kallas explained that the reason for the move was the need to locate the engines in an unpopulated area.

"The engines cause smoke and noise and it really isn't good to have them in a highly populated area," he said. "Besides, Union is a more convenient location for most of the museum members."

Museum volunteers built more than three miles of track in the countryside surrounding the new museum for use by the growing number of steam and electric trains and streetcars in the collection. Eventually the track will be extended into Union, enabling passengers to ride right into the center of the town.

Museum members also bought the old railroad station in nearby Marengo for $1, moved it to the museum site and renovated it.

KALLAS NOTED that restoring the old trains and streetcars is a painstaking process.

"Our first piece of equipment, the CTA streetcar, was three years in restoration. New roofing and siding were put on. The woodwork was refinished and the car was repainted."

"Generally we do the work from builders' photos and blueprints. Usually the builders have them on file and can come up with them after a little searching," he said.

Proper parts and equipment for the restoration work are obtained from companies throughout the country, and museum members often make weekend trips to collect the parts and bring them to the museum, he said.

An estimated 300 persons a day now visit the museum, open daily during the summer months and on weekends during the spring and fall as well.

The visitors ride on a turn-of-the-century Pullman train, relaxing on the plush green seats.

They wander through a 1919 railroad mail car, or the stainless steel "Nebraska Zephyr." Quite a train in its day, the sleek steel monster carried passengers to the West Coast in the 1930s.

There is a huge five-room private railway car, used by railroad executives around the turn of the century. Complete with crystal chandeliers, paintings, and elaborately carved woodwork, it demonstrates the elegance of train travel in bygone days.

GLASS CASES in the railroad station hold the smaller relics from the past — railroad lanterns, train tickets, conductors' badges.

Some of the more popular exhibits with visitors are the streetcars. Originally 950 of these vehicles rode Chicago streets, charging only a few pennies as fare. The last of them disappeared from the roads in the 1950s; only a few remain on view in the nation's museums.

Now young and old alike fill the rattan seats of the refurbished streetcars at the Illinois Railway Museum — for a short ride down the train tracks and into the past.

Police Seeking Rapists' Names

by BOB CASEY

Des Plaines police yesterday were seeking the identities of several men who reportedly raped two women visitors Saturday night at the Big Bend Lake Indian camp in Des Plaines.

Police Chief Arthur Hintz and representatives of the state's attorney's office yesterday refused to comment on the reported incident, although police indicated that an investigation is underway.

The two women, both in their late 20's, reportedly were sexually assaulted late Saturday night after spending all day Saturday and Saturday evening at the Indian camp, the Herald learned.

The women, both suburban residents, reportedly brought supplies and household items to the Indian camp Saturday and were invited to stay for what reportedly was described as an "Indian ceremony."

About 10 p.m., one of the women reportedly was told by an Indian man that her companion, who was on the other side of the Indian campsite, wanted to leave the site and go home.

The woman then reportedly started walking toward their car when she was grabbed by two Indian men and dragged into one of several tents set up at the campsite. Inside the tent, the two men forcibly disrobed her and she was raped, reports said.

AT ABOUT the same time, her companion was dragged into the woods surrounding the campsite where she reportedly was sexually molested for two hours by several men.

The two women were later released by their attackers and driven home by another visitor to the Indian campsite.

Police, who met yesterday with Mike Chosa, Indian leader, reportedly know the name of at least one of the women's attackers.

It could not be determined whether the attackers were regular residents of the Indian camp or among the hundreds of visitors, both Indian and white, who swell the camp's numbers on weekends.

Police refused to comment yesterday on whether the two women, who reported the crime this week, are willing to press charges.

Chosa could not be reached for comment yesterday.

POLICE REPORTEDLY have been hampered in their investigation by difficulties in interviewing the campsite residents.

Hintz, Capt. Dale Mensching, Det. Robert Zeimet of the Des Plaines police and two members of the state's attorney's office met twice yesterday with the Indians at the campsite and later refused to make any statement.

The Indians, who moved into the forest preserve campsite July 2 and set up a number of tents without a permit, had been routed by police from the former Belmont Harbor Nike base in Chicago. They have said they originally occupied the Nike base after an apartment building in Chicago housing several Indian families burned down.

The Trailer, a coffeehouse at Queen of the Rosary Church in Elk Grove Village, is open from 8 to 10 p.m. Mondays and Thursdays to high school age students.

Between 20 and 25 persons gather at the coffeehouse on the nights it's open, according to the Rev. George Rassas. The atmosphere is informal and activities center around "whatever the kids want to do."

The coffeehouse will be open through August.

$16 Million Budget Asked

A $16 million tentative budget for the 1971-72 school year will be presented to the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education Planning Committee Monday night by school administrators.

The committee, on which all seven board members serve, will go over the budget before it is presented for tentative approval at the Aug. 12 board meeting.

"We will have a balanced budget this year, though a couple of our funds will still show deficits from previous years," Business Manager James Slater, who has been coordinating budget planning for several months, said.

This is the second year administrators and board members have worked to reduce the $1 million deficit the district accumulated through 1969.

"WE CAME out with a $750,000 cash balance at the end of the last fiscal year (June 30, 1971), but we still have a couple of funds in the red," Slater said. Part of the cash balance is early taxes for next year.

Primarily, the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund (IMRF), the rent fund for Schaumburg High School, and the Bond and Interest Fund will have budgeted deficits in the coming year.

"We have had an unexpected increase in non-certificated staff, whose pension is covered by the IMRF. The levy for the fund was passed a year ago, so it will take us a couple of years to make up the difference," Slater said.

By June 30, 1973, the district plans to have the IMRF in the black.

"What happened on the rent fund was that we levied for the exact amount and didn't figure on not collecting all the taxes, so we had to borrow from other funds to make the $240,000 payment to the Illinois School Building Commission, (ISBC)," Slater said.

Next spring the rent fund will be in the black, Slater says.

Through the Rent Fund, Dist. 211 is buying Schaumburg High School from the ISBC on an interest free loan. It will take a little more than 16 years to complete payments for the school. The district has already made three payments.

THE BOND Interest Fund provides tax money to pay for bonds approved by voters in referendum. A year ago, when levies for funds to operate the 1971-72 school year were set, district officials were not sure when interest payments on bonds sold this summer for construction of School No. 5 would come due.

A $3 million bond sale with two interest payments due before July 1, 1972, has been set up for Aug. 12.

"Actually, we will be saving the taxpayers $150,000 in the long run. By paying so much interest early, we are saving ourselves money. This fall, when the board decides how much it wants to levy for next year, in the Bond and Interest Fund that interest deficit will be added on," Slater said.

The two largest funds, Education and Site and Construction, will be in balance this year. Administrators expect the Education Fund, from which teacher salaries and educational materials are paid, to be about $8.66 million. The Site and Construction Fund, which will be used to build School No. 5, will be about $3.3 million.

THREE OTHER funds, Working Cash, Transportation and the Building Fund will also be kept in balance next year. The Working Cash Fund is expected to carry $196,000; Transportation, $1 million; and the Building Fund, used for maintenance and custodial salaries, $1.3 million.

"The direction of our budgeting has been to hold the tax rate stable," Slater said.

This year's tax rate is $2.73 per $100 assessed valuation. With 15 to 20 per cent jumps in assessed valuation each year, the district has been able to maintain a stable tax rate while working to reduce the 1969 deficit.

The Indians have complained of police harassment at the campsite, which has been the scene of several fights and a knife fight recently. Police report widespread drunkenness among the camp residents at nights and on the weekends.

County officials have given the Indian group, which ranges in size from less than 100 during the week to more than 200 or 300 on week ends, permission to stay in the Big Bend Forest Preserve site at least temporarily.

Drum, Bugle Contest Highlights Musicales

Competition between 10 junior and senior drum and bugle corps for the Illinois State Championship will highlight "Music in the Night," a musical spectacle to be held 7 p.m. tomorrow at Elk Grove High School in Elk Grove Village.

Sponsored by the Illinois American Legion in conjunction with its 53rd annual state convention, the event will include exhibitions of bands, color guards and drill teams.

Among the competitors will be the Cavaliers, a drum and bugle corps team that has won more than 425 first place awards including five national championships, since being organized in 1948.

Reserved seats are $1.50. Tickets may be obtained by contacting the American Legion at 922-7520.

I Was Shot At, Truck Driver Says

A driver of an A & P truck reported early yesterday that someone took a shot at him while driving north on Wood Dale Road, north of Thorndale Avenue.

Elk Grove Village Police reported that the hole in the windshield appeared to be caused by a small caliber bullet. The incident occurred shortly after 1 a.m.

there will be 748, expected to be ready by the end of the year.

Rettenbacher noted that there has been an increase in the number of alterations homeowners want to make. In six months of 1971 there have been 89 permits issued for alterations, more than double that for the same time last year.

It's a cheap way to enlarge your home without another mortgage, said Rettenbacher, who recently converted his garage to a living area. People are finding they need more room as their families grow, he said.

Diabetes Has Many Warning Signs

by DR. LAWRENCE LAMB

Dear Dr. Lamb — Would you please explain the symptoms of diabetes and the normal blood sugar?

Dear Reader — I'll use the classic form of diabetes to make matters simpler. First let me say that a lot of diabetics do not have symptoms. There are at least as many people with diabetes with no symptoms as there are with symptoms.

In the classic form there is not enough insulin manufactured by small glands located in the pancreas. Insulin is a hormone and is necessary to metabolize the glucose sugar in the blood. All foods, fats, proteins and carbohydrates are eventually converted to glucose before they are burned into carbon dioxide and water to provide energy for the body.

Without enough insulin to burn the glucose, more and more of it accumulates in the bloodstream, elevating the blood sugar. This is why properly done blood sugar tests can be used to diagnose diabetes.

IN DIABETES, since the blood sugar level is high, as the disease progresses more and more is lost in the urine. This means less of all the food the diabetic eats can be converted to glucose and burned for energy. This in turn leads to loss of energy (fatigue) and loss of weight.

The large amount of sugar spilled in the urine takes with it a lot of water. This causes another symptom, passing lots of urine, and usually frequently. This may also occur at night if lots of urine is passed.

As the disease progresses with time, the kidneys may be damaged. The circulation may also be damaged and there are complications like increased likelihood of having boils and in women problems of inflammation of the vagina with yeast or fungus infections.

The loss of sugar in the urine in large amounts then creates a typical picture of eating a lot in the face of weight loss, fatigue, passing lots of urine, thirst and drinking lots of water. If permanent damage from complications has not occurred, giving insulin corrects most symptoms.

'I Was Always A Happy Kid'

'Vietnam Nerves' Haunt Young Vet

by TOM TIEDE
GAINESVILLE, Fla. (NEA) — Bill Weyer lives in a wing of the local Veterans Hospital which many of the patients good naturedly call the "Crazy Ward."

But not Bill Weyer. He's not crazy. "It's just nerves," he says, looking down at his feet. "I don't know what it's all about. I just can't seem to be natural or really calm any more."

Weyer, age 22, a Vietnam veteran, has been under minimum psychiatric treatment here for two months. It is a boring, confusing and even embarrassing experience. Nobody wants to admit having troubles with their nerves. Least of all a fellow who has never had such problems before. Before the war, that is.

As a spirited, athletic kid in Orlando, the only nerve problem Bill Weyer encountered was how to work up the moxie to ask a girl to the movies. He ran with stout fellows, got passable grades in school, liked to tinker with old cars. He was a member of the now generation, but not very much. He wore his hair clipped, his chin bare, and his clothes were casual without being funky.

"I was happy," he says. "I was always a happy kid."

THEN CAME Vietnam. And places he could not pronounce. Lai Khe, Tan San Nhut, Quang Tri. He had not thought much about the war, he had read even less, and he did not appreciate being asked to attend. But he was not the type to dodge or run. So when he received notice he was about to be conscripted, he volunteered for service, in the Army. Basic training, advanced infantry training — then the war.

"I was an M-60 machine gunner," he remembers. "I operated the weapons on personnel carriers. I was with an outfit (5th Mechanized Infantry) that stayed in the field a lot. We were up below the DMZ. I think I got into the base camp maybe nine, ten times during my whole year there. Most of the time I was out in the boondocks with the rest of the unlucky s.o.b.s."

Vietnam was for Bill Weyer, as it is for most GI's, extremely unpleasant. But for him even more so. He says he did not understand all the political beefs, so did not sit around and gloom over the immorality of his being where he was. "I kept my mouth shut," he says. "I did my job and I just kept my mouth shut."

Perhaps that was a mistake. Perhaps if he had yelled and screamed and kicked all the way into every combat, as some GIs in Vietnam have done, he would not have knotted up so much inside. As it was, saying nothing, he had little release from his fears and angers. The only thing in which he could relieve his torment was the enemy, which he took to be everybody, even civilians, in Vietnam.

"The people over there, they didn't give a damn I was there to help fight their war. They wouldn't fight, they cheated us. I hated them. I wouldn't even touch the girls. Other guys would get prostitutes or take out the hootch maids but I never did. I was always afraid to. I hated the people so much I was afraid I'd get a girl and bust her or something. That's the way I felt about them."

IN TIME, the young GI learned that the Vietnamese were not the only people who did not appreciate his sacrifices in the war. When he returned home, he found his own people, his own nation, was equally apathetic. There were no parades in Orlando to welcome him back. Few had known, in fact, he had even been gone.

"I remember trying to buy a new car. But the bank wouldn't give me the loan unless I had my parents cosign the contract. Now, I had proven myself a man in Vietnam — but nobody cared. They wouldn't even let me buy a car by myself."

Weyer tried to scare up old friends, only to find they had disappeared. He returned to the haunts of his youth, but discovered they were controlled by a new group of kids with which he couldn't tify. He found, in short, the world had changed, passed him by maybe, and he was on the outside looking in.

A job? Sure. For $1.00 an hour, tops, and no future. "I didn't risk my neck for the country to come back here and sweep a broom for the rest of my days."

AND SO Bill Weyer developed his nerves. His girl friend abandoned him. His best friend died of leukemia. He started in with the acid scene, he "turned it God," anything, everything, but he found out sadly that it was all a losing cause.

One night, with a friend, having a beer, things caught up with the Vietnam veteran. "I just went out of my head is all." He grabbed up his old fatigue uniform and ripped off the buttons "like I was killing the gooks again," and made such a commotion that, he says, it took 12 policemen to collar and quiet him.

And that is how Bill Weyer wound up in the "Crazy Ward" at the Gainesville Veterans Hospital. And that is why he spends his hours now wondering what in hell has happened to him. "They keep me doped up in here, or they come around and talk," he says, perplexed, his face tight. "But it doesn't really help much. My nerves are all shot. Ever since the war, I've just been all mixed up."

DO-IT-YOURSELF

If you are nailing down roofing with a hammer or putting down carpet with tacks and one of those little tack hammers then you are working with obsolete equipment.

The staple gun is the thing to use. It is faster, better, more efficient. With it you can fasten a variety of materials and do it with one hand.

When it comes to awkward installations, such as ceiling tile, you will wonder how you ever did without it. Instead of holding a nail in one hand a hammer in the other, leaving you wondering how you hold the tile in place, the hammer-nail operation is combined in one leaving the other hand free to control the material.

THE VERSATILE staple gun is available in a variety of sizes. Lightweight models accept staples of 1/4-inch or 5/16th-inch and are quite inexpensive. They will serve for any lightweight fastening job. Use the small gun for upholstery, for any job that involves fastening fabrics.

Larger models cost more but they do more. With these you can drive a staple up to 3/16ths of an inch.

The heavy-duty gun will do everything the small gun does, plus can be used for ceiling tile, roofing, fastening light pieces of wood together. You can even use such a tool for temporary fastening of thin sheets of plywood until more permanent fastening can be accomplished.

The fact that the gun is so easy to use makes temporary tacking more feasible. You can hold materials firmly until the glue dries, for example. Staples will hold material in one place until you can position screws or bolts. If you are nailing up a frame you can staple a thin strip of wood diagonally to serve as a temporary brace.

A staple gun is perfect for the installation of insulation and weatherstripping. You can do a day's work in a few hours as compared to using hammer and nails.

For screening, staples make the whole job easier and neater.

ALWAYS USE the right size staple for the job — small staples for shelf paper, something heavier for a chair cover, and heavy staples for roofing.

Hold the gun firmly against the surface. Push on the handle. Don't squeeze. It's a one-hand tool but it will work better if you steady the front of the gun with a thumb whenever you can.

Do not fire staples from the gun when it is not held against a surface. This practice is dangerous. It also damages the tool since the plunger meets no resistance.

Collecting Coins

25th Year For U. S. Coin Guidebook

by MORT REED

Whitman's universally distributed "Guide Book of United States Coins," by R. S. Yeoman, celebrates its 25th anniversary with the present edition being turned out by Western Publishing in Racine, Wis. The collectors' primer, better known as the Red Book, is probably in its most magnificent form.

Absolutely nothing is left to the reader's imagination. As a matter of fact, Yeoman has outdone himself with this issue by photographically demonstrating all the little details that distinguish one collector's item from another.

Points of comparison, such as dates, inscriptions, mint marks and unusual features affecting the price of the coin, are displayed in a simple, understandable fashion. A noncollector would find it extremely difficult to put the book down until he had gone through it at least once.

IN AN INTERVIEW with Coin World editors, Mr. Yeoman reflected back to 1946 and the first edition of the Red Book, with a cover date of 1947. Of the 14 original panelists who contributed to the compilation of the first book, four are still alive and all are shoo-in candidates for the Red Book Hall of Fame.

Subjects covered in the Red Book have always been able to speak for themselves. Descriptions are simple and factual, never once presuming on the expertise of the reader to supplement the slightest bit of information.

New information brings about revisions with every edition and the 25th, with more changes and additions than ever before, is no exception. Perhaps the most significant in the series of changes has been the regular addition of coin condition grading columns.

In 1946, the prices of an 1857 Flying Eagle cent were Good, 45 cents; Fine, $1; and Uncirculated, $5. Three extremely wide conditions resulting in values of equal variation. In time these prices increased because it was necessary to expand and improve the grading process. By virtue of separating the three conditions with three intermediate grades, today's Red Book shows the 1857 Flying Eagle cent in Good, $4.50; Fine, $9.25; and Uncirculated, $115.

THE 25th EDITION Red Book shows six acceptable grades for a coin in collectable condition: Good, Very Good, Fine, Very Fine, Extremely Fine and Uncirculated. Proof, not being a problem, is not included in the six grades but shown after each coin minted in that condition.

Compared to the first edition, the 25th contains an estimated 800 per cent increase in the amount of information between its covers. Yet each consists of 256 pages. The price in 1946 was $1.50. A quarter of a century later the price is only $2.50.

Interested readers may find "A Guide Book of United States Coins" in their favorite bookstore or coin shop. If not, send $2.50 to Mr. Kenneth Bressett, Whitman Hobby Division, Western Publishing Company, Racine, Wis. Your Red Book will be sent by return mail.

Lab Machine Runs Itself

Manufacturing laboratory machines are running themselves at William Rainey Harper College, to manufacture a part or drafting an architectural design.

Though no hands are guiding the machines as they do their work, brains and hands make the process possible through a nearby control panel.

The process is called numerical control technology, and it's taught as part of Harper's Engineering and Related Technologies Division.

Coordinator of the numerical control program, William Hack, defines the technology as "The use of specialized computers and control devices to operate manufacturing machines and equipment."

If the processes can be accomplished by conventional means, why use numerical control technology?

"Basically, because consumers demand for more products of higher quality," says Hack.

POSSIBILITIES in the numerical control technology field are tremendous in scope.

"Give me a large existing manufacturing plant, and the concept of computer control, and I could turn out enough knives, forks and spoons to furnish a set for everyone in the world within one year," Hack said.

Formerly, just two elements were considered necessary in a manufacturing plant — engineering and the machine shop. But now, according to Hack, the numerical control technician fills a wide variety of new industrial plant positions from technical lab assistant to manufacturing engineering staff member.

Harper's two-year associate degree program in the numerical control field is unique in the area, since most firms have trained employees in this skill internally.

ARLINGTON Heights resident Cary Annen, who worked in industry prior to becoming a Harper student, believes Harper's program gives well-rounded numerical control training on many machines, while the usual two-week commercial course brought to a plant gives training on one machine and can be quite expensive.

Annen is enthusiastic about the future of numerical control: "The possibilities are almost unlimited such as a numerically controlled probe which can measure the outside and the inside dimensions of a solid automobile mold — and turn out a drawing at the same time."

Typewriters (three at Harper) can be programmed to make a tape to run through the machine repeatedly for innumerable original typewritten copies.

Further information on the Numerical Control program at Harper College may be obtained by calling 358-4200, ext. 254.

New County School Heads To Start Work

Nearly a third of Illinois' 102 counties will have new school superintendents beginning Monday, according to Michael Bakalis, state superintendent of public instruction.

A total of 31 county school chiefs — known officially as Superintendents of Educational Service Regions — were elected to their first terms last November and will take office next week along with 71 incumbent who were re-elected Superintendent Bakalis explained.

All 102 educational officials have been invited to the annual conference this week in Springfield of the state superintendent's office and the Illinois Association of Superintendents of Educational Service Regions. The meeting will be held Thursday and Friday at the Holiday Inn East.

The conference will provide the first-term superintendent's with an opportunity to meet their counterparts and get acquainted with the officials and operations in the superintendent of public instruction's office.

New superintendent for Cook County is Richard Mortwick, who will be sworn in Monday afternoon.

Fingerprinting For Solicitors

If there is one thing suburbanites learn to recognize quickly, it is the familiar ring of doorbells through the long summer afternoons and evenings as literally hundreds of door to door salesmen ply their persistent trade through subdivisions and apartment buildings.

In fact, the suburbs seem to have become the haven for door to door solicitors, particularly those who attempt to sell their wares to young families with new homes and pre-school children.

For years, many suburban communities have attempted to formulate laws against door to door sales gimmicks, often without tangible success.

Now, in a remarkable attempt to utilize the broad powers granted municipalities by the new Illinois constitution, the village of Arlington Heights is proposing a law which will create legal obstacles against door to door salesmen.

Under the proposed law, salesmen who solicit directly to the home would only be allowed to move through the village from morning to early evening six days a week. Each salesman would have to carry proper credentials issued by the Arlington Heights Police Department.

In order to get police credentials, the salesman would have to pay a fee, provide testimony to his character, and be fingerprinted by the police.

The total effect of the ordinance, if passed into law, would be to make door to door sales in the village hardly worth the bother for fly-by-night operators.

Although the intent of the proposed law seems to be correctly aimed at protecting local residents from swarms of unscrupulous salesmen, the lengthy police process — particularly the fingerprinting of each salesman — is unwarranted and a potential tool for governmental harassment.

There is no quarrel with Arlington Heights' effort to take some measure of protection against door to door solicitors, but there are other ways of controlling the practice without causing each sales person to undergo police examination.

One method would be to make each company soliciting in the village to post a substantial bond. The bond would be forfeited if, in the judgment of the village manager, the company's representatives took advantage of local residents. Thus, the company conducting the sales campaign would be liable to the village.

Local officials should also remember that Illinois is in the forefront of states which protect its citizens with laws which allow consumers to cancel sales contracts made with solicitors, providing the cancellation is within three days of the sale.

Arlington Heights is not alone in its deliberations on how best to protect its residents against door to door salesmen. Wheeling has for some time faced this problem too, often without success.

And that is because in any attempt to restrict trade, honest businessmen or innocents will suffer as a result.

Or, as in the case of the proposed Arlington Heights law, the public as a whole will suddenly be threatened with police methods usually reserved for the handling of criminals.

Public Shouldn't Rely On Critics

When I read the Arlington Park Theatre review in the July 7 Herald, I was extremely disappointed in the way with which your drama critic, Genie Campbell, put down the fine acting job of all the actors concerned in the British comedy play, "Relatively Speaking." First of all, I don't think it's fair for the critic to assume that the entire audience thinks, feels and should react like he, the reporter, does. And I particularly want to say that I found the show certainly not to be "tedious enough to put some to sleep" or "force others to sneak out during intermission."

I have seen the show eight times already, and I find it neither tedious nor disappointing. Each and every night brings with it a new and even more challenging audience than the night before. And no two audiences are alike, because you find that no two people are ever alike. Each audience consists of various and strangely intriguing individuals; who all react differently — and rare ever at the same time, or at any one specific punch line. So their outbursts of laughter may very well not be just their "outcome of boredom."

And if you're wondering why I saw the play so many times, well — I'm an usher there. Believe me, I thought I'd get totally sick of seeing the same play over and over again, all summer long, especially since I'm a bug on musicals, and I must admit, though, I was surprised. I guess it was having new audiences that broke the monotony of watching that same play go on, night after night; and made it seem more like it was just opening for the first time, because no two performances were ever the same. I came to think of them, more or less, as an adventure.

But to be perfectly honest, I had never even heard of Joan Fontaine or Ray Milland before, or any old-time film and stage star over 40 for that matter. So when an usher came up to me at intermission and asked how I liked seeing a "real live movie star close up," I didn't exactly know to which actor she was referring.

The play, however, in itself was quite interesting and I don't know how it could ever get boring, because although the plot is not extremely difficult to follow, the action itself keeps jumping around. So, it enables the audience to become involved in the world of the play. And especially if you are able to sit in the first few rows, I think it would be extremely beneficial; because you feel a certain "closeness" to the actors that only having a theatre-in-the-round could give you. You are able to actually become emotionally involved in the "atmosphere" of the play, and I feel that you could truly gain something from this experience.

The plot of the play was exactly as earlier described in the paper and I don't believe I could describe it any more simply or plainer than that. So I'll leave it as such. But it also, I think, is a play that I would recommend more or less to less "sophisticated" type audiences; because if you expect to learn something of intellectual value from this, you might as well just stay at home and watch Marcus Welby of something. Because if you're afraid of learning something more true-to-life or realistic of today's youth (and their problems), you may as well forget it.

I just wish that people wouldn't always rely on reviews to make up their minds as to whether or not they should see a play. Since when should one person's opinion put a hamper on your decision? (I'm not trying to put down reviews, but why should reviews stop people from finding out how they liked the show — instead of accepting someone else's opinion as fact?)

About a week or so ago, there was a party of 20 who all had made reservations to see "Relatively Speaking," and, because of a review in a Chicago paper, called to cancel their reservations. I really don't think it's right to let one person's opinion about a show change your decision about going to a new theatre in the suburbs to see it. It just isn't right, and I wish there was a way I could convince, or let others know, how I feel about this. And I'm sure there are others who feel the same way. Anyway, I should think they'd want to find out what the show is like for themselves. Besides, what have they got to lose (except the fantastic show they're missing)?

Which brings me to the reason why I started writing this letter in the first place. You see, I just wanted to find out for myself what certain individuals in various audiences thought about the show. So, during intermission for two nights, I asked people how they liked it, as they were coming back into the theatre. Also, I listened to numerous discussions concerning either an actor or the play itself. And I found that the majority of the people whom I asked liked the play itself, but found Joan Fontaine to be a bit of a disappointment — along with Ray Milland not being in it, of course. They said they had seen her in better roles, roles more suited to the type of person she is. Maybe that's so.

However, there are two other very fine and talented performers who didn't even get mentioned in your review. I think it's a shame that just because a "star" flops in a role that the other players have to suffer the consequences. One particularly talented actor was Jim Tripp, who portrayed "Greg" beautifully. I guess quality is still rare enough that it's always exciting to discover and this certain "quality," I found, immeasurably, in his performances. Another was Barbara Heuman, who played "Ginny," an extraordinarily funny part, because of all the hilarious predicaments she manages to get herself mixed up in. Before a show the tension is thick enough to cut with a knife, but let her walk on stage as "Ginny" and you'll see the slick polished performance that only Barbara Heuman alone could pull off with such sincerity.

But the man who was throwing his weight around was the real "backbone" of the performance — Ian Martin. I think that he's one of those people whom it's hard to imagine without his heft. His jovial wit seems to go right along with his waistline. But he is also one of those very rare individuals who manages to outdo everyone at practically everything. I wish everyone could have the unique experience of watching Ian Martin "in action." Talk about gangbusters! You find yourself hanging on the ropes, breathless and panting, "More! More!" And if there's more to give, he'll give it to you. He's really a remarkable performer.

This play may not be the ideal play to open a new theatre with, but really, it's not all that bad. It's quite enjoyable, and I think that if you theatre-goers would only give it a chance and go see it, believe me, I think you'd be in for a big surprise. It's really quite a treat, and I know you'd be in for one enjoyable evening.

So, let Chicagoans sit at home tomorrow night and watch a baseball game or something and we in suburbia will go to a super spiffy play which is, "relatively speaking," "bloody marvelous!"

Village Snubs Bulldozer, Saves Trees

Mayor Robert Teichert and the board of trustees of the village of Mt. Prospect deserve to be commended for reaching a sensible solution with Jon Liljequist and his supporters to a perennial problem how to save the trees when the widening of Lounquist Boulevard east of Elmhurst Road gets underway.

According to the new report (Herald, July 20), the fate of some 58 trees was exposed to the mercy of the bulldozers, which some people mistakenly regard as the "wheels of progress," but which in reality are the most vicious brutalizers of natural beauty.

Obviously, Mayor Teichert is a lover of natural beauty himself, and with the backing of the board of trustees, he took courage to snub the bulldozers to save the trees that some mayors of the previous administrations and the mayors of neighboring villages had no guts even to dream about. As a result of this action only a small number of trees will be sacrificed in the widening project.

As it is widely known, in many parts of suburbia the people — men, women and children — have fought quite gallantly against the brutality of the bulldozers to save their lawns, their shrubbery, their evergreens and shade trees, but their elected representatives shamelessly bowed to the bulldozers and let them do their destructive work.

But in Mt. Prospect things are being done differently. Once a famous diplomat had said: "Where there is a will, there is a way." And I will say that our village

Indians Are 'Undeserving Poor'

The behavior of the Des Plaines Indian residents, as described in today's (July 13) Herald really got my dander up! These are "Undeserving Poor." (Term coined by G. Bernard Shaw in his play "Pygmalion" to characterize Eliza Doolittle's scavenger father.)

The least they could do is peddle genuine handmade Indian trinkets; why, with the $150 cash put at their disposal by local philanthropists, I'll bet they can get a plenitude of such trinkets from Hong-Kong or Tai-Wan.

If these Redskins don't like it in the United States, why don't they go back where they came from? — Your country, love it or leave it! Here are solid citizens, fresh from the old country, offering their best discards, and they won't even say thank you! Remember what patriotic Americans used to say about the only government has mustered enough will power in searching for a sensible way how to save the beleaguered trees. For this all nature lovers must be very thankful.

A Rewarding Summer

As a parent of a handicapped child, I would like to praise the Elk Grove Village Park District and leaders of the special recreation program held at Clearmont School this summer. These people have taken the time to help my child develop new skills during the summer. For once my daughter had a program to participate in during the summer.

I would hope that programs like this would be continued each and every year and that more children could take advantage of it.

My daughter has received water skills, swimming lessons and field trips through this program.

Thanks, Mike, Dave and staff for all the time, energy and work that was put into helping my daughter have a most rewarding summer. You are all truly dedicated people who care.

'Tackie' Taxpayer Gets Socked

In regards to the article in the July 26 issue of the Arlington Heights Herald about the sidewalk issue in Skarsdale, I would like to ask Mr. Colvin a few questions.

I would like to know how some people residing in Arlington Heights seem to always get their way only because they live in the "Ritzy" areas? We have lived in Arlington Heights for 20 years and in the past 13 years have been slapped with $3,000 in special assessments. Of course, you must realize we do live in the "tacky" neighborhood by Arlington High School. Since our home is on a corner, we were "forced" into 132 feet of sidewalk plus streets, curbs and sewers on both streets.

Now I would like to know why the people in the "tacky" areas with an even tackier bank account must always do the

Watch Your Language

The National Association of Laymen, a Roman Catholic organization founded several years ago to help carry out the reform program of the Second Vatican Council, has already been overtaken by changing times.

At its recent meeting in New York, the association voted overwhelmingly to change its name to the National Association of Laity — in order to "display concern and sensitivity" toward women.

"We need to be sensitive to the little things in our lives," explained retiring president William Caldwell, referring to the countless semantic slings and arrows and little putdowns women are subjected to every time the English language is spoken.

merely serve to sexually categorize the titleholder and thus in a way are even worse than the words they replace.

This job of rooting out all vestiges of male chauvinism from our society promises to be a long, long process. It's hard enough to get people to change their attitudes and practices, much less the language they use.

What the National Association of Laity did may have been a big step for them but it was really just a small step for man — oops, humankind.

Women obviously are sensitive about being called "laymen." Fortunately in this case there was an alternative, neutral word to hand. The solution is not so easy with regard to words like "chairman" or "foreman" and hundreds of others which reflect the fact that men have been in charge of things for so many centuries.

"Chairwoman" or "forelady"

Business Today

by LEE LORING

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — On a raw afternoon last April, Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe stood on a truck bed on Interstate 95 in Freeport and nodded approvingly as workmen dismantled a billboard.

It was the first advertising sign to be removed under the Federal Highway Beautification program authorized in 1966 by Congress. It was the beginning of a drive to do away with a multi-million dollar industry represented by the 600,000 advertising signs declared illegal by Congress, one that hasn't made much headway.

Volpe, obviously with the intention giving impetus to the program, journeyed to Boise, Idaho on July 26 and personally cut down the first such billboard in that state with a chain saw.

AT THE BILLBOARD site, Volpe said it was not the intention of Congress to destroy the billboard industry. But he emphasized that the Beautification Act is designed to remove all billboards from residential, rural and recreation areas from commercial centers on interstate and federally-aided highway.

He also presented Gov. Cecil D. Andrus of Idaho with a letter signifying the government's intention of giving that state more than $3.25 million to help pay for such removals under the federal act.

Things have been moving slowly in the program. Three months after Volpe's visit to Maine not a single additional sign has been taken down there.

"Unfortunately the program has not gone as fast as we might have wished," said David H. Stevens, chairman of Maine's Highway Commission. His state jumped ahead of other states in 1969 by implementing the federal law with a state law forbidding display of advertising signs within 660 feet of the right of way of federally-aided primary roads.

MONTHS BEFORE Volpe journeyed to Maine, state highway officials were negotiating with a major outdoor advertising company for removal of a whole bloc of billboards. The talks still are going on, and officials hope for an early agreement. Figuring a formula for compensating a billboard owner for his signs is something entirely new and takes time, says Stevens.

"This is virgin territory," he noted. "I have a certain amount of sympathy for the advertisers. They're pretty bewildered by this thing, too."

Maine was the first state to receive some of the $8.5 million appropriated last year by Congress to compensate advertisers. Early this year it got a grant of $510,000. Even with the grant, money is a problem. That half-million will pay for the dismantling of less than one-fifth of the 2,180 signs which must come down.

Learning to be a lawyer can be a tricky business.

Abraham Lincoln did it by reading the law, apprenticing himself to a practicing attorney. More recently, of course, the usual method has been to get a college degree, and then trot off to law school.

Yet as recently as last month, you could also get a law degree by mail, working away at lessons sent with regularity from a correspondence school in the Midwest.

But the caliber of legal education you can get through your letter carrier is open to question. In fact, the Federal Trade Commission recently ordered this school to admit in its advertisements that the degree it grants is insufficient basis for practicing the law in a single one of the 50 states.

THE FTC's order only serves to underscore a condition of long standing. Too many of the nation's correspondence schools offer what may be described charitably as marginal education.

The yearnings of the undereducated have always been considered fair game by those who like to prey upon the more trusting among us.

The range of correspondence schooling is hard to exaggerate. "Learn to be a private detective" shouts one ad that has run for years without interruption.

Electrolysis, architecture, cost accounting, oil painting and writing comedy are only a few of the possibilities paraded before anyone who can read.

What's not so obvious is some simple method of assessing the real value of these offerings. Only occasionally does a watchdog like the FTC bestir itself to correct an abuse.

This means that if you have the yen to improve your mind via one of the many courses available by mail, you'd best tread with great care. And you could use some advice, too.

ONE PLACE to try is the Better Business Bureau. It at least makes a stab at fingering the least worthy among the brotherhood.

An even better bet is the National Home Study Council (1801 18th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20009). This is an accreditation agency that patrols the perimeter of mail-order education for the best reason of all — self interest.

Its members work hard to offer a good product, and are hell-bent to keep the charlatans out of the fraternity.

Some high school guidance counselors can help. So can former students who've taken the course in question and are now in a position to be realistic as to its benefits.

However careful you may be in your choice of school, there will still be one more grave danger to educational achievement. This one is yourself.

Only three out of 10 correspondence school students have the fortitude to finish what they begin.

Work Force In 2000 - One-Third Female

Working Women Earn $90.6 Billion

The work force in the year 2000 will be one-third female.

So predicts William A. Reasoner, president of Waddell & Reed, Inc., Kansas City-based national financial services complex, who notes that earnings of working wives are boosting family incomes considerably.

"This year, the nation's 22.3 million working women will earn incomes totaling $90.6 billion. Although many are employed on a part-time basis, distaff annual average earnings have escalated to the $4,000 level," emphasizes Reasoner.

"In 1960, one out of every five American workers was a woman," Reasoner notes. "By 1980, more than 25 per cent of the country's labor supply will be female. The percentage of their participation in all phases of the economy is increasing steadily, while that of men is declining," he says.

Reasoner points out that last year, over 61 per cent of the nation's working women were married and they contributed a valuable supplement to the family income. "The current median income of families in which the wife does not work is $9,900. If she works part-time, family income rises to roughly $13,000, and if she is employed full-time, the median family income climbs to near the $16,000 level.

"This substantial increase in family income has been made possible by steadily increasing salary levels for the distaff labor force, as well as their penetration into management positions. Last year, about 47 per cent of the nation's 38 million higher-paying white collar jobs were held by females. In many cases, they're supplying more than half of the family income," Reasoner declares.

HE CITES the case of Phyllis and Tom Knight, she with a master's degree in micro-biology and with a bachelor's degree in sociology. He makes less than $9,000 a year, while Phyllis earns $11,000.

"Income levels don't mean a thing, except at tax times; there's no jealousy," Phyllis says. "We're both doing our thing and really feel we're able to contribute something to society. Our combined income makes it possible for us to have several extra things we need and want, like a second car."

"They rush out and buy a lot of things," she says. "They're always wanted but don't really need. These couples should have the help of a financial planner in arranging their combined resources — providing insurance with equity investment, for example," he stresses.

Reasoner believes that exciting job opportunities, the need for additional income, rising educational levels . . . and boredom are swelling the labor force with women.

"Whatever their reasons for working, wives in the labor force — many of whom have school-age children — can supply the financial motivation and the additional funds needed to plan and save for the family's future and to enjoy the benefits of a better life while they work toward these goals — if their income is properly used," Reasoner concludes.

Pollution Hits Cultured Pearl Crop

NEW YORK (UPI) — Within five years, new cultured pearls could become almost as scarce as the natural pearl because of the pollution of oyster grounds off Japan, an industry leader said Monday.

Sidney Weiss of Imperial Pearl Syndicate Inc. of Chicago and Tokyo, here for the annual retail jewelers' convention and exposition, said that the pearl production picture, which started deteriorating three or four years ago, now is desperate.

"Only the business recession which slashed sales in the United States, the biggest market, has enabled us to keep prices from skyrocketing," Weiss said.

"AS MATTERS stand right now, we can only depend on two more small crops of cultured pearls from Japanese waters. I don't know whether there will be a pearl harvest three years from now."

To complicate the situation, of the 5,000 species of oysters known to marine biologists, only one, the Akoya, can produce cultured pearls of real gem quality.

"Ago Bay, where the Japanese cultured pearl industry had its birth, already is abandoned, and activity in the other pearl farming waters is at a minimum," Weiss said.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

by OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY

Suppose the cards got together after a bridge game to tell their experiences. Most of the talk would be handled by aces and kings but once in a while a spot card would get the floor.

West started out by playing the king, queen and jack of hearts. South ruffed the third heart with the deuce of trumps and East overruffed.

East decided that his partner's failure to play the ace was some sort of a suit preference signal so East returned the deuce of clubs. South won with dummy's ace and tried to get some club discards on dummy's diamonds only to go two down when West ruffed the second lead of the suit.

Now let's give the deuce of spades the floor at the card meeting. "I don't get much of a chance to be the hero of a hand," he would say, "but it is a shame that some mere human being will ruin my opportunity. There I was in full control at trick three and South reached over and played me. If he had just held back and thrown any other card in the hand except the club ace the rubber would have ended triumphantly for him."

So it would have. If the club shift came, dummy's ace would win. But now

Elk Grove May Get Back On Map

Progress is being made towards getting Elk Grove Village back on the map, according to State Sen. John A. Graham.

Take Heart, All You Hay Fever Sufferers

A leading Chicago health agency executive is urging local governments, community organizations and individuals to help thousands of Chicago-area hay fever victims in their annual battle against ragweed.

"Medical experts tell us 75 per cent of people with hay fever are sensitive to ragweed which is now entering its peak growing season in the Chicago area," John Egtorf, executive director of the Tuberculosis Institute of Chicago and Cook County said.

The ragweed pollen count in the Chicago area is the highest from mid-August to mid-September. A ragweed plant may produce up to one billion pollen grains, though as few as seven grains can cause problems for persons with hay fever.

Residents of Chicago-area communities that empower sanitation officials to remove ragweed if the property owners do not comply should report its presence, Egtorf said.

The senator won't be sure the village made it, however, until the new maps are printed.

A couple of months ago it was learned the first printing of the 1971 official highway map of Illinois deleted Elk Grove along with Palatine, Inverness, Barrington, Hoffman Estates and Gov. Ogilvie's home town of Northbrook.

After complaints from Palatine residents, the Secretary of State's office promised to include Palatine and "other communities in the Metropolitan area" in a second printing of the map.

Graham was unaware that Elk Grove was missing from the map.

"I didn't have any letters from Elk Grove. I hope it's back on again," he said.

Schaumburg Township Project

Sludge Land Price Tag: $50 Million?

It could cost the Metropolitan Sanitary District between $30 million and $50 million to purchase land on which a sludge farm could be built in Schaumburg Township.

That's the projected price tag for a proposed 2,000-acre project, which would be constructed in conjunction with the Salt Creek water reclamation project.

The price tag was included yesterday in a report presented to the MSD board of trustees. The report, prepared by the appraisal firm of Wm. A. McCann & Associates, was accepted without discussion.

The solid waste reclamation plant is proposed between Rte. 53 and Meacham Road, south of Schaumburg Road. The 2,000 acres of additional land would be needed for disposal of processed material from the project.

THE McCANN FIRM surveyed property within a five-mile radius of the proposed plant site. The firm reported its basic purpose was to determine "a general range in current market prices of vacant land having various use possibilities."

"Acquisition of land within the study area . . . could not be accomplished at prices less than $15,000 per acre and would in all probability range upward from $25,000 per acre," the report states.

However, the report cautioned, "Land in the area is not readily available from all apparent indications and acquisition of sufficient area to meet the Metropolitan Sanitary District's needs could involve lengthy condemnation proceedings."

As the plant and the reclamation area are under consideration, the MSD is also working toward a massive flood control project in the Salt Creek basin. The project will create a series of basins to restrict flooding in the area.

The MSD also received a copy of testimony from its president, John E. Egan, in support of a bill which would set rigid standards for phosphate pollution.

Egan testified in Washington on behalf of the legislation and submitted a report prepared by the MSD that detailed the costs of removing phosphates from water treated in municipal water plants.

Quality Relationship Needed

The Working Mother And Her Child

By DOROTHY OLIVER

Few will disagree that running a household and rearing children is a time-consuming, rewarding and full-time job. Yet thousands of mothers — either out of necessity or desire — leave their homes to work 10, 20 or 40 hours a week at a second job.

Child care is one of the working mother's problems. It is estimated that six million boys and girls under the age of six are the children of working mothers, according to Mary Dublin Keyserling, consulting economist and former director of the Women's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor. She has stated that most of these children are cared for in catch-as-catch-can fashion.

AT LEAST 18,000 of these children are left entirely on their own while mom is at work. Another 900,000 are brought to work by their mothers and "behind-the-counter" becomes their playground. Others are left home with older brothers and sisters kept home from school on a rotation basis to babysit. Neighbors take some and hundreds of mothers rely on women who care for several children in their unlicensed homes.

Nursery schools and day care centers care for only about a million of these children. Many mothers, however, can neither afford the $20-$40 per child per week charged by a nursery school nor are their incomes low enough to qualify them for day care centers created for low income families.

Society has conditioned women to believe a mother's place is in the home. The women's liberation movement, on the other hand, promotes the idea a woman should not feel guilty about leaving her children and pursuing a career.

PSYCHOLOGISTS AND social workers tend to agree on at least one area in the situation faced by working mothers and their children: It's not the quantity of time you spend with children — it's the quality.

"It is very important that the child receives adequate supervision while the parents are working," said Margaret Lisinski, district supervisor of the Salvation Army Community Counseling Center in Des Plaines. "And it is important that the parents not always be working, that they give time to their child."

She explained that some parents come home from their jobs and start right in on home chores. Their response to their child's needs is "I'm busy now" or "Tell me later." You must take time for living, she said.

How you fill the time you have with your child is equally important.

"YOU MUST HAVE an honest relationship with your child," said Dr. Robert Willford, executive director of the Forest Hospital Post-Graduate Center for Mental Health. He discussed what working mothers — and all mothers for that matter — should strive for in rearing their children.

"Both the child and the parent should have opportunity to express their unhappiness with the situation (if the mother working) and the positive aspects of it," he said. "The parent should recognize that the child has the need to say, 'I don't feel you love me because you don't spend enough time with me' and not make him feel guilty."

Don't justify your working, Willford warned. Don't tell the child it's the only thing you can do or without your job he wouldn't be eating.

Listen, understand and let your child know it's okay to express his feelings. And be honest with him in return. Express your happiness and unhappiness.

"MOST CHILDREN are not given a time just for them to be with their mother," he continued. "It is easy for a child to believe he ranks about 37th in importance in his mother's life."

To remedy the situation, Willford suggested a mother set aside 15 minutes a day for her child — time that should not be interrupted, even by a phone call, "come hell or high water."

"Let the child decide what happens during this period, whether it be play time, talk time or just a time for quiet and closeness. One block of time like that can be worth 100 other times," he said.

"All mothers should make a special effort to give many 'positive strokes' to a child. Give him a hug just because he's alive; a kiss for no reason. Tell him how you feel about him just because it's there. Increase the quality of the 'stroke' to make up for the lacking quantity," he continued.

A MOTHER CAN help her child cope with her working period by giving him little things to look forward to. The younger the child the less is his concept of time periods. For the pre-schooler use short periods: "When I come home from work tonight we can play a game." For the older child you can lengthen the period: "Next weekend we can go bike riding together." Give him something to look forward to, Willford advised.

"Leave evidence at home that you are thinking about your child. A little note tucked in a place he will find it that says

'Have a nice day' or 'I love you a lot' reinforces the child's knowledge that you care," he said.

The working mother who works by choice is different from the one who works by necessity, Willford said. She has to give a lot of very honest thought to how she feels about working.

"IF A WOMAN hasn't reconciled working with herself she may punish the child unconsciously through 'emotional leakage.' The mother/child relationship will be healthier if she has gotten rid of her own guilt feelings for leaving her child at home. Otherwise she may resent her child for the inconvenience he causes her or the additional responsibility he presents.

"She should recognize guilt feelings and bad feelings toward the child and not lay them on him," Willford said.

Working women can suffer pure exhaustion from trying to serve as worker, wife and mother, he continued. Small home incidents can be blown out of proportion. A woman should be alert to her energy and tolerance level when she is home. And she should be able to tell her child, "I'm tired and have to lie down. If I talk to you now I might get upset easily." Tiredness gives way to inappropriate anger and the child should not be the recipient of this anger.

THE KNOWLEDGE of child development and a child's needs at different ages is very important for the working women — and, again, all women.

In a full day many positive and negative incidents pass between mother and child. The mother at home has more chance to equalize a negative incident, like getting angry, with a trip to the store, a positive incident.

A working woman's time at home is limited. She should be aware of the four basic needs in her child and maintain a positive relationship by fulfilling those needs.

Give him support — both emotional ("Mommy, I can't win this game") and physical ("Help me put on my shoe").

GIVE HIM NOURISHMENT — both emotional ("I love you") and physical ("Lunch is ready").

Give him protection. Let him know he is safe and secure.

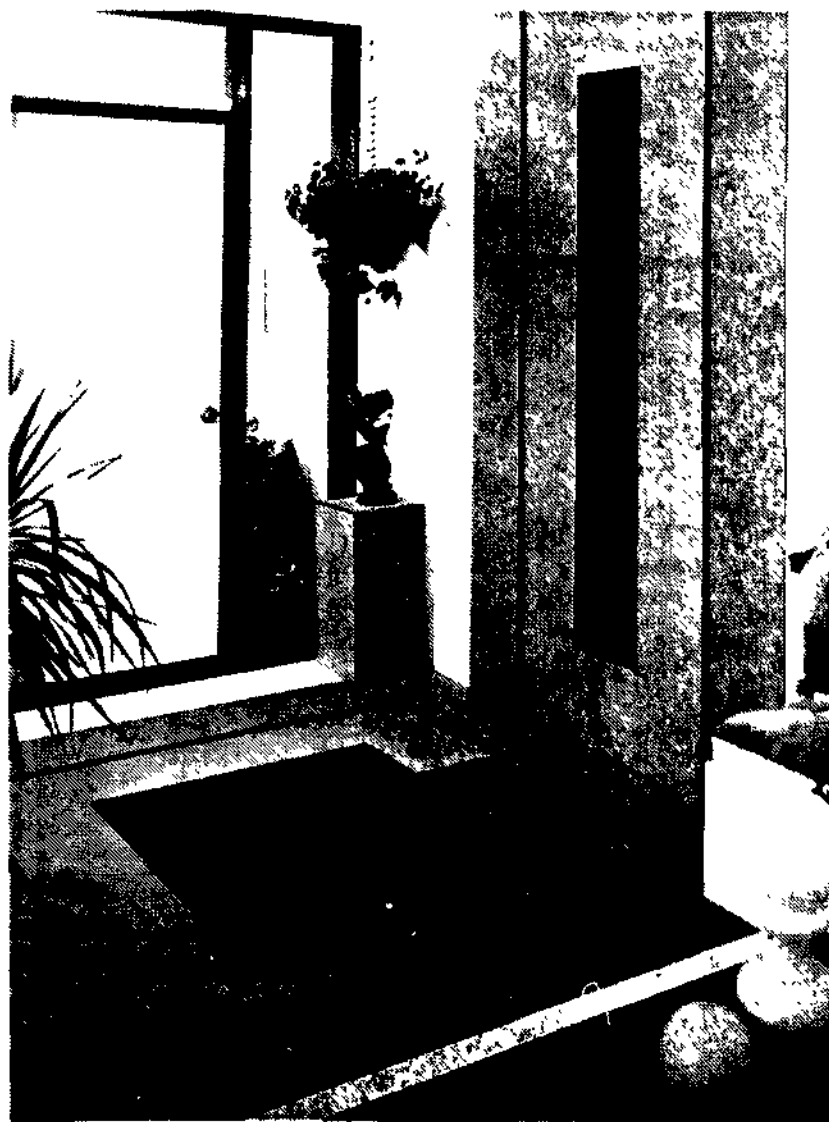

Give him limits. Let him know what behavior is expected from him and set reasonable limits.

"Parents should listen carefully to what their child is really saying, listen for the need he is expressing," Willford said. "React to the need, not to the words. One is quality and the other quantity."

FREE TIME BECOMES a precious thing to the working mother and her child. Psychologists and social workers agree that the quality of that time is more important than the quantity of it.

If You're Buying A Lamp

"WEAR DEVIL" adhesive-backed carpet tiles from Sears are used to create a do-it-yourself graphic in this geometric looking entryway. They're also used to cover the corner pedestal and the bench topped with tasseled pillows, all for an investment of under $50.

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI) — Funny thing about buying a new lamp. You know exactly what kind of lamp you want — until you get to the lamp department and see lamps on tripods, lamps that look like flying saucers, lamps that have everything from milk pails to horse's heads for bases. You see one you like but it's too tall. Or too short.

Finally you see a lamp that looks great in the store. You get it home. It's too short or the light is not spread far enough to illuminate the whole page of reading material — or the darned bulb shines in your eyes while you're trying to read.

Height is one of the primary considerations in lamp selection, say General Electric lighting specialists at Nela Park lighting center here. What is the right height?

THE AUTHORITIES SAY the lower edge of the shade should be at eye level, or about 40 inches above the floor for an average person sitting in a couch or lounge chair. While sitting at a desk or in a straight chair, the eyes generally are 44 to 46 inches above the floor.

Assuming you're buying a lamp to put at the end of the couch, the first thing you want to do is measure the distance from your eye level to the floor. It will probably be close to 40 inches. Next you measure the height of the table. For simplicity assume it's 20 inches. Now you know you need a table lamp which measures about 20 inches from the bottom of the shade to table top.

Consider now the shade. The important dimension here is the width of the shade at the bottom. Lighting specialists recommend that the shade measure 16 to 18 inches at the widest point of the bottom edge.

THE DENSITY OF the shade or degree of light it will transmit depends on your own taste and the reflections of the wall surfaces; and the lamp's intended use. If walls are a light color, then the shade can be light to moderate in density.

If walls are very dark, such as in some paneled rooms, a heavier density would be desirable. Lighter density shades are recommended for reading in bed or for piano lighting.

If the bulb or bulbs are situated under the shade in a base-down position, the usual position, the socket should be even with the bottom of the shade.

If the bulbs are base up or horizontal, the lowest point of the bulb should be no more than three inches above the bottom edge of the shade.

ABOUT THE SIZE of bulbs. The GE specialists recommend a minimum of 150 watts in any single socket lamp used for reading or sewing. Three-way 50-150 watt bulbs add versatility. In lamps with two or more sockets, the total should be no less than 120 watts when sockets are in the base-up or horizontal position, and at least 180 watts when sockets are in a base-down position.

One safety hint: three way bulbs are designed to be operated only in the base-down position. GE engineers recommend against buying fixtures or lamps which burn three-way bulbs horizontally or base-up.

When you get the lamp into your home, put it approximately 20 inches to the right or left of the center of the reading material, in line with the reader's shoulder.

IF YOU ALREADY have table lamps or floor lamps which are more than two inches higher than your eye level, the only answer is to move them a bit to the rear of the user and out of the line of sight.

If lamps already on hand are too short, you may be able to raise shades a few inches with a riser generally available at hardware stores. Other possible solutions are to set the lamp on an auxiliary base such as a block of wood which would be compatible with the design of the lamp, or to place it on a higher table.

Fed Up With Abstract, Youth Take To Ballet

by GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—All the young audiences for the arts aren't tuned in to the rock sound.

Witness, for instance, the packed houses conductor Leonard Bernstein draws for his young people's concerts of the classics. Now the young are on a ballet kick too. Back of it all seems to be the revival of a romantic period in all phases of our culture.

There's the return to the romantic in fashion, revival of what some observers call "the civilized look," actually a recall of the quietly elegant clothes of the 1930s and '40s. "Real" movies like "Love Story" are an instant success with the young. A return to religion also is part of the scene.

Carla Fracci, prima ballerina of the La Scala ballet and now appearing with the American Ballet Theater, figures the whole trend results because the new art forms "speak directly to the audience."

"THEY WANT a story," she said.

"The young are fed up with the abstract."

Mrs. Fracci, her husband, Beppe Menegatti, a theatrical director, were talking about the overwhelming numbers of young people, boys and girls, drawn to the ballet these days.

I'd expressed some amazement about the youth of the audience packed into Lincoln Center's New York State Theater one sparkling Sunday afternoon recently to see Miss Fracci and Erik Bruhn dance the classical "Giselle." The role is one of her most famous. But on a day like that in mid-summer, you'd have guessed that all the young would be at the beach.

The young are coming to the ballet theater not only in the United States but all over Europe. Menegatti said. Revival of so many of the ballets gives them a chance "just to enjoy... no mental fatigue," said Menegatti, recalling that "for the last 35 years you'd have to read the program, ask your friends and read the critics the next day to know what had been on the stage."

Wood St. School Was 'Home' To Golden Wedding Couple

Mr. and Mrs. William Mair

Two generations of the William Mair family have attended Wood Street School in Palatine. Not only that, but Mrs. Mair was a third grade teacher there for years.

The former Dorothy Gibbs and her husband of 50 years, Bill Mair, grew up in Palatine, went to Wood Street School, married and reared their family at 332 N. Benton St. Their children, Ray and Eleanor (now Mrs. Jack Kehr of Palatine), also attended the school.

The golden wedding couple celebrated their long marriage June 27 at an open house and family dinner. Their wedding took place June 29, 1921 in Palatine.

Bill Mair was born 76 years ago in Waterman, Ill. He started at a grade school in Crystal Lake but moved to Palatine and transferred to Wood Street School.

DOROTHY WAS born in Arlington Heights to Mr. and Mrs. Ray Gibbs 71 years ago. Her family soon moved to Palatine where she started school at Wood Street. Both she and Bill attended Palatine High.

Dorothy then went far from home to attain a higher education. She enrolled at the University of New Mexico but later transferred to Knox College at Galesburg. It was not until some years after her marriage that Dorothy began a teaching career — right back at her own grade school. She taught there until retirement.

Bill was a supervisor of country plants for Bowman Dairy Co. He retired in 1963.

For the 50th anniversary, daughter Eleanor and her husband hosted a Sunday afternoon open house at 728 Stuart Lane for 100 friends and relatives of the Mairs. Then the family went to dinner at the Lancer Restaurant in Palatine.

The party was complete with the arrival of son Ray and his family from Littleton, Colo.

Patriotic Wedding Scene

While most Americans were observing Independence Day the weekend of July 4, the Bruno Karkula and junior Richard Glueckert families of Arlington Heights had a second happy occasion to celebrate. In fact, it took precedence over the holiday.

The event was the wedding of Cindy Karkula, 521 S. Reuter Drive, and Rick Glueckert, 514 N. Vail. The couple chose July 3 for their nuptials in Arlington's First United Methodist Church and had the altar decorated with red, white and blue candles in honor of the holiday.

The bridal party also took the patriotic tri-colors for its attire. Eight girls preceded the bride down the church aisle, all gowned in red, white and blue pant dresses. The bodice was of navy blue sheer with puffed sleeves. The pant skirts were fashioned of red, white and blue paisley fabric. The girls all carried nosegays composed of red carnations in the center with white daisies and baby's breath encircling them. The bouquets were tied with blue ribbons.

THE BRIDE'S SISTER, Mrs. Marsha Grout, came from Atlanta, Ga., to be her matron of honor. The seven bridesmaids included the groom's sister, Lisa Glueckert; Arlington Heights friends, and Delta Gamma sorority sisters of the bride from the University of Illinois. Her Arlington friends were Ruth Didio, Cindy Hancy and Betty Klapper. Her sorority sisters were Karen Kuly, Candy Sonnenzi and Jo Anne Fredrikson.

Cindy wore a white organza Empire gown with Victorian neckline, bishop sleeves and chapel train. Lace appliques were scattered on the entire dress. The bride's full-length veil flowed from a small beaded headpiece, and she carried a nosegay of white roses and carnations.

Jim Glueckert was his brother's best man. Groomsman were Jim Kenyon, Riverside; the bride's brother, Jim Karkula; her brother-in-law, Bob Grout; and Arlington friends, Howard Guild, Bruce Conti, Paul Gotsch and Bob Armour.

A RECEPTION FOLLOWED the ceremony, held in the Rolling Meadows Holiday Inn for 250 guests. Mrs. Karkula received in a two-toned peach chiffon pant dress with a white orchid corsage. Mrs. Glueckert appeared in an aqua chiffon gown with a white orchid corsage.

Cindy and Rick left for a five-day honeymoon in Ocho Rios, Jamaica, and are now at home at 1934 E. Algonquin Road, Arlington Heights.

Both are Arlington High School graduates. Cindy will complete her last semester at the University of Illinois, Urbana, in fall. Rick attended Southern Illinois University and is now a student at Worsham College, Chicago, while working for Haire Funeral Home, Arlington Heights. Cindy works at Arlington Park Towers.

Palatine Pair Say 'I Do'

Mr. and Mrs. James Fetke

Graduates of the Palatine High School class of '69 were married June 19, joining Nancy Joy Schrader and James Donald Fetke in double ring rites. Parents of the couple are the Paul Schraders and the Donald Fetkes.

The First Baptist Church of Palatine was decorated with summer flowers and white, yellow and aqua candles for the three o'clock ceremony. The Rev. Charles Chaney performed the same ring ceremony that the bride's parents used in their wedding.

At the organ was Donald Kendrick of St. Philip's Episcopal Church, Palatine. Soloist was David Reiser, choral director at Palatine High School.

GUESTS WERE seated by the brothers of the couple, Jerry Fetke and Doug Schrader.

As the bridal attendants came down the aisle, they were gowned in aqua and white dresses and carried natural-colored baskets filled with white, yellow and aqua daisies. White daisies trimmed the Empire waistline of their gowns, which were styled with an aqua bodice and matching panel down the back of a white skirt. Each of the girls was given a sterling heart-shaped necklace from the bride to wear for the wedding. The girls also wore white lace daisy headpieces with aqua veils made by Mrs. Schrader.

Flower girl Amy Miller, 6, of Latham, Ill., wore a white over blue cotton floor-length dress trimmed with yellow velvet ribbon. She carried a miniature basket of the adult attendants' floral arrangements. Amy is a cousin of the bride, and her gown was made by the bride's mother.

Janice Ptacek of Chicago, a childhood friend of the bride, was maid of honor.

Frank Nicodem Jr., Bride To Work In Mexico City

Although they had a two-week honeymoon at Grand Lake, Colo., newlyweds Shirley Ann and Frank Nicodem Jr. will be going to Mexico City to live. They will work there with the Wycliffe Bible Translators.

Shirley Ann is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bruce Martin of Cincinnati, but she has been living in Glen Ellyn until her June graduation from Wheaton College. She earned her degree in Bible study.

The bridegroom, son of the Frank David Nicodems, 919 S. Elm St., Mount Prospect, was also graduated from Wheaton College in June. His degree is in mathematics and literature.

They were married June 19 in Bethany Chapel, Wheaton. Later there was a reception in the Heritage Room of Edman Chapel of the college.

THE BRIDE wore a white chantilly lace gown with long sleeves, a high neckline and layered hoop skirt. Her shoulder-length veil complemented the formal gown. She added a bit of color to her nosegay bouquet, which combined pink Sweetheart roses with white daisies and baby's breath.

Kathy Lynn Nicodem, the groom's sister, was maid of honor, and David Miles of Allentown, Pa., was best man.

Kathy wore a white flocked-violet gown in a daisy motif over a pink slip. The dress was trimmed with a pink ribbon sash. Her white wide brimmed hat was also trimmed with pink ribbon, and she carried a basket of pink roses, white pompons, white daisies and baby's breath.

There were also four bridesmaids — Anne Steeber, Palatine; Vera Procter, Hoffman Estates; Joanne Schaper, Glendale Heights; and Jean Schrader, Lincoln Ill. Joanne is the groom's sister; Jean is a cousin of the bride.

AS MR. SCHRADER gave his daughter in marriage, she wore a white silk organza over peau de soie gown. Re-embroidered panels of lace were applied on the dress from the scoop neckline to the floor and also down the chapel train. Blue ribbon was laced through the panels down the front of the gown, and a blue bow accented the back of the waistline. The bride also added a bit of the blue Bridesmaids were Deborah Lee Nicodem, the groom's other sister; Georgiana Sue Samuelson of Allegan, Mich., and Becky Ritzmann of Portland, Ore. They wore aqua flocked-violet gowns in the daisy motif, and their gowns and hats were trimmed with aqua ribbon. They carried the same style flowers as the maid of honor.

JAMES L. NICODEM, John B. Martin Jr. and Richard Kipp Martin, brothers of the bridal pair, seated the wedding guests.

Both mothers of the couple wore aqua to match the wedding color scheme. Their dresses both had matching coats.

Magazine Full Of Sewing Ideas

by JOANNE SCHREIBER Do you ever find you've run smack out of ideas? It happens to all of us now and then — and that's why we're tickled to find a new sewing-and-needlework magazine specially written to get us out of our sewing rut.

It's called "1,001 Fashion and Needlecraft Ideas," and it's a sister publication to the familiar "1,001 Decorating Ideas."

Editor Shirley Howard interviewed and photographed TV's attractive Partridge family for the cover story, dressing them in snappy knits with eye-catching trims. A special feature titled "Think Thin, Sew Slim" tells you how to sew up a new figure by selecting slenderizing patterns. Such top designers as Bill Blass, Oscar de la Renta and Pauline Trigere offer tips to the gal who sews-her-own, using designer patterns from major pattern companies.

There are directions aplenty for craft and stitchery projects including some spectacular wall hangings, bezaar gift items and accessories such as hats, bags and belts. For women with growing youngsters, a "sewing for growing" feature offers hints on making clothes that will fit for a couple of seasons. And for those who like to add their own touches to store-bought clothes, there's a story on application featuring ways to dress up plain old jeans and overalls to give them contemporary pizzazz.

Weight Is No Problem 300 Pounds Of Jelly

by WALTER LOGAN NEW YORK (UPI) — Irving Selbst came from such an orthodox Jewish family he didn't see a piece of bacon until he was drafted into the U. S. Army. He was so upset at the sight he went without eating for weeks and wasted way to 200 pounds.

Now he's back up to 300 pounds, the required weight for his role as Big Jelly in a movie he is starring in, but that is no problem since he owns a mid-Manhattan steak and lobster joint known as Louie's. Clothes are no problem either since he is president of the U.S. Pierre Cardin operation.

Big Jelly is a Brooklyn gangster in MGM's movie version of the Jimmy Breslin novel, "The Gang That Couldn't Shoot Straight," a comedy about a bungling, inept batch of desperadoes modeled after some real life, not-so-funny Brooklyn gang wars.

SHOOTING ON THE New York streets took nine weeks out of his career as president of Intercontinental Clothing, the firm he founded in 1966 with John Kronblith and some other clothing men to produce Cardin clothes in the United States. But he was still able to look in on the office weekends.

"It has been hell," he said the other night over some steaks and lobsters at Louie's. "I have to get up at 5 a.m. every day to get to the location on time and then we work till 9 a.m. or so and then I rush to the restaurant where I work until 9 or 10 p.m. at night. As a Brooklyn gangster I couldn't wear Cardin clothes so I had to keep changing."

"My wife Janis won't live in Manhattan so I commute to Great Neck Long Island and then I come to the Cardin office on Saturdays and Sundays."

He munched on a platter of lamb chops as he talked, pausing from time to time to soar upward from his seat to shake hands with well wishers.

BRESLIN, WEARING A sportshirt, stopped by for a minute to chat, as did Jerry Orbach, who is Kid Sally and the gang leader in the film. There were also some buyers from a Cleveland department store and Mike Kellerman, who makes Cardin ties.

It was the clothing business that put Selbst into the movies in the first place. Columbia, which was making the picture "Loving," approached him about contributing some Cardin suits for use in the movie and ended up using both him and the suits. He played George Segal's agent.

He followed that up with a role in "Watermelon Man" in which he played the role of a next door bigot and "Scraping Bottom" in which he played an apartment house manager. Breslin had written about a 400-pound Big Jelly in his gangster story and MGM signed up Selbst before it signed anyone else.

"I COULDN'T MAKE the 400 pounds," he said, returning to his salad which was full of lettuce, tomatoes, avocados, celery and the like and smothered in a rich, gooey, creamy dressing followed by rich, gooey, creamy cheesecake equally full of calories. There had been a few buttery baked potatoes on the side.

His first interest, of course, is clothes and he was curious how the press liked the Cardin fashion show in June at the Men's Fashion Association meeting in Buck Hills Falls, Pa. The answer was that they did — much applause and much favorable comment afterward. He beamed and ate another bite of cheesecake.

The Fall 1971 collection was noted more for new fabrics and color than any change in shape like rust in tweeds and solid, combinations of egg plant, beige and brown in muted herringbone patterns. Black tweed sprinkled with silver-gray and rust were used for knickers for evening. The classic black suit was different. It was shown in silky broadcloth with small dots of silver-gray.

THE HITS OF THE show were the coats and raincoats — herringbone patterns, suedes, denims and solids enriched with fur, lined with sheepskin or trimmed in polished leather. One spectacular raincoat was in brown denim trimmed with matching leather yoke, cuffs and collar, midcalf length.

One suit was a combination of blue, beige and rust but in horizontally wove stripes, three buttons with the wide Cardin lapels and a back center vent. New for all were patch pockets on the sporty business suit. Another suit was in a charcoal gray, beige and brown tweed with a matching topcoat.

There were two lines — the deluxe for men and the boutique collection for the young man. One in the boutique collection was a rib-hugging body-showing "Blouson," which is a short Eisenhower-type jacket in camel colored wool cavalry twill worn with matching slacks tucked into high boots.

The original Cardin designs are adapted by Don Robbie for the American physique and Selbst smiled his appreciation as he dropped a handful of sugar cubes into his after dinner coffee. "Don's sort of a genius, isn't he?" he said.

"SHE JUST GAVE ME a fruitcake (Bob Behling). The scene is from filled with rum and I love her!" yells "Star-Spangled Girl," the Neil Simon Norman Cornell (Harmon Dresser) comedy now being staged at Country Club Theatre in Mount Prospect. right, to his roommate, Andy Hobart

What's a woman to do about sick trees and bushes? Which sprays are safe? Are all pesticides dangerous?

Widespread confusion dominates the garden scene today, as more housewives become aware of pesticide pollution.

Most people realize that DDT is taboo, but what of the host of materials available for killing crabgrasses, knocking out fungus, and splatting mosquitoes, slugs, plant lice, wasps, and all the other pests that roam the garden?

Given a choice, the average person would just as soon select a safe alternative rather than an environmental bludgeon, if she knew one from the other. Most times she doesn't. And the problem is further complicated by the fact that the majority of people do not understand chemical contents, they don't apply chemicals accurately, and some can't or don't read directions.

PLAYING SAFE means not using organo-phosphate or chlorinated hydrocarbon chemicals at all. Among the ranks of these most-dangerous sprays are DDT, DDD, aldrin, chlordane, dieldrin, endrin, heptachlor, kelthane, lindane, methoxychlor, ovex, tedion, thiodan, toxaphene, parathion, malathion. (Reference: The CDC Manual.)

Safe alternatives, according to the Ecology Action Educational Institute, University of California, include the following insecticides: Dormant oil; Per-Guard; pyrethrum, silica gel; tobacco dust; ryania; rotenone; sabadilla; Lime Doom; dried blood meal; Harris roach tablets; Tanglefoot; Thuricide.

Collecting

with Grace Carolyn

I read somewhere that bathtubs came into widespread usage in the United States about 25 years before telephones, and so there was a time when it was possible to take a bath without the possibility of being interrupted by the ringing of the phone.

Both bathtubs and phones are now numbered among the collectibles. Well, actually, I don't know anyone with a whole collection of bathtubs, but if an antique lover happens to have a model 1920 tub complete with Queen Ann legs, he considers himself very lucky, and wouldn't think of exchanging it for a sleek built-in modern fixture. I even saw one such tub at an antique show, painted inside and out with rambling blue morning glories, cherubim and ribbons. It probably weighed a ton, and I wondered how the dealer had got it in the building and who would carry it out. It was one of the first things to be sold, going to the proprietor of a women's clothing shop to be used for display purposes. I've been curious ever since about what was to be displayed!

IN A MAGAZINE of do-it-yourself house projects, I read that a young couple had converted an old bathtub into a settee by sawing it in half and upholstering the inside. Hardly a job to be tackled with the tools in my kitchen drawer, but I assume they had a friend with an acetylene torch. Perhaps they exchanged the second half of their tub for his services.

Much more to my taste is the fad converting old wall phones for home use. In a strictly Early American home, where everything is authentically antique looking, this is an effective device for disguising a modern necessity. The telephone company informs me that it will convert an antique phone for home use if the instrument is adaptable, so that it can really be connected to their lines. If this isn't possible, one may do as a friend did recently. She had her wall-hung kitchen phone installed with the antique wall phone set over it as a decoration, and she reaches the receiver through a door which opens in the bottom half of the old instrument. She even managed to find a telephone book from 1920 from her home town in Wisconsin, listing her parents' names and their ring — two shorts and a long!

SOME ANTIQUE shops specialize in old phones and parts, but the prices, as with almost all antiques, have escalated. A few years ago, I bought two wall phones at auction for $5 each, but I'm sure one could expect to pay as much as $50 for the same thing today, if it is refinished and restored. (The prices of converting it to home use would vary with the amount of work necessary.)

Almost as popular as the wall-type telephones are the not-so-old table models, usually of black bakelite or brass, or a combination of both. These are becoming the "in" thing with decorators, and are especially effective in a '20s setting, along with a cathedral topped radio and a Tiffany lamp. We're riding a wave of nostalgia, but I'm still glad I don't have to clean underneath a Duncan Phyfe bathtub!

46 Acres Of Rail History

Steam engines, old-fashioned streetcars, conductors' badges, faded railroad tickets — they're all on view at the Illinois Railway Museum in Union, about 60 miles northwest of Chicago off the Northwest Tollway and Rte. 20.

The museum — formerly a farmer's field — spreads over 46 acres of rolling countryside. More than 100 items of old-time railroad engines and equipment are displayed; the oldest dates from 1899. Museum members boast that if all the equipment were coupled together into a single train, it would be more than a mile long.

Volunteer members of the Illinois Railway Museum maintain the museum and restore the equipment to its original condition, a process that often takes several years. Membership is open to all and today there are about 50 regular and 500 associate members. Most are from the Chicago area.

Members relocated and restored an old railroad station at Union when the museum was moved to the town in 1965. They've also laid more than three miles of railroad track, and have plans to extend the track right into the center of town.

Today, visitors eager to catch a glimpse of railroad travel in bygone eras throng to the museum for a step into history.

The museum will be open daily through Labor Day, and on weekends through the fall as well.

DuBrow On TV Preminger To Produce TV Movie

by RICK Du BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Notes to watch television by:

The Headliners: Otto Preminger is the latest movie figure to take a crack at television in a major way... He will produce, direct and star in a two-hour motion picture made expressly for ABC-TV, "Open Question," a courtroom drama dealing with a controversial spy trial... Furthermore, says ABC-TV, Preminger has signed Louis Nizer, the prominent trial attorney and author to write the screenplay, which the network describes as "his first such venture for the film medium."

The youngest college president in the nation, Leon Botstein, 23, head of Franciscan College, N.H., reports on his first year in that job on NBC's "Today" next Tuesday...

Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen, who once had a popular television series, is a guest on the same network's "Commentary" program this Sunday... "If You Turn On," an award-winning documentary seen in Los Angeles and concerning narcotics abuse, will be presented for an hour on CBS-TV Aug. 17.

Summer League Baseball Tournament Starts Today

A field of over 80 high school baseball teams will lock horns in a week-long Summer League Tournament in quest of a berth in the state championship game at Comiskey Park, Aug. 8.

Four brackets have been erected with Paddock Area entries of Conant, Forest View, Hersey, Notre Dame, Arlington Heights, Elk Grove and Wheeling all lodged in the fourth division.

In first-round action tonight, Conant will open at Crown, Forest View at Maine South, Notre Dame at Arlington, Elk Grove at Barrington and Evanston at Wheeling. Hersey gets a bye in the first round because Dundee has dropped from the tourney.

Game time for all weekday contests is 6 p.m. with Saturday games slated for 11 a.m.

Evanston, last year's champion, appears to be the team to beat again this season. Wheeling, however, finished atop the Northwest Summer League standings and rates a shot at dethroning the favorites in opening play.

The winner of bracket four will meet the victor of bracket two which includes LaGrange, Willowbrook and Oak Lawn in the tournament's semi-final round on Aug. 3.

The third division winners will take on the first bracket victors in the other semi-final showdown with the conquerors of each game advancing to White Sox Park for the title finale.

All teams will use the free-substitution rule that permits a pinch-hitter or pinch-runner at any time in the game.

Paddock Golf Tourney List Swells

Next month's Paddock Publications Inter-League Handicap Golf Tournament will have the largest field in its 21-year history.

The tourney, set for Aug. 15 at Buffalo Grove Golf Club, so far has received 31 letters of commitment from men's twilight golf leagues throughout the Her-ald area.

Golden Acres Country Club in Roselle and Rob Roy Golf Club in Prospect Heights presently have the largest number of leagues entered at six each. Right behind are hosting Buffalo Grove and Old Orchard with four each.

This year's prize list is larger than in past tourneys. Besides the large traveling trophy which goes to the sponsor of the winning team, the first-place team will receive four handsome silver Revere bowls.

Second and third-place finishers will be awarded trophies. The team that ends up in fourth place will be given golf passes to Buffalo Grove.

Every golfer will receive a complimentary golf ball, a bag of tees courtesy of Northern Illinois Gas Co. and a Paddock Tournament bag tag.

All teams that are in first place as of this Saturday are eligible if they compete at golf courses located within the area served by the 10 Paddock daily newspapers, plus other leagues with 50 per cent (or more) membership living within this same area.

The deadline for entering the tourney is Aug. 7. The fee this year has been reduced to $24 per team.

In the past the tourney has taken nearly the entire Sunday before a winner could be determined. However, this year the tourney will be speeded up by teeing off foursomes on both the front and back nines at the same time. This should greatly lessen the amount of time it formerly took to decide the championship.

The first tournament teeoff time will be at approximately 10 a.m. Exact times will be published twice before Aug. 15 in the Herald sports pages.

These are the leagues that have entered the tourney:

Golden Acres — City Products, Chemplex, Hoffman Estates Men, Parker-Hannifin, Twinbrook YMCA and Western Electric; Rob Roy — St. Alphonsus, St. James, Fastex, Universal Oil, General

Die Mold and Des Plaines Twilight; Buffalo Grove — Buffalo Grove Men, Sara Lee, Kleinschmidt and Cook Electric; Old Orchard — Arlington VFW, Scratch, St. Colette and Northwest Suburban Manufacturers; Palatine Hills — Union Oil Monday and Tuesday and American Can; Mount Prospect — Monday, Tuesday and Friday Twilight; Arlington — Arlington Elks and Friday Twilight; Bartlett Hills — Roselle; White Pines — Tioga VFW; and Thunderbird — Arlington Twilight.

SPORTSMANSHIP LEARNED AT HOME

Dear Sirs:

There has been much written as to the merits of Little League baseball for boys.

Good sportsmanship, as with most facets of child rearing, begins in the home. Most umpires will testify that poor sportsmanship and yelling of degradations comes not as much from managers and coaches as from spectators.

As one man so aptly put it, "The whole is equal to the sum of the parts," but this doesn't just apply to the boys, managers and coaches but to every father, mother, aunt, uncle, grandmother, grandfather or other person interested enough to attend the games and thus be an example of good sportsmanship.

Mrs. Jean Ezze

Excellent point! We feel most managers understand the purpose of Little League and the qualities it seeks to teach, and that most of them are sports-

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two weeks ago, Lee Trevino was throwing his cap in the air, laughing all the time and knocking them dead.

He was the most talked-about figure in the country, maybe even in three countries, following his British Open victory, which came right after equally impressive wins in the United States and Canadian opens.

The world was Trevino's oyster.

People who didn't know a bogey from a golf cart were talking about this incredible Mexican superman, Lee Trevino. His picture was every place you looked. In every newspaper, on every TV station and on both Time and Newsweek covers simultaneously.

Lee Trevino said he wanted to become the biggest money winner of all time in a single season, and he thought he could because of a tip Jack Nicklaus had given him six months ago. Nicklaus had told him not to fret about anything because his game was good enough to beat any course and any player.

"That word of encouragement changed my life," Trevino announced to one and all only a couple of weeks back. "It stopped me from being the nervous character I was before."

Not quite.

Here it is only two weeks later and Trevino is nervous again. Maybe more so than before.

He was far from his old happy-go-lucky carefree self at last week's Westchester Classic. He didn't pull any toy snakes on anybody and he didn't laugh much. He didn't make the cut and was glad he didn't just so he could get away from people.

They were bugging him crazy.

Lee Trevino, who did a great job of accepting the bows, suddenly discovered there can also be some painful bruises. Most important of all perhaps he discovered there's one precious thing money can't always buy.

Privacy. Sweet old-fashioned privacy.

If he cares to know a little more about the subject all he has to do is ask people like Frank Sinatra, Arnold Palmer, Joe DiMaggio, Elizabeth Taylor or Willie Mays about it sometime.

"I don't have any time to myself," Trevino said before checking out of the Westchester. "I haven't seen my kids in 13 weeks. I'm just doing too many things."

What things?

"I guess I'm just a nice guy," said Trevino, who is right about that because he is.

"When somebody comes around and says 'We'd like to do this, we'd like to do that' I'm always the kind of guy who says how much time do you need? They say 4 or 5 minutes, 10 minutes and it drags on to 30 minutes and I go ahead and do the thing."

Sports Editor Bob Frisk is on vacation. His "Kicks! It Around" column will resume upon his return.

"I do one right after the other and I want to because the press, the people that write, have always been nice to me. So have the people of television and radio, and without them I wouldn't be where I am today. But I just hope they understand I'm not gonna do as many things in the future simply because it takes too much time away from me and I'd like to have a little privacy of my own."

Trevino talked about some of the phone calls he had gotten.

"You get calls from people who don't even know you," he said. "They say you don't know us and we don't know you but we think you're the greatest." They call at midnight and at one in the morning. You get the phone cut off and then they come up and keep knocking at your door. When I was at the Western Open some kids knocked at my door all day long. I would've gone off someplace but there was no place to move, no place to go."

Lee Trevino has gone somplax now. He has gone fishing. It doesn't matter to him whether he catches many or not, at least nobody keeps telling him he's the greatest all the time. He's tired of hearing it.

Joe DiMaggio happened to be at the Westchester Classic as public relations consultant for the Hughes Sports Network which televised the event.

The man designated baseball's greatest living player was besieged for his autograph more often than Trevino at Westchester, but of course he's more used to it and that's why he copes with it better.

Somebody asked DiMaggio whether he knew how it felt to be in the same spot Trevino is in now, meaning way down after having been way up such a short time before.

"You bet I do," Joe D. said. "I think it was in 1938. I had held out for some time. I was hitting about .500 the first few weeks of the season and when I got back to New York I was booed. I guess people thought it wasn't right for me to hold out. They didn't know the man I had to deal with, Ed Barrow. Lemme tell you, he was tough. The year after I hit in those 56 consecutive games you know what he offered me: A $5,000 cut."

Joe DiMaggio shook his head at the recollection.

"I'll say one thing about this game though," he said looking at the TV screen where Arnold Palmer was making an approach shot. "Nobody ever gets booed in golf."

COMMENTS PADDOCK OLYMPICS

Dear Sir:
I attended the Paddock Olympics at Elk Grove High School with my son who was participating for the Palatine Park District team. I was really amazed at the fluent and well-organized manner in which the Olympics were run. It certainly was an improvement over the last couple of years and I think the people responsible should be recognized.
Mrs. James Wilson
Palatine

The Elk Grove Park District, their leaders and supervisors, all deserve a standing ovation for the show they put on. Long hours were spent in constructing the large scoreboard and preparing the event cards, both of which were instrumental in informing and controlling the record 15 park districts that turned out for the two-day program. Lively Junior High Coach Ron Lansdown and Elk Grove Superintendent of Recreation Rich Ludovinsky, take a bow. — Jim Cook

PITCHERS NEED MORE REST

Dear Sirs:
The White Sox are asking for trouble by pitching their best two starters, Wilbur Wood and Tommy John, with only two days' rest. They have pulled this several times now and have gotten away with it so far, but it will catch up with them by the end of the season.

Any pitcher can do this a few times, especially if the weather is warm to keep their arms loose. But they cannot keep pitching that often for long or they could develop such sore arms that their careers could be in jeopardy.

If this weren't the case, why have so many teams for so many years habitually given pitchers four days' rest between starts?

History has shown what happens when managers try to push their luck with their best pitchers. One of the main reasons for the Cubs' incredible collapse two years ago was that their top three pitchers were worn out by September. The same thing happened to the Phillies with Chris Short and Jim Bunning in 1964 when they blew a big lead.

Chuck Tanner (Sox manager) and Johnny Sain (pitching coach) could damage a couple of great talents if they don't wake up soon.

A concerned Sox fan
There are two schools of thought on this and only time will tell if the Sox' gamble will work. My feeling is that it will. Sain has been around a long time and has had great success in handling pitchers. He knows what he's doing. — Larry Everhart

Dear Sirs:
When does the high school football season start? We want to plan our weekends in September around the Mid-Suburban game.

Wheeling, Peter Stops Fenton, 6-1

Wheeling is tuned and primed for the Summer League Baseball Tournament which will get underway tonight. The Wildcats closed the regular season with a convincing 6-1 victory over Fenton behind another stout pitching performance by Bob Peter.

Peter, who fired a no-hitter his last time out, had his string snapped quickly as Fenton's lone run of the game was a first-inning home run.

Peter, however, settled down and allowed Fenton just two hits the rest of the way. His teammates, meanwhile, scored at least once in each of the first five innings.

Bert Newman earned the equalizer in the bottom of the first when he singled, stole second and third, and tallied on another base hit by Dave Giles.

Wheeling took the lead for good in the second when John Theriault drew a pass, moved up on a passed ball and tallied on Newman's second straight hit.

A deuce went up on the Wheeling half of the scoreboard in the third as Dan Tonnancour walked, Giles was hit by a pitch and both advanced on a wild pitch. Tony Schuld followed with a bunt that was thrown away at first, permitting two Wildcats to cross.

Single markers in the fourth and fifth closed the scoring as Jim Kass was hit by a pitch, took second on a wild throw and scored on another error.

Schuld reached on a boot to start the fifth which blossomed into a run when Theriault labeled a single to left. Both Tonnancour and Theriault turned in defensive gems in the outfield to preserve Peter's masterpiece.

The Beetle is no longer the best economy car on the road

THE SUPER BEETLE IS.

What's the Super Beetle?
Just about the most advanced economy car ever built.

For one thing, it has almost twice the trunk space of the old Volkswagen Beetle.

It gives you a smoother ride and a shorter turning radius than the Beetle. Flow-through ventilation and wall-to-wall carpeting.

It even has a longer lasting, more powerful engine than the old Beetle.

In fact, the Super Beetle has 90 things no Beetle ever had.

Arlington, Kolari Handle Hersey, 8-3

Arlington and Hersey met in a Northwest Suburban Summer League game Wednesday at the Huskies' diamond and the Cardinals, aided by extra base hits, Huskie errors and some steady pitching, rolled to victory, 8-3.

The Huskies touched Rick Kolari for a run in the first and two in the third before the Cardinal hurler settled down and blanked them the rest of the way.

Arlington took the lead in the sixth with a two-run uprising. John Dillon led off with a walk, stole second and went to third on the throw by the catcher.

Dave Kubik reached on a fielder's choice and Kolari singled in Dillon and moved Kubik to third. He scored on a sacrifice fly by Brian Hogan. These two runs along with single tallies in the third and fifth innings made the score 4-3.

The Cardinals padded their lead in the seventh with a four-run outburst. Dan Cunningham tripled in Bob Harth who had singled. John Dillon's fielder's choice scored Cunningham. Then Kevin Donahue doubled in Dillon. Kolari followed with a run-scoring triple.

Hersey scored first in the initial inning on a triple by Dave Zare and a fielder's choice by Al Weichers.

Two unearned runs scored in the third when Kolari's pickoff attempt failed. He allowed five hits, two walks and fanned three.

Steve Kuebler was the losing pitcher with Steve Heldt relieving late in the game.

Elk Grove Triumphs Behind Streich

Bob Streich dazzled Barrington for seven full innings in hurling Elk Grove to a well-earned 2-0 triumph in the final regularly scheduled Northwest Summer League game.

Streich allowed only three hits, walked just one and struck out a pair while baffling the hard-hitting Broncos.

The Grenadiers, meanwhile, supported Streich's pitching gem with a two-run spurt in the fifth inning. With one out, Mark Workman was hit by a pitch.

Elk Grove begins tournament action

tonight against this same Barrington outfit at the latter's home field beginning at 6 p.m.

Miller Classic Set For Aug. 8

Eight Chicago area and Indiana drivers have turned in signed entries for the Miller High Life International 250-lap classic for USAC late-model stock cars on Sunday, Aug. 8 at the Wisconsin International Raceway's fast one-half mile tri-oval in Kaukauna, Wis.

Auto race director Joe Van Daalwyk indicated that the Windy City drivers are among more than 30 who have signed up for the event, which is expected to pay a prize purse ranging in five figures.

Dave Whitcomb of Valparaiso, Ind., currently fighting for the lead in the USAC point chase, heads the Indiana-Illinois entries. Others are Bay Darnell, Deerfield, Illinois; Larry Berwanger, Gary; George Rondelli, Chicago; Dick Beinitich, Prairie View, Ill.; Ed Hoffman, Niles; Sal Tovella, Addison; and Rich Oertel, Palatine.

Van Daalwyk also received signed commitments from Roger McCluskey of Tucson, Ariz., defending USAC stock car king; Norm Nelson of Racine, three time USAC stock car champ; Dan White of Keokuk, Iowa; twice USAC stock car titlist and Butch Hartman, South Zanesville, Ohio. All will be in 1969-70-71 American made, steel-topped cars.

Nelson won the 200 lap race on May 23 but not before he'd had a tough battle with Whitcomb, White and Verlin Eaker of Cedar Rapids, Iowa. The Great Dane knocked nearly eight minutes off the track record set a year earlier by teammate McCluskey.

A victory for Bowsher in the 250-lapper could earn 250 points and put him well on his way toward his first USAC stock car title. The talented Ohio driver has already won six major stock car races on the USAC circuit including the "Miller 200" at Wisconsin State Fair Park July 11.

Van Daalwyk stated that the fastest 24 qualifiers would start the race.

Practice and time trials will be from 10 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. with competitive racing set to start promptly at 2 p.m., central daylight saving time.

Tickets purchased in advance by mail are $4 if postmarked before the advance ticket sale deadline at midnight, Sunday, Aug. 1. After that, tickets will cost $5 each. Tickets for children 12 years or younger are $2 if purchased before the Aug. 1 and $2 if purchased after the deadline.

Ticket orders should include money order to cover the cost of tickets with a self-addressed, stamped envelope to speed up handling and mailing. All orders should be addressed to Wisconsin International Raceway, R.R. 3, Kaukauna, Wis. 54130.

Funds Granted For Netters

Chicago Tennis Patrons, Inc. today announced it is accepting applications from financially needy high school senior and college tennis players for a number of college scholarships made possible by the Sheehan Memorial Scholarship Fund.

In making the announcement, Alfred S. Alschuler, Jr., president of the Chicago Tennis Patrons, noted Sheehan Memorial Scholarships have been awarded to a number of tennis players in each of the past few years. The only requirements for eligibility are financial need, scholastic eligibility to enter or remain in college and a continuing interest in the game of tennis. Ability is not a prerequisite.

The Sheehan Memorial Scholarship Fund was created in memory of Tom and Mike Sheehan, two top young tennis prospects from Chicago who were killed in a boating accident several years ago.

Application forms for these scholarships may be obtained from the Tennis Patrons office, 130 North Franklin, Chicago, Illinois 60606.

American Derby Saturday's Feature

It was in 1883 that a group of the elite of Chicago founded the Washington Park Jockey Club. It was headed by Lieutenant General Phil H. Sheridan, who insisted that the feature race at the new track at 61st and Cottage Grove Avenue be named the American Derby.

This same American Derby will have its 61st running Saturday at Arlington Park for a purse of $125,000 added. Quite a jump in purse value from the $12,000 gross that was offered for the inaugural running.

This year's edition of the American Derby is reportedly the richest purse offering for a turf event in the midwest.

When nominations closed last week, a total of 22 three-year-olds were made eligible for the local classic, a mile-and-an-eighth event to be raced on the grass.

Such sophomores of national repute as Calumet Farm's Gleaming; William A. Levin's Bold Reason; Hillsdale Stable's Dr. Knighton; John M. Olin's Northfield; Greenbrier Stable's Mr. Pow Wow and Betty Sechrest and Charles Fritz's Vegas Vic will appear as definite starters.

The American Derby was the first of America's great thoroughbred races to earn recognition, even before the Kentucky Derby.

Such names of the American turf as Volante, Spokane, Rey el Santa Anita, Mate, Gusto, Whirlaway, Alsab, Citation, Ponder, Native Dancer, Swaps, Round Table, T. V. Lark, Tom Rolfe, Buckpasser and Damascus all graced the winner's circle in runnings of the American Derby.

Bold Reason, Gleaming and Northfields — one, two, three in last Saturday's $56,400 Lexington Handicap at Aqueduct (N.Y.) Race Course — are scheduled to renew their rivalry in Saturday's event at Arlington Park.

In the Lexington, a mile-and-a-sixteenth event, Bold Reason scored a three-length decision over Gleaming while Northfields was another half-length back.

Gleaming, is a grass specialist with consecutive triumphs in the Long Branch, Leonard Richards and Lamp-lighter Handicaps.

Bold Reason, before his win in the Lexington, won the Hollywood Derby at Hollywood Park (Calif.) July 3, defeating Jim French and Triple Bend.

Reggie Cornell, the transplanted Canadian who has guided the Calumet Farm since taking over the head conditioner's role, will be making his second trip of the season to the local area. He won the $100,000 added Pontiac Grand Prix here last month with Calumet's Son Ange.

Bold Reason is a sophomore son of Hail to Reason - Lalun, by Djedjah. Gleaming is a homebred Herbager-A Gleam, by Blenheim II colt.

Mr. Pow Wow, owned by the father-and-son partnership of Benjamin and Jordan Sims, heads the list of local favorites.

Mr. Pow Wow was the winner of his last start here July 3, the $35,000 added Round Table Handicap. He defeated Vegas Vic and List. His winning time for the mile and a sixteenth was 1:43 2/5. In 15 lifetime starts, Mr. Pow Wow has won seven races and accounted for purse earnings of $93,270.

Demolition Derby Set

Santa Fe Speedway will host its third demolition derby for 1971 this Friday, July 30. Headlining team events, the July 30 card features woman's powder puff races, sportsman races, a "double o" race and the spectator races. Activities begin at 8:30 p.m.

"Destruction night" events — as demolition derby races are termed — feature eight teams consisting of a quartet of auto wreckers on each side. Teams compete in elimination-basis competition until only the victors remain. In demolition derby competition, anything can happen — cars go backwards, fly through the infield, crash into opposing cars, impede the progress of another car similar to an offensive lineman in football.

The first car to complete eight laps around the lay oval is the winner. Usually, most of the other autos end up half demolished, smoking and steaming in the infield.

Woman's powder puff races provides "back seat female stock car drivers" a chance to show off.

Santa Fe Speedway presents stock car races each Saturday and Sunday night at 8:30 p.m. and 8:00 p.m., respectively. American Motorcycle Association-sanctioned cycling programs are held every Wednesday evening at 8:30 p.m.

The speedway is located at 91st and Wolf Road.

Spectator Racing At Santa Fe Track

Spectator racing, a Santa Fe Speedway innovation last year which has been presented on Sunday night, will now be featured on Saturday night as well.

The 30 or so off-the-street automobiles manned by completely untrained drivers will appear Saturday and Sunday night. Starting time for the Saturday program is 8:30 p.m. while the Sunday racing card begins at 8 p.m. Time trials precede the first event by one hour.

Illini Frosh Sets Records

Susan Sea, a 20-year-old freshman at the University of Illinois, shattered the world records for both men and women in the Class IV 75-meter medley in the swimming competition of the Pan American Wheelchair Games Wednesday.

Miss Sea, who hails from Clarendon, Ill., covered the three legs—backstroke, breaststroke and freestyle in 1:15.8. That easily bettered the old standard of 1:27.4 set by Mary Gobbs of England two years ago.

It also broke the men's world mark, 1:18.5, which Octavius Morgan of Jamaica, the host country, set 20 minutes earlier.

SOME BIG NEWS.
FOLLOWED BY SOME BIG, BIG NEWS.

We, at American Motors, announced some big news on July 19. A profit of more than $1 billion dollars. For the first nine months of our fiscal year. That's a lot of money. More, in fact, than many big corporations earn in a full year. What's leading to our success can be summed up this way. We signed in a year when automotive sales were sagging. Our domestic unit retail sales of passenger cars (Gremlin, Hornet, Javelin, Matador, Ambassador) and Jeep vehicles increased by 7 per cent over last year. Net sales of AM General Corporation, a subsidiary, increased by more than 20 million dollars. (AM General is one of the world's largest producers of tactical vehicles). Including the increases, our net sales for the nine months were up 105 million dollars. And with these increases, our sales are running at an annual rate very near 1.5 billion dollars. Naturally, we had some good people pulling for us. 23,000 employees in this country and many thousands abroad. And we had a good number of good people selling and servicing our cars and Jeep vehicles through 3,300 dealerships from coast-to-coast. Chances are you met some of them. But if you didn't, chances are even better that you will in the 1972 car year. Which brings us to the big, big news. On August 11, 1971, we will announce something special for the new car year. Something we know every new car buyer has wanted to see for years. And something which, our profit prophets tell us, will have us back next year with more big news.

Can you find the Volkswagen hidden in this picture?

If you can, you'll make us very sad. Because we've troubled ourselves no end to hide it from you. Our quest for the invisible Volkswagen took us all the way to Turin, Italy. Where we asked the famous Ghia Studios to design us a sporty Italian body. They did. Their drawings clutched tightly in hand, we secretly prowled about Europe for the best coach builder we could find. Success. To the Karmann Coachworks of Osnabruck we handed over Ghia's sketches with the injunction: "Make it beautiful." (Or else.) They did. They welded. And burnished. And sculpted. And sanded. And painted. Until they had shaped in steel what Ghia had shaped in pencil. Smug in the knowledge that nobody could ever mistake this beautiful car for a Volkswagen, we made it a Volkswagen. By concealing our air-cooled engine in back. (For better traction.) And making it go about 26 miles on just one gallon. Then we gave this Volkswagen its final disguise: We named it the Karmann Ghia.

... Without Losing Your Jersey

by IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — George Ratterman, a quarterback for Notre Dame and later the Cleveland Browns, likes to gibe himself. "My great distinction in football is that I played behind two prominent quarterbacks, Johnny Lujack in college and Otto Graham in pro ball," says Ratterman. "At Cleveland, actually, Otto and I divided the job — I played all week and he played on Sunday."

Ratterman has another distinction. He is an ex-athlete who did not disintegrate upon retirement. During his football career (which also included years with the Buffalo Bills, New York Yanks and Montreal Alouettes) Ratterman prepared for when he would no longer be tread upon by linemen.

"Most professional athletes begin to think about their future only toward the end of their playing days," says Ratterman. "That's a dangerous way to operate."

Ratterman got a law degree and entered politics (was a Kentucky sheriff) upon football retirement. He also has been a football color man on television and currently is vice-president of Pioneer Western Corp., a mutual fund company.

But he said that, while he successfully made the transition, even many athletes aware of the need for financial security after their playing days are often prime targets for being hoodwinked in business. Ratterman said that athletes generally are introverted, near-sighted, isolated, naive and susceptible, having been coddled, sheltered and inflated.

"They invest not only their name, but their money, too," he said. "Athletes too often fall for some so-called business agent's spiel and end up in worse shape than when they started."

"Les Josephson of the Rams was describing how he was going to clean up in some kind of shopping-center deal. I listened and there was no way he was going to come out ahead. I guess he'll have to get taken once or twice to find out for himself."

Ratterman suggested that athletes be very careful about their agents, and mentioned the Pat Summerall Advisors as a trustworthy management outfit, one of a new breed not primarily interested in "ripping off" the athlete.

Ratterman himself had a difficult go at first in preparing for his future. In 1960, when he was with New York, he tried to get experience in radio and television. Ted Collins, the Yanks' owner, heard about it and said he'd help.

"He was Kate Smith's agent, the top agent in the business," said Ratterman. "I was really excited." Month after month, Ratterman waited. "I just wanted experience, not necessarily anything lucrative," said Ratterman. But Collins would tell him, "Haven't lined anything up yet."

"I couldn't understand it," said Ratterman. Then Ratterman caught on with a small New Jersey radio station, "Collins discouraged it," said Ratterman. "I found out why. He thought that radio and TV would interfere with football and shorten my career."

Ratterman demanded to be traded the next season and went to Montreal, where part of his contract stipulated that he get an apprenticeship in the brokerage firm run by an Alouette owner.

Others haven't been as far-seeing or as fortunate. Marion Motley, for example, a Cleveland teammate of Ratterman's, "tried a restaurant business and some other things," said Ratterman, "and lost his shirt. I hear he's a mailman now."

Times have changed drastically for athletes. Ratterman, for example, signed a pro contract for $11,000, top price in 1946. He made about $175,000 in his 10-year career. Minuscule sums compared to some of those of today. Players have just that much more to invest, and to lose. Football economics were so unstable in Ratterman's day that one NFL team went broke in midseason of 1952. Pay checks were at best periodic and, when a messenger rushed onto the practice field one day, Ratterman says Coach Jimmy Phelan stopped practice. "All right, boys," he said. "One lap around the field and then head for the nearest bank."

Then, too, notes Ratterman, athletes are not always financial wizards. He remembers one tackle who was told by the general manager that he had had a fine year and his salary was being raised by a third. "Oh, no, you don't," the tackle objected. "Either raise it by a fourth or I quit."

Rockford Road Rally To Have Three Classes

ROCKFORD — There will be three classes of competition in "Midnight Madness IV," the annual night road rally staged by Blackhawk Valley Region of Sports Car Club of America.

This will be the first year for a new class called "Seat of the Pants." S.O.P. is a relatively new class and it rapidly is gaining popularity. Entrants who compete in S.O.P. will be allowed to use only their car odometer, a wristwatch with a second hand and pencil and paper. You literally run the rally by the "seat of your pants."

The other two classes of competition will be Equipped and Unequipped. Equipped will be an open class and Unequipped will be limited to entrants using rally tables, slide rules and 1/10th-reading odometers.

Final determination of which class cars compete in will be made by the committee in charge.

The rally will be held Saturday, July 31, starting from the Farm and Fleet of Rockford parking lot at 4725 W. State St. (Business U.S. 20 on the far west side of Rockford, just east of the Robin Drive-In Theater).

The rally will be a straight time-speed-distance event, and the first car will be considered off at 7:31 p.m. All contestants will be required to check in with officials between 8:30 and 7 p.m. and there will be a drivers meeting prior to the start.

The rally will end at a restaurant in the Rockford area. It will take approximately four hours to run and there will be six to 10 "legs," divided into two sections. There will be a 3-minute rest stop between sections.

Entry fee will be $4 for B.V.R. members and $5 for non-members. Trophies will be presented to the top three driver-navigator teams in each class, or the top 12½ per cent of the total entry in each class. All entrants will receive dash plaques.

Pre-registration is urged, since the field will be limited to the first 100 entries. Kit Freese, 1407 Vassar, Rockford, 61103, is the registrar. Steve Nesbit, 316 W. Walnut Ave., Freeport, Ill., 61033, is the rallymaster and Don Blankenship, 358 Ogilby Rd., Rockford, 61102, is B.V.R.'s rally chairman.

Richard and David Snyder, brothers from Racine, Wis., won the 1970 Equipped title, while B.V.R. member Jerry Borgelt of Rockford and Dave Kuhlman of Valparaiso Ind., were the Unequipped winners. Last year was the first time the event had separate classes for cars with special rally equipment and for cars without.

Per Hans (cq) and Beckie Romnes of Madison, Wis., were the overall winners in the first two "Midnight Madness" events in 1969.

Soccer Match For Palatine

The Palatine Celtics intermediate soccer team, ages 10 through 13, has been invited to play in an exhibition game Saturday prior to an international match between Hannover of Germany and Leon of Mexico at Hanson Stadium in Chicago.

The Celtics' game will start at 5:15. Their opponents will be the Northwest Kickers, members of the same league with Palatine during the past spring season — the Young Sportsman's League.

The exhibition is being sponsored by West Landt Sports Store in Evanston. Palatine finished first and the Kickers second in league competition.

Our Business Philosophy

A strong automobile dealership cannot be built overnight. Nor can it be built on the basis of deals or gimmicks or price. A customer may come in once because the dealership was recommended or is near by. But, he has to be pleased with the way he is treated or he does not come back.

No Changes In VFW Golf

There was no change in standing among the first seven teams in the Arlington VFW Golf League following play last Monday night at Old Orchard. Kolman Plumbing did gain six points on the league leaders with a one-sided 19-5 win over the Kehe, Foy & Snelten team, but still trail Drake Decorators by 24 points. The third-place Cake Box team failed to pick up any ground as they were nosed out by the league leaders 13-11.

Darryl Burkett, playing the back nine, carded a one-over par 35 to take low gross for the evening while Tom Johann seems to have gotten his game under control as he captured low net, firing a 38-32.

Some may call it a prestigious sporting event, but Chicagoland's own recent Western Open Golf Tournament got the cold shoulder treatment as far as television coverage was concerned.

An on-again, off-again attitude taken by the powers that be in the Professional Golfers Association (PGA) may have spelled an excellent gate at the Olympia Fields Country Club, but the avid fans who couldn't afford the $6 or so to get through the main gate at the exclusive layout had to turn to radio.

On the heels of the British Open, with "Super Mex" Lee Trevino the darling of the fans, interest renewed in a possible telecast of the Western. By then, it was too late. Hopefully, more long-range thinking may allow us to watch a telecast of next year's classic.

It's fantastic how well television has showed its stuff at being able to present a golf tournament. Especially the ABC network, with frontliners such as Chris Schenkel, Byron Nelson and Bud Palmer providing a bright, vivid, accurate description of what's happening on the links.

Doug Ford, the veteran golfer who played in the Western at Olympia Fields, had an interesting opinion about today's brand of golf and the ever-increasing galleries that follow the golfer from hole to hole. According to Ford—who confessed that he was "a Spiro Agnew man" as far as television is concerned—the young golfers on the tournament trail today are not consistent, and are glorious one day and unheard from the next.

Ford contended that all those people who show up to watch the tournaments are not really fans of the game, but are "television nuts," out to catch a glimpse of the guy who sunk the 40-foot putt on the tube the previous weekend.

Well, maybe so. But the man who pays his $6 to see his TV golf star has every right in the world to do so. And, who knows...perhaps he'll become an avid fan, thanks to television.

The latest feature (call it a gimmick, if you want) of televised golf tournaments is the use of the "shotgun" microphone. It's this piece of equipment...highly sensitive and directional, that allows a TV crewman to point a mike in the direction of a golfer a good number of yards away and to catch the golfer's comments.

There's always the danger of pointing a microphone in a live telecast at a guy who's just let go with a vicious slice or hook off the tee, but television's bravery at taking the chances is most admirable.

Golfers like Trevino, who seems to be constantly talking, wise-cracking, and discussing everything under the sun (including golf), make this shotgun-microphone feature quite something. Of course, the golfers know that a match is being televised and I surely wouldn't bet that some of the comments we'll hear in the future via the shotgun aren't aimed at the television commentators or the viewing audience.

Maybe we'll see the live microphone pickup at other sporting events. I find it hard to imagine Channel 9's Cub network aiming a live mike at Leo Durocher and the Chicago bench during a game, especially if the Cubs are in a tight jam.

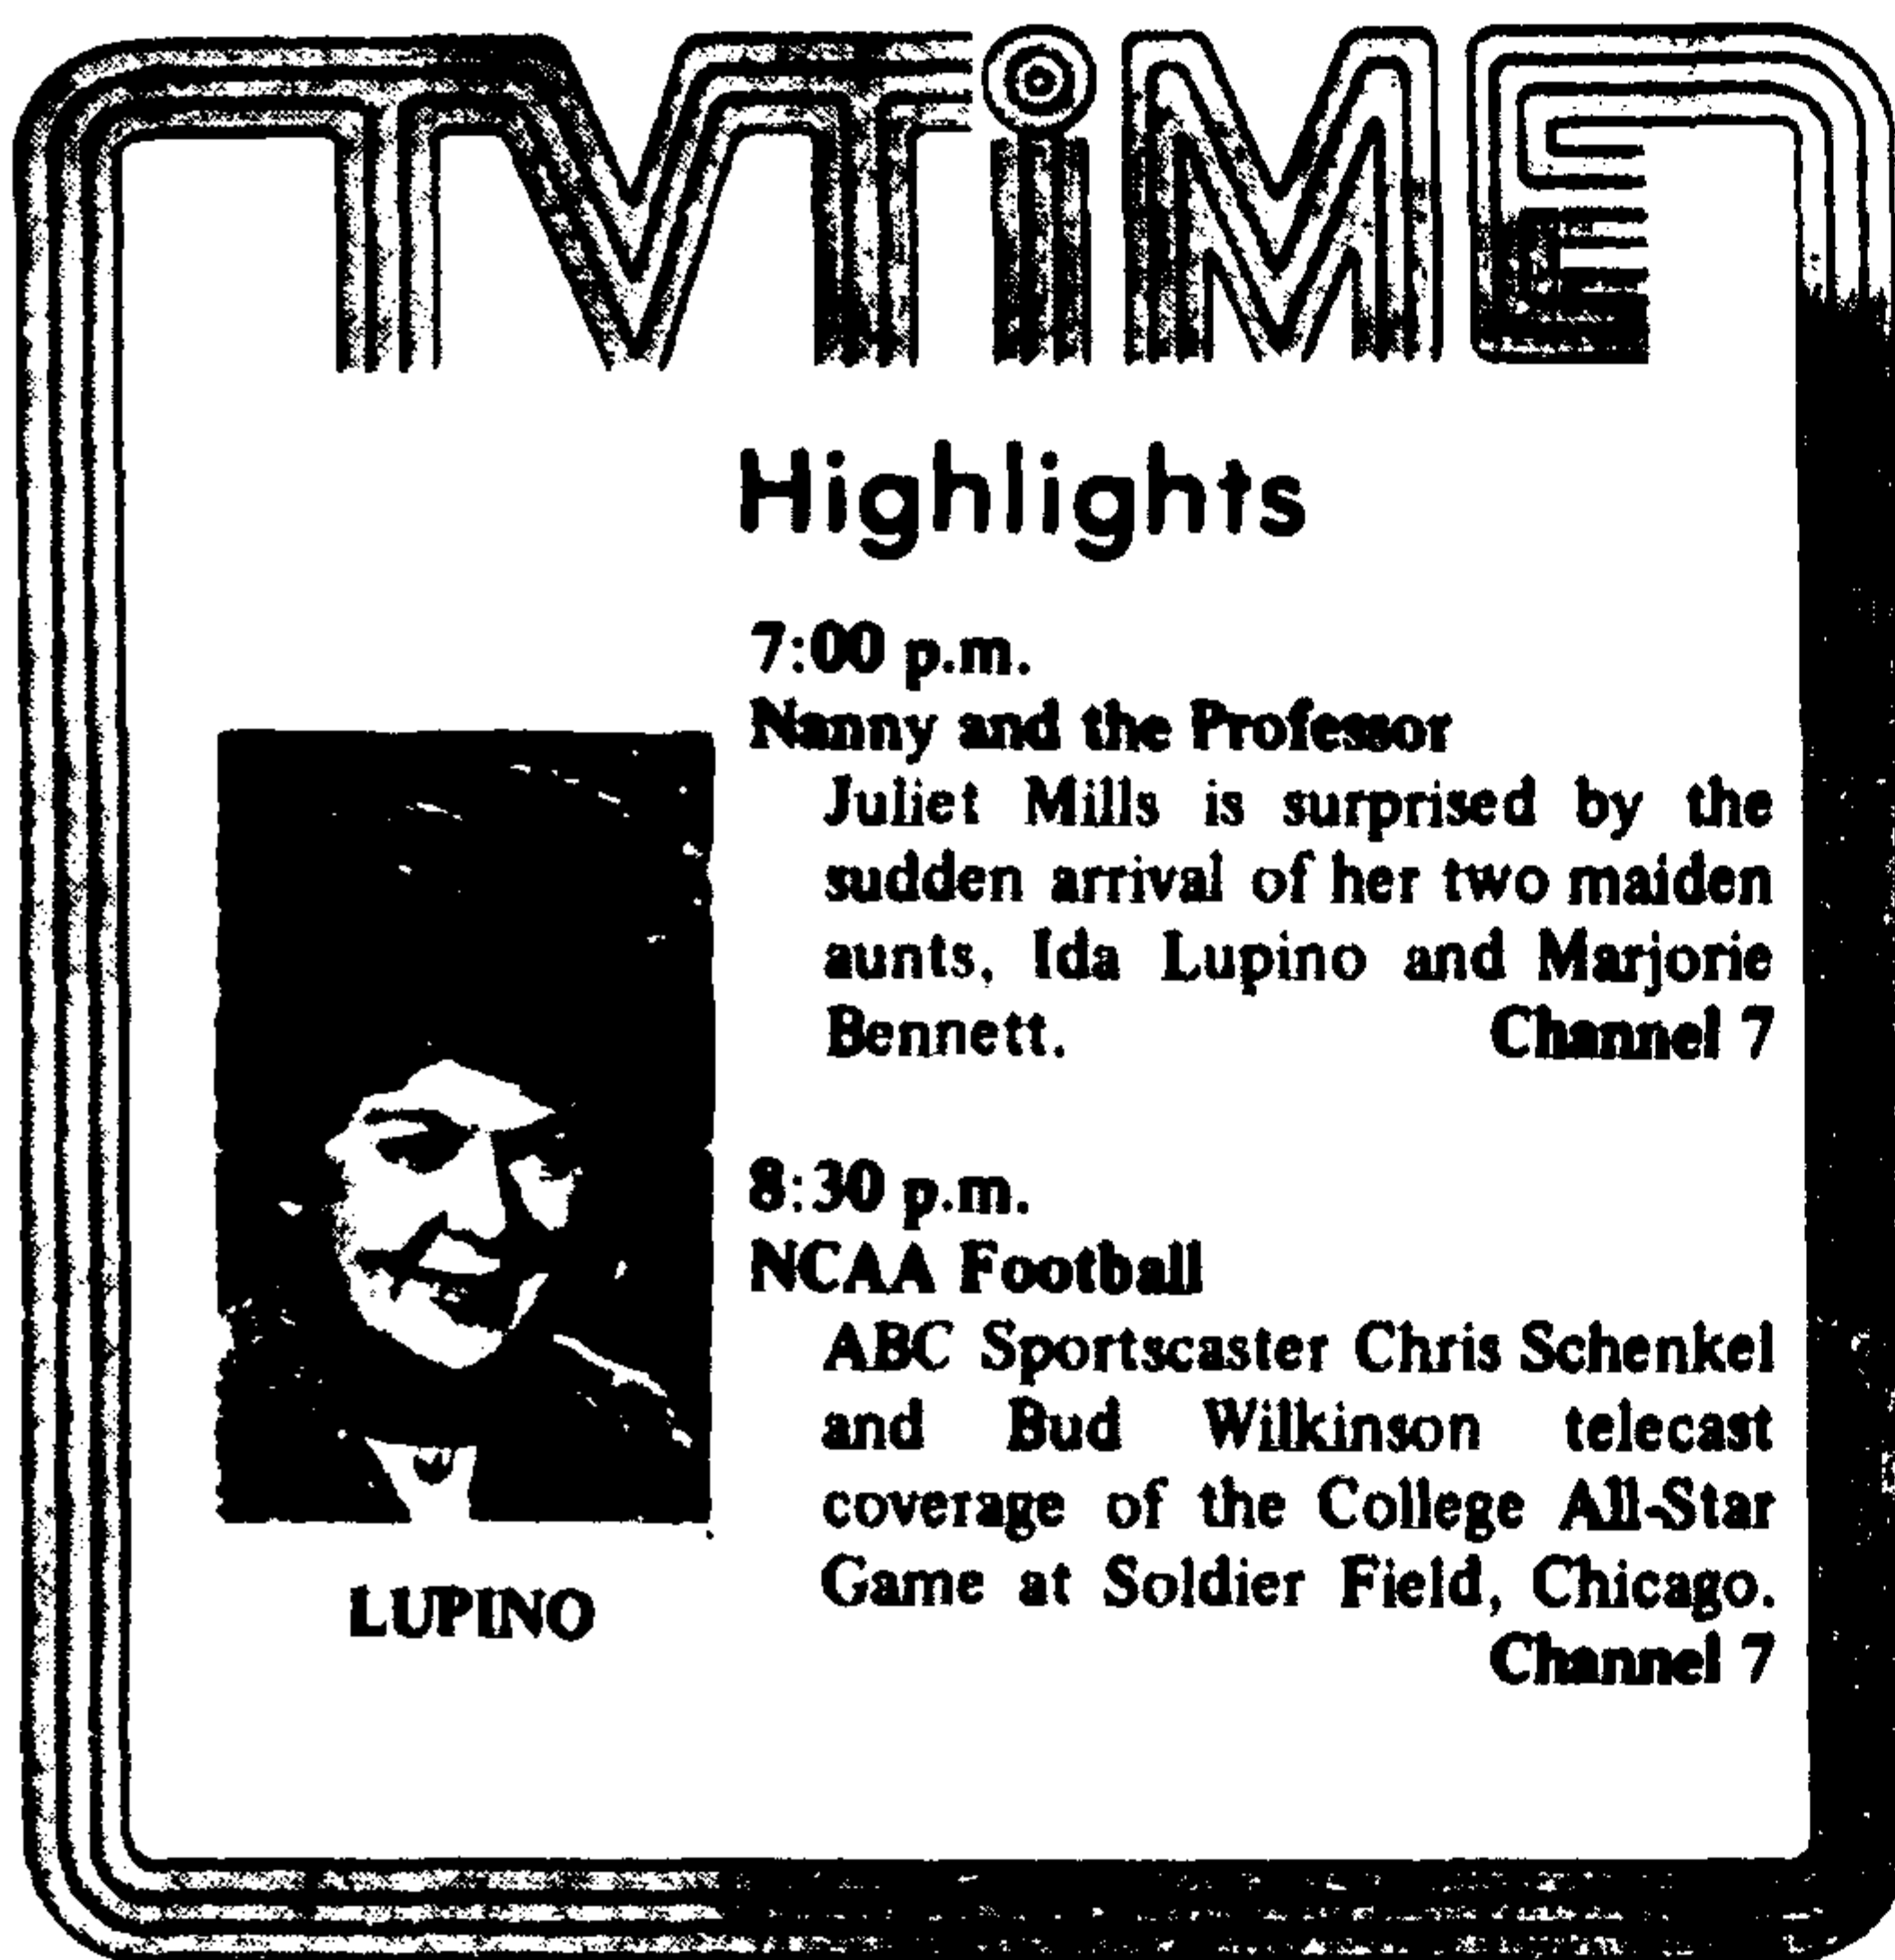

But anything is possible...and perhaps it would be worth a try.

Surely, a live off-the-top-of-the-head reaction to a Cub home run from Leo would bring us fans something more than a shrill "hey, hey" from the tube..

Hey, hey...Jack Brickhouse! We love you! But how about talking to producers Lotzer and Harris about the shotgun mike?

The Curly Kid (Don Knotts) tries desperately to be a Western desperado but only succeeds in being wanted romantically by the sheriff's daughter, Pauline (Mary-Robin Redd), in the horse-opera spoof, "The Fat Outlaw," to be colorcast on "NBC Comedy Theatre" Monday, Aug. 2, 7 p.m. on the NBC Television Network.

NBC News' "First Tuesday" in August will not be a repeat show or a re-run, though it will present at least 11 stories it has offered earlier. The program Aug. 3, 8 p.m. on the NBC Television Network will offer a view of the American people as the "First Tuesday" staff has discovered them at home and abroad. Prominent in the sampler will be (clockwise from top center) Garrick Utley, anchorman; Vietnam replacements—young Americans preparing to fight in a war that many believe is ending; the steelworkers of Gary, Ind., and their life-style; sub-teen boys who are avid motorcycle racers; heroic American missionaries and Peace Corps workers in the Peruvian earthquake; the revolutionary young "Jesus Freaks"; and Janis Joplin and the commercial exploitation that followed her death.

All-star casts will join series star Dennis Weaver in the 90-minute "McCloud" segments of "NBC Mystery Movie" Wednesdays, 7:30 to 9 p.m., on the NBC Television Network this Fall.

Weaver portrays Sam McCloud, a New Mexico lawman on temporary assignment in New York. He first portrayed the character in the "World Premiere" movie "McCloud," and later recreated the role in the "McCloud" segments of the "Four-in-One" series.

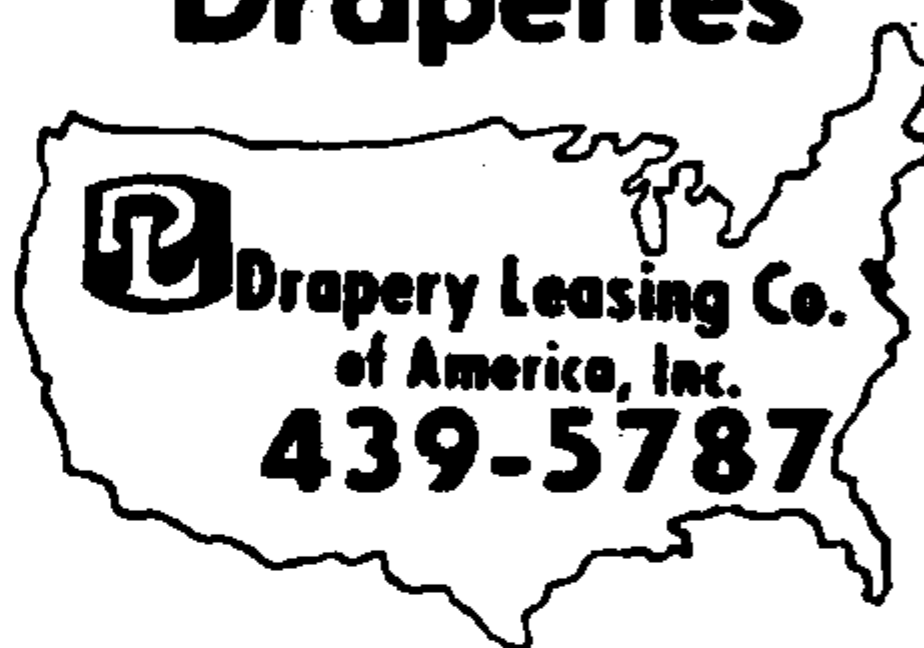

In a drama titled "The Desperate Man," McCloud must track down a professional killer who has a contract to kill a wealthy playboy-industrialist. Diana Muldaur, Patrick O'Neal, Arthur O'Connell, Jack Carter, Nita Talbot and James Olsen guest-star.

McCloud engages in a battle of wits with a world famous astrologer (Sebastian Cabot) who has arranged for the kidnapping of his wife in "Encounter with Aires." Also guest-starring are Peter Haskell, Susan Strasberg, Alan Oppenheimer and Louise Latham.

The "McCloud" mysteries will be scripted by such authors as Millard Lampel ("Hallmark Hall of Fame") and prize-winning off Broadway playwright Lonnie Elder ("Ceremonies in Dark Old Men").

What will Jimmy Stewart's TV series this fall be called and what will it be about?

—J.A.
Mount Prospect

ANSWER:

Appropriately enough, it will be called the JIMMY STEWART SHOW. Stewart will play a college professor, although most of the program will center around his family: a wife (Julie Adams), an 8-year-old son (Dennis Larson), a married son and his wife (Jonathan Daly and Ellen Geer) and an 8-year-old grandson (Kirby Furlong).

The program will be seen on Channel 5 at 7:30 p.m. on Sundays, beginning in September.

I had heard that the old AMOS 'N' ANDY radio program originated in Chicago. Is that true? If so, when did the show start?

—P.L.
Arlington Heights

ANSWER:

You heard correctly, the long-running program began in 1929 as a 15-minute feature on WMAQ Radio in Chicago. Freeman Gosden and Charles Correll, who portrayed Amos and Andy, continued in a variety of program formats until 1960.

How long has AMERICAN BANDSTAND been on the air? Has Dick Clark always been the host?

—F.N.
Arlington Heights

ANSWER:

Bandstand celebrated its 19th anniversary this year. Clark, 41, originated the program in 1952 in Philadelphia and has been the only host. After the cancellation of ED SULLIVAN this year, AMERICAN BANDSTAND is now the longest continual program on television.

Clark has a new contract with ABC that could lead to seven more renewals, so the show may well break Sullivan's record.

What are the names of the Bugaloos who sing on Channel 5 on Saturday mornings?

—R.O.
Elk Grove Village

ANSWER:

John Philpott, Wayne Larea and John McIndoe provide the music.

I think it's a shame that Barbara Anderson is leaving the IRONSIDE program. Will any actress be hired to replace her in the female lead?

—R.Y.
Arlington Heights

ANSWER:

NBC has announced that Elizabeth Baur will play the role of Officer Fran Belding on Ironsides next season. Miss Baur appeared in LANCER for two years and has had guest starring roles in THE YOUNG REBELS, ROOM 222 and NANNY AND THE PROFESSOR.

How old is Gene Barry of THE NAME OF THE GAME? Is he married? Any children? What other series did he play in? Where can I write to him?

—J.B.
Prospect Heights

ANSWER:

The dapper Barry is 48. He and his wife Betty have been married for 27 years and have three children: Michael, 25, Fredric, 18, and Liza, 3.

Before GAME, Barry starred in BAT MASTERSON and BURKE'S LAW. In all three series he has played a sophisticated clothes horse, which is also his real-life image. You can write to him in care of NBC, 300 W. Alameda Ave., Burbank, California.

I had thought Bill Cosby was leaving television to go into teaching. Now I hear that he will have another series on TV and is making a movie. What's the story?

—I.R.
Mount Prospect

ANSWER:

Cosby is going to both teach and remain in show business. He has enrolled at the University of Massachusetts to start working for a graduate degree (he received his bachelor's degree from Temple University) and will begin classes in the fall.

He has been working on his first film, called "Man and Boy," and has signed for a variety series in the 1972 television season.

Whether he can do all that and still continue with an occasional nightclub appearance remains to be seen, but Cosby thinks he can handle it. Who knows?

Could you tell me how tall Chad Everett of MEDICAL CENTER is? What color hair and eyes does he have?

Is he married? Where can I write him?

—A.E.
Arlington Heights

ANSWER:

The popular Everett who plays Dr. Joe Gannon on CBS' MEDICAL CENTER is 6 feet 2, weighs 176 lbs., has dark brown hair and green-blue eyes.

Everett and his wife Shelby have a 2-year-old daughter.

You can write to him at CBS, 7800 Beverly Blvd., Hollywood, California 90036.

How old is Dick Martin of LAUGH-IN? Is he really the swinger that everybody says he is?

—O.H.
Mount Prospect

ANSWER:

Martin is 49. Although he's not a homebody by any means, he doesn't deserve much of his reputation. His regular date for the past two years has been Dolly Read, an aspiring actress ("Beyond the Valley of the Dolls") and a former Playboy Playmate.

Ruth McDevitt and Carl Betz (bottom), and Vera Miles and Jeff Bridges (top), portray a family who take off on a bus together to find out the answers to some of today's questions in the film drama "In Search of America" on the ABC Television Network's "Movie of the Week" Tuesday, Aug. 3, 7:30 p.m.

Henry Fonda (right), starring as Det. Sgt. Chad Smith, and Morgan Jones, an undercover policeman, arrest Sue Bernard as a schoolyard narcotics supplier in "No Place to Hide" on the ABC Television Network's "The Smith Family" Wednesday, Aug. 4, 7:30 p.m.

Village Water Due By Sunday

Churchill and Knightsbridge homes will be using Schaumburg water by Sunday, Mayor Robert O. Atcher said this week.

Aug. 1 is the deadline Hoffman Estates imposed last year on Schaumburg. Hoffman Estates had been supplying water to the Churchill subdivision since it was built several years ago, as well as Schaumburg businesses along Golf Road.

Through an escrow account established by several Schaumburg developers, the village has been able to extend water and sewer mains from its northeast industrial area at Plum Grove Road to the west.

Hoffman Estates, which has faced water supply problems in the Highlands, High Point and apartment complexes along Higgins Road, said it could no longer sell water to portions of Schaumburg in that area.

Schaumburg has a well in the new Knightsbridge subdivision that will supplement the water supply traveling from the industrial area.

BEFORE THE WELL was completed, it was pumping clear water. Schaumburg officials were hopeful that the well would be on the lines by the middle of this month, but problems have since developed.

The well has been pumping cloudy water for 10 days, Atcher said. At first the water was silty, but that has cleared up. In the past few days, the water has had a few grains of sand.

"We can't put it on the lines with sand," Atcher said. He explained that the sand would never come through faucets, but that it would accumulate and cause cleaning problems later.

"The village will continue pumping the water until the sand disappears. It has to be ready by Aug. 1," Atcher said.

Atcher said that the water coming from the well and reservoir in the industrial area, will be adequate without the Knightsbridge well being in service.

THE PRESSURE in the lines would be somewhat lower than the village normally maintains if the Knightsbridge well is not in service, Atcher said.

The village will add booster pumps to the water lines if the Knightsbridge well isn't ready for use by Sunday, the mayor said.

"This has to be ready by Aug. 1. The water will be there," Atcher said.

Water lines from the two villages will remain interconnected at Churchill, but valves permitting water to flow from one system into the other will have double locks. This is being done to take care of possible water emergencies.

Recommend Rezoning 12-Acre Site

Members of the Hanover Park Zoning Board of Appeals Wednesday recommended rezoning from single family to business on an approximately 12-acre site at Maple Street near Barrington Road be allowed during a special hearing. The recommendation and stipulations now go to the village board for consideration.

Petitioners Mr. and Mrs. Emil Rinne asked for the rezoning after telling the board the full 25-acre site at Barrington and Lake Street is to be developed as a Jewel Turnstyle, operation.

The 13 acres fronting on Barrington and Lake already hold business zoning and Rinne was requesting the rezoning for the back portion of the full site. Residents of the Gardens section bordered by Maple Street the north side border of the Jewel property were represented by Dan Meyer.

At a preliminary presentation Jewel representative John Sutherland assured the zoning board of appeals members that the store would front to Barrington and Lake Street. The Maple Street side border would have a four-acre buffer between the Jewel building and street.

SUTHERLAND TALKED about a planting border to screen the four acres potentially planned as an employee parking lot from the adjoining single family development.

Meyer wanted the members to include a stipulation that the four-acre section be used for no other purpose than that.

He wanted assurance that Jewel could not upgrade the zoning by putting in apartments or other development.

Sutherland did not object and the zoning board included the stipulation in their recommendation to the village board. Sutherland explained that the four acres would probably stand empty for several years since the 1,250 space parking facility would handle shoppers and employees.

Dennis Mc Kinney, acting chairman of the zoning board of appeals, requested Jewel exclude two planned exits and entrances from Maple Street to the back of the development until the four-acre section is paved and needed for parking.

The zoning board recommendation for rezoning also included the consideration of engineering and flood control planning by the plan commission, village engineer and board members.

Mc Kinney asked the petitioners to be prepared to satisfy the plan commissions concern about traffic generated by the center and flood storm water drain off.

Sutherland said he is talking to the State Highways department about the development and consideration is being given to installation of a stop light at Lake and the extension of Church Street. Rinne's dedication of Church Street and its extension to Lake Street was part of the agreement.

Rinne who is a member of the zoning board of appeals did not vote on the petition

Cultural Group OKs Payment To Expert

Although Schaumburg's Cultural Commission will meet on Thursday, Aug. 19, for approval of preliminary bill payouts, village trustees this week approved payment of $500 in expenses incurred to date by Allan McNab, a consultant working on local correlation of the proposed center.

McNab, an expert in museums, has thus far worked four days in Schaumburg at a daily fee of $100 plus additional expenses.

In other business relating to the Cultural Center, Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher indicated that due to financial requirements of the type of building being suggested to house the Harding Museum collection, outside funds will be needed.

Atcher said that some funding is available to the museum through the City of Chicago which found it necessary to demolish the former home of the collection to build a highway.

Step Up Work For Fall

Maintenance Men Readying Schools

by NANCY COWGER

As in many occupations, school maintenance men and custodians hold season-type jobs. But contrary to what one might think, the school year is not their busiest season.

The maintenance and custodial crews in Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 are in the home stretch of their busy season, working at a stepped-up pace to complete their major responsibilities before getting caught up in the daily tasks that will command their attention during the school year.

Joseph Viso, superintendent of buildings and grounds, directs a staff of six maintenance men, 50 custodians and, during the summer, 20 high school and college students. They are responsible for keeping 22 school buildings and the administration center in top condition. This fall they also will have a warehouse to staff and maintain.

The men feel they do their job well, and are proud of their record. They point out not one day of school was lost for any child last year because a building had boiler, plumbing or heating breakdowns, or problems of any serious nature.

School was closed throughout the district one day last year, but that resulted from weather conditions, and was not due to any mechanical difficulties.

Pride is an important part of Viso's program. He has been with Dist. 54 for 18 months. He previously worked for Motorola Inc. in Franklin Park, where he was assistant superintendent of maintenance. In Franklin Park, he developed a systematic method for preventive maintenance, which he has since applied to Dist. 54. Not only Viso, but also his men, feel it is this system which has kept the schools operating at peak efficiency, and equipped the men with an effective means of communicating their needs to him.

Viso has custodial and maintenance management down to a fine art. He has found a way to get the greatest efficiency from his men and equipment possible, and the system is more than acceptable to the employees.

Each item of machinery in the district has its own file card at district headquarters, where Viso has his office. There is a drawer for each building in the district, and the cards are split into four groups in the drawer. Each week, one of the custodians assigned to each school picks up one stack of cards, and drops off another. During the week, he must inspect the equipment listed on each card. While he may not be qualified to repair the equipment, he can tell if it needs work. During the inspection, he cleans and oils the machine. Any unusual factors about the machine are noted on the card. When the week's cards are returned to the office, Viso inspects them, and allots any repair work noted to a maintenance man.

Maintenance employees have a higher rank than do custodians. They are trained machinists, millwrights, plumbers and electricians. They must be proficient in all phases of building maintenance, and excel in heating, ventilating and electrical work. These men make all repairs on buildings or machinery in the

Late Gifts Save Center

That was the happy report issued Tuesday by officials of The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center, which faced an Aug. 2 deadline to meet the most serious financial crisis in its history.

The Northwest suburban family service agency had to raise one-half of its current $15,000 deficit by Monday or face the necessity of cutting back service to area families.

If a minimum of $7,500 could be raised by the budget deadline a private foundation has agreed to make a "matching grant."

To help the Center reach its goal, the Herald June 21 launched an emergency fund appeal to its readers.

By yesterday, the fund total was $9,162 — $1,562 over the minimum needed.

"With several more days to go, we are hopeful additional last-minute contributions will bring the fund total to at least $9,500," said Charles E. Hayes, Herald editor in chief. "The response of our readers as well as township officials, churches, and civic organizations has been most gratifying. We hope others will take advantage of this final opportunity to help preserve the only family agency available to our suburbs which is equipped to solve family problems."

Donations may still be sent to the Herald "Center Fund," P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

A final list of donors will be published in Tuesday's Herald.

Among the flood of last-minute donations to the fund were gifts of $300 from the Kiwanis Club of Des Plaines and $100 from Honeywell, Inc., Arlington Heights. Several individual donations ranging from $25 to $50 also were received yesterday as well as numerous $5 and $10 gifts.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The Apollo 15 astronauts are in lunar orbit, after firing their main spacecraft engine partly by hand. They are preparing to begin a rich, six-day harvest of secrets held by the moon for billions of years. Today they will begin their long-awaited descent to a small valley ringed on three sides by rugged mountains and flanked by a mile-wide chasm.

House and Senate leaders have reached a behind-the-scenes compromise that could provide Lockheed Aircraft Corp. with a government guaranteed loan in time to stave off bankruptcy. Under the agreement, the Nixon administration would abandon its demand for a broad $2 billion loan guarantee fund to help other big U.S. firms in financial trouble. Opponents of the loan would drop their filibuster against help for Lockheed.

Rail talks have resumed in Washington but little hope is seen of averting a rail strike set today against six more lines.

Ford Motor Co. announced it will hike new car prices by at least 4.9 per cent and Chrysler said its price increases would be "in the same ballpark." General Motors refused to say if GM cars would cost more.

The State

Chicago newspapers contend former Gov. Otto Kerner bought $25,000 worth of race track stock while he was governor in 1966 and sold it 10 months later for $150,000. Federal sources say Kerner reported the profit as a capital gain. Only 50 per cent of a capital gain is taxable and the tax comes to only 25 per cent. Illinois Racing Board records of the alleged transaction are missing, perhaps destroyed, according to the board's secretary.

The World

Chile's pro-Marxist government looked toward the U.S.-owned telephone company and First National City Bank of New York as its next targets in progressive nationalization of the country's major private industries.

Sudan President Jaafar Numeiry said the reaction of the Soviet press to the execution of 14 ringleaders in last week's short-lived Communist coup has strained Sudan's relations with eastern Europe.

The War

Three battalions of Laotian army troops have retaken from the Communists the strategic town of Saravane, which guards a main junction on the Ho Chi Minh supply trail in southern Laos, U.S. military spokesmen announced.

Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk said that President Lyndon B. Johnson "did not have any plans" to widen the Vietnam War prior to the 1964 Gulf of Tonkin incident. Rusk testified before the Senate Judiciary subcommittee on separation of powers.

The Market

The threat of a steel strike and a rail strike that has shut down four major roads helped send the market reeling to its lowest level in six months. After tumbling nearly 17 points in two previous sessions, the Dow Jones Average plunged another 10.59 to 861.42. Other indicators also were down. Declines overwhelmed advances, 1,232 to 206. Volume swelled to 14,570,000 shares from 13,940,000 the day before. Prices eased in moderate turnover on the American Exchange.

Police Seeking Identities Of Rapists

by BOB CASEY

Des Plaines police yesterday were seeking the identities of several men who reportedly raped two women visitors Saturday night at the Big Bend Lake Indian camp in Des Plaines.

Police Chief Arthur Hintz and representatives of the state's attorney's office yesterday refused to comment on the reported incident, although police indicated that an investigation is underway.

The two women, both in their late 20's, reportedly were sexually assaulted late Saturday night after spending all day Saturday and Saturday evening at the Indian camp, the Herald learned.

The women, both suburban residents, reportedly brought supplies and household items to the Indian camp Saturday night by school administrators.

The committee, on which all seven board members serve, will go over the budget before it is presented for tentative approval at the Aug. 12 board meeting.

"We will have a balanced budget this year, though a couple of our funds will still show deficits from previous years," Business Manager James Slater, who has been coordinating budget planning for several months, said.

This is the second year administrators and board members have worked to reduce the $1 million deficit the district accumulated through 1969.

"WE CAME out with a $750,000 cash balance at the end of the last fiscal year (June 30, 1971), but we still have a couple of funds in the red," Slater said.

Part of the cash balance is early taxes for next year.

Primarily, the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund (IMRF), the rent fund for Schaumburg High School, and the Bond and Interest Fund will have budgeted deficits in the coming year.

"We have had an unexpected increase in non-certificated staff, whose pension is covered by the IMRF. The levy for the fund was passed a year ago, so it will take us a couple of years to make up the difference," Slater said.

By June 30, 1973, the district plans to have the IMRF in the black.

"What happened on the rent fund was that we levied for the exact amount and didn't figure on not collecting all the taxes, so we had to borrow from other funds to make the $240,000 payment to the Illinois School Building Commission, (ISBC)," Slater said.

Next spring the rent fund will be in the black, Slater says.

Through the Rent Fund, Dist. 211 is buying Schaumburg High School from the ISBC on an interest-free loan. It will take a little more than 16 years to complete payments for the school. The district has already made three payments.

THE BOND Interest Fund provides tax money to pay for bonds approved by voters in referendum. A year ago, when levies for funds to operate the 1971-72 school year were set, district officials were not sure when interest payments on bonds sold this summer for construction of School No. 5 would come due.

A $3 million bond sale with two interest payments due before July 1, 1972, has been set up for Aug. 12.

"Actually, we will be saving the taxpayers $150,000 in the long run. By paying so much interest early, we are saving ourselves money. This fall, when the board decides how much it wants to levy for next year, in the Bond and Interest Fund that interest deficit will be added on," Slater said.

The two largest funds, Education and Site and Construction, will be in balance this year. Administrators expect the Education Fund, from which teacher salaries and educational materials are paid, to be about $8.66 million. The Site and Construction Fund, which will be used to build School No. 5, will be about $3.3 million.

Suburbanites May March On O'Hare

by BOB LAHEY

A mass of "nice people" from the suburbs may march on O'Hare Airport to disrupt international air traffic unless they receive some relief to nerves jangled by roaring jet aircraft, their spokesman told a federal panel yesterday.

The gentle threat came during the course of the second day of hearings by the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) at the Sheraton-Chicago Hotel.

Nearly 100 witnesses paraded before a six-man panel which spent two days collecting evidence for recommendations to Congress on legislation for control of "noise pollution."

Much of the testimony in the Chicago hearings, one of six conducted simultaneously at various locations in the country, centered on noise at O'Hare and other major airports in the Midwest.

One of the most dramatic presentations was given yesterday by George Franks, chairman of the O'Hare Area Noise Abatement Council.

IT WAS HE who indicated to the panel that direct action is being considered by suburbanites who he said have received only lip service from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and other governmental agencies during a 10-year campaign to curtail noise around O'Hare.

After outlining campaigns ranging from letters to the President to appeals to local officials, Franks said in answer to a member of the panel, "We may hold our next meeting out on the runway."

Franks and other members of the Noise Abatement Council later confirmed that a sit-in at O'Hare will definitely be considered by early next summer unless they receive relief from noise over the summer months.

A suburban village official, Ted Dekas of Wood Dale, dramatized the noise problem for the hearing officials when he presented letters from school officials testifying that teaching is suspended in Wood Dale schools for 20 seconds each time an airplane takes off or lands at O'Hare.

ONE LETTER, from J. R. Coad, superintendent of Bensenville Elementary School Dist. 2 and Fenton High School Dist. 100, estimated that those disruptions totaled the loss of 20.3 pupil-teaching hours per day.

Coad's letter also informed the panel that one elementary school for the handicapped located near O'Hare before recent construction of new runways there will be sold by the district because teaching had become impossible.

Also testifying was Ron W. Edwards, a member of the Elk Grove Aviation Committee and the Noise Abatement Council. Edwards told the panel that Elk Grove had adopted a master plan in 1967 in an attempt to allow orderly development while accommodating anticipated increases in noise irritation from the airfield.

He said the village spent $30,000 on the plan, basing its forecasts on information from governmental agencies and O'Hare officials. But he said later changes in runway construction, made without informing local officials, destroyed the effectiveness of the plan.

FRANKS' presentation brought an ovation from an audience which had been lulled for two days with technical and scientific data concerning the problems of noise produced by jet aircraft. He said that in desperation the Noise Abatement Council had abandoned appeals to government and produced copies of a letter he recently mailed to twelve major airlines appealing to their "humanity."

"We have followed the due process," Franks said, "and we will run due process right into the ground. But then we may go out to the runways."

Franks appealed to the EPA to ask Congress to take control of airports away from the FAA and give it to an agency which would have the power to force airlines to give considerations to people on the ground.

After Franks' testimony, a panel member, Prof. Sheldon J. Plager of the University of Illinois School of Law, asked Franks, "If we fail in what you are asking us to do, what then?"

Franks replied, "Don't fail. Don't put that burden on us. We are nice people; we want to stay that way."

Maintenance Men Readying Schools

district that custodians cannot do, either because their time is allotted for other work or because they are not qualified.

Viso believes this systematic inspection of all equipment detects trouble before it becomes too serious, and saves the district both time and money for extensive repairs. Since every item is carefully inspected once every month, and since the men are in areas where machinery is grouped at least once each week, few difficulties have time to grow serious.

Viso also is systematic with his men. He and the men have developed time evaluation sheets. Each job they must do is listed on the sheets, along with the time they take to do it. A certain room floor may require seven minutes for mopping, while another may take 12. This allows Viso to distribute jobs evenly, so that no man has an overload of work that he cannot accomplish, and each man knows every other custodian is doing an equal amount of work. Viso also can tell, through the evaluation sheets, when a man is not putting forth the effort he should.

Viso claims his custodians are among the most efficient in the suburbs. And he said his district is one of few in the Chicago area with a preventive maintenance program. This, he believes, is what keeps the schools going during the year.

But summers are an entirely different matter. This is the time for all major cleaning jobs — desks, walls, ceilings, lockers, floors and anything else within reach. Painting is done, inside and out. Roofs are repaired. Major equipment overhauls are accomplished.

A partial list of summer projects at Dist. 54 includes cleaning 13,000 desks and 13,000 chairs, painting the exterior of every school, planting shrubs and laying sod throughout the district, preparing 40 boilers for inspection (which resulted in a letter of congratulation to the district for an excellent job), re-roofing three multipurpose rooms, replacing chalk and tackboards in every building, reworking the ventilation system at Robert Frost School, installing sidewalks and blacktop at the three astro schools and repairing it at most others and installing new playground equipment at a variety of locations. The department also must move into a new building, Everett Dirksen School, taking all furniture, teaching supplies and equipment.

And all of this must be done around summer school. Eight buildings housed summer school classes, which ended last week. While it was in session, the men concentrated on other buildings. Now they are rushing the process with the eight buildings, trying to finish them in the remaining weeks before September.

'Beer 'n' Brat Fest' To Be An Annual Event

Some of the spirit of Wheeling's Diamond Jubilee will return to the village Sunday in the form of a "Beer 'n' Brat Fest" and art show.

The festival will begin at 3 p.m. in the parking lot of the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank and will continue "as long as people are having a good time," according to John Koeppen, president of the Wheeling Historical Society.

The society initiated plans for the village's 75th anniversary celebration in 1969. "and people had such a good time, they kept on asking us when we'd do it again," Koeppen said.

Sunday's festival is the society's answer, Koeppen said. "This is the first one," he said, "but we plan to have one every year from now on."

The Community Arts League of Wheeling is cooperating with the historical society by holding an art show during the festival.

Forty artists from the Chicago area will display paintings, sculptures and other works at the festival, according to Mrs. Ronald Bruhn, president of the arts league. The works will also be on sale.

A German band will play dance music and "some of the ladies will be in Bavarian costumes, a reminder of Wheeling's German heritage," Koeppen said.

Children of art league members will exhibit their talents in a "Clay Corner" at the festival. Used books will be on sale in a "Book Nook."

Bratwurst will be cooked using an "Old World" method, according to Walter Diens, chairman of the festival. Hundreds of sausages will be soaked in beer and roasted over hickory logs.

Admission is free and Koeppen said that prices for beer and food will be modest.

Funds raised at the festival will finance projects of the historical society.

Since its founding six years ago, the society restored the old village hall and turned it into a museum. It also initiated the plan to save the Community Church which was to be torn down. The Wheeling Park District has placed the church in Chamber of Commerce Park where it is used as a meeting place.

Long range plans of the society include the possibility of moving the old Soo Line depot to the park as another historic landmark.

Boy Recovering From Overdose

A 15-year-old Wheeling boy was reported recovering from an overdose of drugs.

Officials at Lutheran General hospital said the boy, who had been listed in serious condition Wednesday, was in good condition yesterday.

Police continued to question friends of the boy, but were unable to learn more about the circumstances surrounding the drug overdose.

The boy was found in a ditch along Dundee Road late Tuesday night. Friends said the boy told him he had gotten either "bennies" or LSD tablets at a rock concert at Wheeling High School.

Police To Register Bikes

Wheeling police urged adults and children to register their bicycles tomorrow as part of an effort to cut down on thefts.

Volunteers, age 15 and older, were needed to help with the registration program which will be conducted from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday.

Police said they will register bicycles which do not have lights, but they warned that a new village ordinance requires lights and reflectors on bicycles which are used after dark. The light requirement was incorrectly reported in the Herald yesterday.

A new village ordinance requires the registration of all bicycles once a year.

Police Sgt. Gene Wolf said that thefts of bicycles are common in the village and that the registration program can help to reduce the number of thefts and aid in the recovery of stolen bicycles.

As an example of the extent of the problem, Wolf said that on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, five bicycles, worth a total of approximately $300, were reported stolen in Wheeling.

He said that other thefts probably were not reported because parents think it is unlikely that the bicycle will be found.

THE REGISTRATION decals which will be placed on bicycles tomorrow will probably discourage some thefts, police said.

In addition, Wolf said that police will be able to find the owner of a bicycle even if the decal has been removed.

Wolf explained that police will record the serial number and the name of the owner of each bicycle, along with the decal number. If a stolen bicycle is located police can trace its owner from either the decal number or the serial number on the bicycle itself.

"And if a bike is found in some other town, in Des Plaines or Mount Prospect, the police there can give us the serial number and we can run it through the computer and find the owner," Wolf said.

He also said that the registration program can also help located lost bicycles, and he pointed out that under state law persons who find bicycles must try to locate the owner. Under the registration program this will mean calling the police and giving them the decal or serial number of the bicycle.

Wolf asked residents who wish to help with the registration to call him at 537-2131.

Registration will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at four Wheeling schools — Carl Sandburg on Schoenbeck Rd.; Oliver Wendell Holmes, 221 S. Wolf Rd.; Mark Twain, 515 E. Merle Ln.; and Eugene Field, 51 St. Armand Ln.

FROM OUT OF THE PAST. An old-time steam engine pulls passenger cars filled with visitors to the Illinois Railway Museum in Union, about 60 miles northwest of Chicago. The oldest piece of equipment in the museum dates from 1899. Volunteers maintain and restore the railway equipment. More

by SUE JACOBSON

The rolling countryside surrounding the little farm town of Union, Ill., is peaceful most of the time.

Now and again, though, the silence is broken by the clang of a streetcar and the whistle of an old-time steam engine.

For Union is only a short distance from the site of the Illinois Railway Museum. With more than 100 pieces of old railway equipment on exhibit, the museum is billed as "the world's largest operating railway museum."

An active contributor to the development of the museum is Nick Kallas, a Mount Prospect resident and a coordinator of the Young Adult Program for returning high school drop-outs at Wheeling High School. Kallas spends most of his weekends at the railway museum, helping to restore the old trains and equipment to their original condition.

Kallas said he first became interested in trains when as a boy he sold newspapers on an "L" station in Forest Park.

Increasing interest in the restoration process of old trains led him to join the Illinois Railway Museum about eight years ago. The museum, a nonprofit corporation, is open to all who pay the modest annual membership dues.

THE WORK of maintaining the museum and restoring the items to resemble their original condition is done on a volunteer basis by museum members. The group now includes about 50 regular members and 500 associate members; most are from the Chicago area.

The museum was started in 1953 at North Chicago. A Chicago streetcar — vintage 1907 — purchased from the Chicago Transit Authority, was the first piece of equipment in the museum.

In 1965 the museum was moved to a field near the small McHenry County town of Union, population 600.

Kallas explained that the reason for the move was the need to locate the engines in an unpopulated area.

"The engines cause smoke and noise and it really isn't good to have them in a highly populated area," he said. "Besides, Union is a more convenient location for most of the museum members."

Museum volunteers built more than three miles of track in the countryside surrounding the new museum for use by the growing number of steam and electric trains and streetcars in the collection. Eventually the track will be extended into Union, enabling passengers to ride right into the center of the town.

Museum members also bought the old railroad station in nearby Marengo for $1, moved it to the museum site and renovated it.

KALLAS NOTED that restoring the old trains and streetcars is a painstaking process.

"Our first piece of equipment, the CTA

streetcar, was three years in restoration. New roofing and siding were put on. The woodwork was refinished and the car was repainted.

"Generally we do the work from builders' photos and blueprints. Usually the builders have them on file and can come up with them after a little searching," he said.

Proper parts and equipment for the restoration work are obtained from companies throughout the country, and museum members often make weekend trips to collect the parts and bring them to the museum, he said.

An estimated 300 persons a day now visit the museum, open daily during the summer months and on weekends during the spring and fall as well.

The visitors ride on a turn-of-the-century Pullman train, relaxing on the plush green seats.

They wander through a 1919 railroad mail car, or the stainless steel 'Nebraska Zephyr.' Quite a train in its day, the sleek steel monster carried passengers to

Awards Will Go To Registrants

To encourage bicycle registration, the Wheeling Police Benevolent Association will award sets of bicycle accessories to eight people who register on Saturday. Included in each award will be a bicycle speed-o-meter, head-light, horn and tail-light.

The awards will be given to two registrants at each of four registration locations: the Sandburg Twain, Holmes and Field Schools.

Counseling Center Saved!

That was the happy report issued Tuesday by officials of The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center, which faced an Aug. 2 deadline to meet the most serious financial crisis in its history.

The Northwest suburban family service agency had to raise one-half of its current $15,000 deficit by Monday or face the necessity of cutting back service to area families.

If a minimum of $7,500 could be raised by the budget deadline a private foundation has agreed to make a "matching grant."

To help the Center reach its goal, the Herald June 21 launched an emergency fund appeal to its readers.

By yesterday, the fund total was $9,162 — $1,662 over the minimum needed.

"With several more days to go, we are hopeful additional last-minute contributions will bring the fund total to at least $9,500," said Charles E. Hayes, Herald editor in chief. "The response of our readers as well as township officials, churches, and civic organizations has been most gratifying. We hope others will take advantage of this final opportunity to help preserve the only family agency available to our suburbs which is equipped to solve family problems."

Donations may still be sent to the Herald "Center Fund," P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

A final list of donors will be published in Tuesday's Herald.

Among the flood of last-minute donations to the fund were gifts of $300 from the Kiwanis Club of Des Plaines and $100 from Honeywell, Inc., Arlington Heights. Several individual donations ranging from $25 to $50 also were received yesterday as well as numerous $5 and $10 gifts.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The Apollo 15 astronauts are in lunar orbit after firing their main spacecraft engine partly by hand. They are preparing to begin a rich, six-day harvest of secrets held by the moon for billions of years. Today they will begin their long-awaited descent to a small valley ringed on three sides by rugged mountains and flanked by a mile-wide chasm.

House and Senate leaders have reached a behind-the-scenes compromise that could provide Lockheed Aircraft Corp. with a government guaranteed loan in time to stave off bankruptcy. Under the agreement, the Nixon administration would abandon its demand for a broad $2 billion loan guarantee fund to help other big U.S. firms in financial trouble. Opponents of the loan would drop their filibuster against help for Lockheed.

Rail talks have resumed in Washington but little hope is seen of averting a rail strike set today against six more lines.

Ford Motor Co. announced it will hike new car prices by at least 4.9 per cent and Chrysler said its price increases would be "in the same ballpark." General Motors refused to say if GM cars would cost more.

The State

Chicago newspapers contend former Gov. Otto Kerner bought $25,000 worth of race track stock while he was governor in 1966 and sold it 10 months later for $150,000. Federal sources say Kerner reported the profit as a capital gain. Only 50 per cent of a capital gain is taxable and the tax comes to only 25 per cent. Illinois Racing Board records of the alleged transaction are missing, perhaps destroyed, according to the board's secretary.

The World

Chile's pro-Marxist government looked toward the U.S.-owned telephone company and First National City Bank of New York as its next targets in progressive nationalization of the country's major private industries.

Sudan President Jaafar Numeiry said the reaction of the Soviet press to the execution of 14 ringleaders in last week's short-lived Communist coup has strained Sudan's relations with eastern Europe.

The War

Three battalions of Laotian army troops have retaken from the Communists the strategic town of Saravane, which guards a main junction on the Ho Chi Minh supply trail in southern Laos, U.S. military spokesmen announced.

Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk said that President Lyndon B. Johnson "did not have any plans" to widen the Vietnam War prior to the 1964 Gulf of Tonkin incident. Rusk testified before the Senate judiciary subcommittee on separation of powers.

The Market

The threat of a steel strike and a rail strike that has shut down four major roads helped send the market reeling to its lowest level in six months. After tumbling nearly 17 points in two previous sessions, the Dow Jones Average plunged another 10.59 to 861.42. Other indicators also were down. Declines overwhelmed advances, 1,232 to 266. Volume swelled to 14,570,000 shares from 13,940,000 the day before. Prices eased in moderate turnover on the American Exchange.

Police Seeking Rapists' Names

by BOB CASEY

Des Plaines police yesterday were seeking the identities of several men who reportedly raped two women visitors Saturday night at the Big Bend Lake Indian camp in Des Plaines.

Police Chief Arthur Hintz and representatives of the state's attorney's office yesterday refused to comment on the reported incident, although police indicated that an investigation is underway.

The two women, both in their late 20's, reportedly were sexually assaulted late Saturday night after spending all day Saturday and Saturday evening at the Indian camp, the Herald learned.

The women, both suburban residents, reportedly brought supplies and household items to the Indian camp Saturday and were invited to stay for what reportedly was described as an "Indian ceremony."

About 10 p.m., one of the women reportedly was told by an Indian man that her companion, who was on the other side of the Indian campsite, wanted to leave the site and go home.

The woman then reportedly started walking toward their car when she was grabbed by two Indian men and dragged into one of several tents set up at the campsite. Inside the tent, the two men forcibly disrobed her and she was raped, reports said.

AT ABOUT the same time, her companion was dragged into the woods surrounding the campsite where she reportedly was sexually molested for two hours by several men.

The two women were later released by their attackers and driven home by another visitor to the Indian campsite.

Police, who met yesterday with Mike Chosa, Indian leader, reportedly know the name of at least one of the women's attackers.

It could not be determined whether the attackers were regular residents of the Indian camp or among the hundreds of visitors, both Indian and white, who swell the camp's numbers on weekends.

Police refused to comment yesterday on whether the two women, who reported the crime this week, are willing to press charges.

Chosa could not be reached for comment yesterday.

POLICE REPORTEDLY have been hampered in their investigation by difficulties in interviewing the campsite residents.

Hintz, Capt. Dale Mensching, Det. Robert Zeimet of the Des Plaines police and two members of the state's attorney's office met twice yesterday with the Indians at the campsite and later refused to make any statement.

The Indians, who moved into the forest preserve campsite July 2 and set up a number of tents without a permit, had been routed by police from the former Belmont Harbor Nike base in Chicago. They have said they originally occupied the Nike base after an apartment building in Chicago housing several Indian families burned down.

The Indians have complained of police harassment at the campsite, which has been the scene of several fights and a knife fight recently. Police report widespread drunkenness among the camp residents at night and on the weekends.

County officials have given the Indian group, which ranges in size from less than 100 during the week to more than 200 or 300 on week ends, permission to stay in the Big Bend Forest Preserve site at least temporarily.

Teachers, Board Agree On Contract Terms

Dist. 23 teachers' salaries for the 1971-72 school year have been settled by the negotiating teams of the school board and the teachers' association.

The new salary schedule will not be announced before the board's August 11 meeting, at which time board members are expected to approve the schedule. Members of the Prospect Heights Education Association are also expected to meet soon to ratify the salary settlement.

The negotiating teams have been meeting since March to determine salary increases. Earlier, Supt. Edward Grodsky predicted that the increases will probably be less this year than last year. He said, "The increase in the cost of living is lower than last year. And we are short of money. We have lost several referendums proposing tax hikes."

Dist. 23 teachers' salaries are based on a merit system rather than the salary index scale used in neighboring districts, on training and experience. Under the merit system, teachers are paid a cost-of-living increase and a merit increase.

The merit increases are based on five ratings: Unsatisfactory, below average, competent, above average, and superior. The last three ratings carry an increase in salary.

IN THEIR FIRST proposal, the teachers asked that a superior teacher be given $850, an above-average teacher be given $800 and a competent teacher be given $750. However, the board originally proposed $260 for superior teachers, $130 for above average teachers and $85 for competent teachers.

The negotiators agreed before they reached a settlement to use last year's salary scale to determine the teachers' base pay. And they have agreed that the cost of living increase will be 5.5 per cent of the base pay.

Last year teachers rated as competent received a merit increase of $200, above-average teachers received $400, and superior teachers received $600.

Funds allotted for teachers' salaries in the 1971-72 budget ($925,596) reflect a decrease of $82,000 from last year. The total education fund, $1,401,731, is about $23,000 under last year's budget figure.

According to Business Manager James Hendren, the decrease of instruction expenditures resulted from cutting five positions from the teaching staff, reducing contractual services and reducing the amount budgeted for substitute teachers.

Addolorata Villa Festival Sunday

Addolorata Villa home for the elderly on McHenry Road in Wheeling will hold a festival Sunday for all area residents. The festival, to feature games, prizes, refreshments and a bake sale, will begin at noon at the villa. It will continue throughout the afternoon.

The festival is an annual event at the villa.

the West Coast in the 1930s.

There is a huge five-room private railway car, used by railroad executives around the turn of the century. Complete with crystal chandeliers, paintings, and elaborately carved woodwork, it demonstrates the elegance of train travel in bygone days.

GLASS CASES in the railroad station hold the smaller relics from the past — railroad lanterns, train tickets, conductors' badges.

Some of the more popular exhibits with visitors are the streetcars. Originally 960 of these vehicles rode Chicago streets, charging only a few pennies as fare. The last of them disappeared from the roads in the 1950s; only a few remain on view in the nation's museums.

Now young and old alike fill the rattan seats of the refurbished streetcars at the Illinois Railway Museum — for a short ride down the train tracks and into the past.

A March On O'Hare?

by BOB LAHEY

A mass of "nice people" from the suburbs may march on O'Hare Airport to disrupt international air traffic unless they receive some relief to nerves jangled by roaring jet aircraft, their spokesmen told a federal panel yesterday.

The gentle threat came during the course of the second day of hearings by the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) at the Sheraton-Chicago Hotel.

Nearly 100 witnesses paraded before a six-man panel which spent two days collecting evidence for recommendations to Congress on legislation for control of "noise pollution."

Much of the testimony in the Chicago hearings, one of six conducted simultaneously at various locations in the country, centered on noise at O'Hare and other major airports in the Midwest.

One of the most dramatic presentations was given yesterday by George Franks, chairman of the O'Hare Area Noise Abatement Council.

IT WAS HE who indicated to the panel that direct action is being considered by suburbanites who he said have received only lip service from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and other governmental agencies during a 10-year campaign to curtail noise around O'Hare.

After outlining campaigns ranging from letters to the President to appeals to local officials, Franks said in answer to a member of the panel, "We may hold our next meeting out on the runway."

Franks and other members of the Noise Abatement Council later confirmed that a sit-in at O'Hare will definitely be considered by early next summer unless they receive relief from noise over the summer months.

A suburban village official, Ted DeKa of Wood Dale, dramatized the noise problem for the hearing officials when he presented letters from school officials testifying that teaching is suspended in Wood Dale schools for 20 seconds each time an airplane takes off or lands at O'Hare.

ONE LETTER, from J. R. Coad, superintendent of Bensenville Elementary School Dist. 2 and Fenton High School Dist. 100, estimated that those disruptions totaled the loss of 20.3 pupil-teaching hours per day.

Coad's letter also informed the panel that one elementary school for the handicapped located near O'Hare before recent construction of new runways there will be sold by the district because teaching had become impossible.

Also testifying was Ron W. Edwards, a member of the Elk Grove Aviation Committee and the Noise Abatement Council. Edwards told the panel that Elk Grove had adopted a master plan in 1967 in an attempt to allow orderly development while accommodating anticipated increases in noise irritation from the airfield.

He said the village spent $30,000 on the plan, basing its forecasts on information from governmental agencies and O'Hare officials. But he said later changes in runway construction, made without informing local officials, destroyed the effectiveness of the plan.

FRANKS' presentation brought an ovation from an audience which had been lulled for two days with technical and scientific data concerning the problems of noise produced by jet aircraft. He said that in desperation the Noise Abatement Council had abandoned appeals to government and produced copies of a letter he recently mailed to twelve major airlines appealing to their "humanity."

"We have followed the due process," Franks said, "and we will run due process right into the ground. But then we may go out to the runways."

Franks appealed to the EPA to ask Congress to take control of airports away from the FAA and give it to an agency which would have the power to force airlines to give considerations to people on the ground.

After Franks' testimony, a panel member, Prof. Sheldon J. Plager of the University of Illinois School of Law, asked Franks, "If we fail in what you are asking us to do, what then?"

Buffalo Grove Boys Play 'First Chairs'

Two Buffalo Grove boys, Steve LaSpina and Michael Harch, were among the musicians chosen to be first-chair instrumentalists during the second two-week session of Illinois Summer Youth Music for 1971.

LaSpina plays a string bass and Harch an alto saxophone.

The sessions were conducted at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. They were operated by the extension in music of the University of Illinois division of university extension, in cooperation with the University of Illinois School of Music and university bands.

Lake County May Provide Sewage Treatment Plan

A new Lake County sewerage treatment system may be serving Buffalo Grove by late next year.

The system would not only take the village out of the sewerage treatment business, but it would also open the way for greater development in Lake County.

Village Pres. Gary Armstrong said that Buffalo Grove's own sewerage treatment plant in the Lake County section of the village is now "operating at or near capacity" and it cannot be expanded.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said that the village's plant could serve some additional developments but that Lake County's proposed sewerage treatment system would allow for much more development, particularly north of Rte. 83.

Larson said that Lake County plans to build a sewerage treatment plant on Milwaukee Avenue at Perika Drive, north of Wheeling, and to connect it to Buffalo Grove and other Lake County areas.

"They hope to let bids toward the end of the year and to have it operating by December, 1972," Larson said.

An interceptor sewer would run south along Rte. 83, connect with sewers in Buffalo Grove along Rte. 83 and then continue east to the sewerage treatment plant, Larson said. Lake County officials have said that the treated sewerage would eventually be dumped into the Des Plaines River.

At a village board meeting Monday, Armstrong said that he had received a copy of an agreement on sewerage treatment which has been offered the village by Lake County.

HE ASKED Village Atty. Richard Rayssa and Hattis Engineers, village consultants, to study the agreement and report on it at the Aug. 9 village board meeting.

No Progress Made In Contract Talks

Negotiators were unable to agree on a new Dist. 21 teacher contract for fiscal 1971-72 at Wednesday's negotiations session between teachers and administration and school board members.

Members of the school board-administration negotiating team and the Dist. 21 faculty council negotiators agreed to hold further sessions in coming weeks.

The Wednesday session was the second this month held between the two groups.

The main area in dispute centers on the method to be used to determine teachers' salaries. The teachers favor use of the index system, which bases all salaries on the salary paid a beginning teacher in the district.

The school board and administration favor the increment system, in which the salaries paid experienced teachers may have no relation to the salary paid a beginning teacher.

Larson said that the agreement would allow the Lake County Public Works Department to lease the current Buffalo Grove sewerage treatment plant and use it to treat storm water, rather than sewerage.

Under the agreement, Larson said, Lake County would also take over responsibility for bonds which had been issued by Buffalo Grove for construction of its own plant.

Lake County's plant would be built with money from the federal government and revenue bonds, Larson said. The project has been given a "high priority" by the state, he said, and should have little trouble getting funds.

Larson said that even though Lake County will take over the village sewerage treatment plant, this probably will not affect plans of the Buffalo Grove park district to acquire park land at the plant site.

New Officer Will Head Health Dept.

The Buffalo Grove Village Board has decided to establish the new position of health officer as head of the village department of health.

The ordinance establishing the position was designed, according to Trustee Thomas Mahoney, to allow Village Sanitarian Don Schindler to continue to work in the health department.

Schindler is leaving his sanitarian job with the village, but as health officer he will continue to work on a part time volunteer basis.

He will head the health department and report to village manager Daniel Larson. A new sanitarian will be hired and will report to Schindler.

The village board approved the ordinance unanimously and then voted to appoint Schindler health officer only to be informed by Village Atty. Richard Rayssa that they should wait until the ordinance is published.

While none of the trustees opposed the ordinance, they talked at length about whether the health officer should be given the powers of a "police officer and conservator of the peace."

Mahoney said that he used those words in writing the ordinance to give the health officer some authority in enforcing the health code. He pointed out that the sanitarian already had those powers.

Several trustees questioned the wisdom of giving police powers to the health officer and Rayssa said that "it's dangerous" to have a health officer attempt to make an arrest.

The trustees finally agreed to leave the wording unchanged, with the understanding that the health officer would sign complaints but that police would make arrests.

Union Choo-Choos Back Into History

by SUE JACOBSON

The rolling countryside surrounding the little farm town of Union, Ill., is peaceful most of the time.

Now and again, though, the silence is broken by the clang of a streetcar and the whistle of an old-time steam engine.

For Union is only a short distance from the site of the Illinois Railway Museum. With more than 100 pieces of old railway equipment on exhibit, the museum is billed as "the world's largest operating railway museum."

An active contributor to the development of the museum is Nick Kallas, a Mount Prospect resident and a coordinator of the Young Adult Program for returning high school drop-outs at Wheeling High School. Kallas spends most of his weekends at the railway museum,

Boy Recovering From Overdose

A 15-year-old Wheeling boy was reported recovering from an overdose of drugs. Officials at Lutheran General hospital said the boy, who had been listed in serious condition Wednesday, was in good condition yesterday.

Police continued to question friends of the boy, but were unable to learn more about the circumstances surrounding the drug overdose.

helping to restore the old trains and equipment to their original condition.

Kallas said he first became interested in trains when as a boy he sold newspapers on an "L" station in Forest Park.

Increasing interest in the restoration process of old trains led him to join the Illinois Railway Museum about eight years ago. The museum, a nonprofit corporation, is open to all who pay the modest annual membership dues.

THE WORK of maintaining the museum and restoring the items to resemble their original condition is done on a volunteer basis by museum members. The group now includes about 50 regular members and 500 associate members; most are from the Chicago area.

The museum was started in 1953 at North Chicago. A Chicago streetcar—vintage 1907—purchased from the Chicago Transit Authority, was the first piece of equipment in the museum.

In 1965 the museum was moved to a field near the small McHenry County town of Union, population 600.

Kallas explained that the reason for the move was the need to locate the engines in an unpopulated area.

"The engines cause smoke and noise and it really isn't good to have them in a highly populated area," he said. "Besides, Union is a more convenient location for most of the museum members."

Museum volunteers built more than three miles of track in the countryside surrounding the new museum for use by the growing number of steam and electric trains and streetcars in the collection. Eventually the track will be extended into Union, enabling passengers to ride right into the center of the town.

Museum members also bought the old railroad station in nearby Marengo for $1, moved it to the museum site and renovated it.

KALLAS NOTED that restoring the old trains and streetcars is a painstaking process.

"Our first piece of equipment, the CTA streetcar, was three years in restoration. New roofing and siding were put on. The woodwork was refinished and the car was repainted."

"Generally we do the work from builder's photos and blueprints. Usually the builders have them on file and can come up with them after a little searching," he said.

Proper parts and equipment for the restoration work are obtained from com-

Counseling Center Saved!

That was the happy report issued Tuesday by officials of The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center, which faced an Aug. 2 deadline to meet the most serious financial crisis in its history.

The Northwest suburban family service agency had to raise one-half of its current $15,000 deficit by Monday or face the necessity of cutting back service to area families.

If a minimum of $7,500 could be raised by the budget deadline a private foundation has agreed to make a "matching grant."

To help the Center reach its goal, the Herald June 21 launched an emergency fund appeal to its readers.

By yesterday, the fund total was $9,162—$1,662 over the minimum needed.

"With several more days to go, we are hopeful additional last-minute contributions will bring the fund total to at least panies throughout the country, and museum members often make weekend trips to collect the parts and bring them to the museum, he said.

An estimated 300 persons a day now visit the museum, open daily during the summer months and on weekends during the spring and fall as well.

The visitors ride on a turn-of-the-century Pullman train, relaxing on the plush green seats.

They wander through a 1919 railroad mail car, or the stainless steel 'Nebraska Zephyr.' Quite a train in its day, the sleek steel monster carried passengers to

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The Apollo 15 astronauts are in lunar orbit after firing their main spacecraft engine partly by hand. They are preparing to begin a rich, six-day harvest of secrets held by the moon for billions of years. Today they will begin their long-awaited descent to a small valley ringed on three sides by rugged mountains and flanked by a mile-wide chasm.

House and Senate leaders have reached a behind-the-scenes compromise that could provide Lockheed Aircraft Corp. with a government guaranteed loan in time to stave off bankruptcy. Under the agreement, the Nixon administration would abandon its demand for a broad $2 billion loan guarantee fund to help other big U.S. firms in financial trouble. Opponents of the loan would drop their filibuster against help for Lockheed.

Rail talks have resumed in Washington but little hope is seen of averting a rail strike set today against six more lines.

Ford Motor Co. announced it will hike new car prices by at least 4.9 per cent and Chrysler said its price increases would be "in the same ballpark." General Motors refused to say if GM cars would cost more.

The State

Chicago newspapers contend former Gov. Otto Kerner bought $25,000 worth of race track stock while he was governor in 1966 and sold it 10 months later for $150,000. Federal sources say Kerner reported the profit as a capital gain. Only 50 per cent of a capital gain is taxable and the tax comes to only 25 per cent. Illinois Racing Board records of the alleged transaction are missing, perhaps destroyed, according to the board's secretary.

The World

Chile's pro-Marxist government looked toward the U.S.-owned telephone company and First National City Bank of New York as its next targets in progressive nationalization of the country's major private industries.

Sudan President Jaafar Numeiry said the reaction of the Soviet press to the execution of 14 ringleaders in last week's short-lived Communist coup has strained Sudan's relations with eastern Europe.

The War

Three battalions of Laotian army troops have retaken from the Communists the strategic town of Saravane, which guards a main junction on the Ho Chi Minh supply trail in southern Laos, U.S. military spokesmen announced.

Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk said that President Lyndon B. Johnson "did not have any plans" to widen the Vietnam War prior to the 1964 Gulf of Tonkin incident. Rusk testified before the Senate judiciary subcommittee on separation of powers.

The Market

The threat of a steel strike and a rail strike that has shut down four major roads helped send the market reeling to its lowest level in six months. After tumbling nearly 17 points in two previous sessions, the Dow Jones Average plunged another 10.59 to 861.42. Other indicators also were down. Declines overwhelmed advances, 1,232 to 206. Volume swelled to 14,570,000 shares from 13,940,000 the day before. Prices eased in moderate turn-over on the American Exchange.

Police Seeking Rapists' Names

by BOB CASEY

Des Plaines police yesterday were seeking the identities of several men who reportedly raped two women visitors Saturday night at the Big Bend Lake Indian camp in Des Plaines.

Police Chief Arthur Hintz and representatives of the state's attorney's office yesterday refused to comment on the reported incident, although police indicated that an investigation is underway.

The two women, both in their late 20's, reportedly were sexually assaulted late Saturday night after spending all day Saturday and Saturday evening at the Indian camp, the Herald learned.

The women, both suburban residents, reportedly brought supplies and household items to the Indian camp Saturday and were invited to stay for what reportedly was described as an "Indian ceremony."

About 10 p.m., one of the women reportedly was told by an Indian man that her companion, who was on the other side of the Indian campsite, wanted to leave the site and go home.

The woman then reportedly started walking toward their car when she was grabbed by two Indian men and dragged into one of several tents set up at the campsite. Inside the tent, the two men forcibly disrobed her and she was raped, reports said.

AT ABOUT the same time, her companion was dragged into the woods surrounding the campsite where she reportedly was sexually molested for two hours by several men.

The two women were later released by their attackers and driven home by another visitor to the Indian campsite.

Police, who met yesterday with Mike Chosa, Indian leader, reportedly know the name of at least one of the women's attackers.

It could not be determined whether the attackers were regular residents of the Indian camp or among the hundreds of visitors, both Indian and white, who swell the camp's numbers on weekends.

Police refused to comment yesterday on whether the two women, who reported the crime this week, are willing to press charges.

Chosa could not be reached for comment yesterday.

POLICE REPORTEDLY have been hampered in their investigation by difficulties in interviewing the campsite residents.

Hintz, Capt. Dale Mensching, Det. Robert Zeimet of the Des Plaines police and two members of the state's attorney's office met twice yesterday with the Indians at the campsite and later refused to make any statement.

The Indians, who moved into the forest preserve campsite July 2 and set up a number of tents without a permit, had been routed by police from the former Belmont Harbor Nike base in Chicago. They have said they originally occupied the Nike base after an apartment building in Chicago housing several Indian families burned down.

The Indians have complained of police harassment at the campsite, which has been the scene of several fights and a knife fight recently. Police report widespread drunkenness among the camp residents at nights and on the weekends.

County officials have given the Indian group, which ranges in size from less than 100 during the week to more than 200 or 300 on week ends, permission to stay in the Big Bend Forest Preserve site at least temporarily.

Teachers, Board Agree On Contract Terms

Dist. 23 teachers' salaries for the 1971-72 school year have been settled by the negotiating teams of the school board and the teachers' association.

The new salary schedule will not be announced before the board's August 11 meeting, at which time board members are expected to approve the schedule. Members of the Prospect Heights Education Association are also expected to meet soon to ratify the salary settlement.

The negotiating teams have been meeting since March to determine salary increases. Earlier, Supt. Edward Grodsky predicted that the increases will probably be less this year than last year. He said, "The increase in the cost of living is lower than last year. And we are short of money. We have lost several referendums proposing tax hikes."

Dist. 23 teachers' salaries are based on a merit system rather than the salary index scale used in neighboring districts, on training and experience. Under the merit system, teachers are paid a cost-of-living increase and a merit increase.

The merit increases are based on five ratings: Unsatisfactory, below average, competent, above average, and superior. The last three ratings carry an increase in salary.

IN THEIR FIRST proposal, the teachers asked that a superior teacher be given $850, an above-average teacher be given $800 and a competent teacher be given $750. However, the board originally proposed $260 for superior teachers, $130 for above average teachers and $85 for competent teachers.

The negotiators agreed before they reached a settlement to use last year's salary scale to determine the teachers' base pay. And they have agreed that the cost of living increase will be 5.5 per cent of the base pay.

Last year teachers rated as competent received a merit increase of $200, above-average teachers received $400, and superior teachers received $600.

Funds allotted for teachers' salaries in the 1971-72 budget ($925,596) reflect a decrease of $92,000 from last year. The total education fund, $1,401,731, is about $23,000 under last year's budget figure.

According to Business Manager James Hendren, the decrease of instruction expenditures resulted from cutting five positions from the teaching staff, reducing contractual services and reducing the amount budgeted for substitute teachers.

Addolorata Villa Festival Sunday

Addolorata Villa home for the elderly on McHenry Road in Wheeling will hold a festival Sunday for all area residents. The festival, to feature games, prizes, refreshments and a bake sale, will begin at noon at the villa. It will continue throughout the afternoon.

The festival is an annual event at the villa.

the West Coast in the 1930s.

There is a huge five-room private railway car, used by railroad executives around the turn of the century. Complete with crystal chandeliers, paintings, and elaborately carved woodwork, it demonstrates the elegance of train travel in bygone days.

GLASS CASES in the railroad station hold the smaller relics from the past — railroad lanterns, train tickets, conductors' badges.

Some of the more popular exhibits with visitors are the streetcars. Originally 950 of these vehicles rode Chicago streets, charging only a few pennies as fare. The last of them disappeared from the roads in the 1950s; only a few remain on view in the nation's museums.

Now young and old alike fill the rattan seats of the refurbished streetcars at the Illinois Railway Museum — for a short ride down the train tracks and into the past.

A March On O'Hare?

by BOB LAHEY

A mass of "nice people" from the suburbs may march on O'Hare Airport to disrupt international air traffic unless they receive some relief to nerves jangled by roaring jet aircraft, their spokesman told a federal panel yesterday.

The gentle threat came during the course of the second day of hearings by the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) at the Sheraton-Chicago Hotel.

Nearly 100 witnesses paraded before a six-man panel which spent two days collecting evidence for recommendations to Congress on legislation for control of "noise pollution."

Much of the testimony in the Chicago hearings, one of six conducted simultaneously at various locations in the country, centered on noise at O'Hare and other major airports in the Midwest.

One of the most dramatic presentations was given yesterday by George Franks, chairman of the O'Hare Area Noise Abatement Council.

IT WAS HE who indicated to the panel that direct action is being considered by suburbanites who he said have received only lip service from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and other governmental agencies during a 10-year campaign to curtail noise around O'Hare.

After outling campaigns ranging from letters to the President to appeals to local officials, Franks said in answer to a member of the panel, "We may hold our next meeting out on the runway."

Franks and other members of the Noise Abatement Council later confirmed that a sit-in at O'Hare will definitely be considered by early next summer unless they receive relief from noise over the summer months.

A suburban village official, Ted DeKa of Wood Dale, dramatized the noise problem for the hearing officials when he presented letters from school officials testifying that teaching is suspended in Wood Dale schools for 20 seconds each time an airplane takes off or lands at O'Hare.

ONE LETTER, from J. R. Coad, superintendent of Bensenville Elementary School Dist. 2 and Fenton High School Dist. 100, estimated that those disruptions totaled the loss of 20.3 pupil-teaching hours per day.

Coad's letter also informed the panel that one elementary school for the handicapped located near O'Hare before recent construction of new runways there will be sold by the district because teaching had become impossible.

Also testifying was Ron W. Edwards, a member of the Elk Grove Aviation Committee and the Noise Abatement Council. Edwards told the panel that Elk Grove had adopted a master plan in 1967 in an attempt to allow orderly development while accommodating anticipated increases in noise irritation from the airport.

He said the village spent $30,000 on the plan, basing its forecasts on information from governmental agencies and O'Hare officials. But he said later changes in runway construction, made without informing local officials, destroyed the effectiveness of the plan.

FRANKS' presentation brought an ovation from an audience which had been lulled for two days with technical and scientific data concerning the problems of noise produced by jet aircraft. He said that in desperation the Noise Abatement Council had abandoned appeals to government and produced copies of a letter he recently mailed to twelve major airlines appealing to their "humanity."

"We have followed the due process," Franks said, "and we will run due process right into the ground. But then we may go out to the runways."

Franks appealed to the EPA to ask Congress to take control of airports away from the FAA and give it to an agency which would have the power to force airlines to give considerations to people on the ground.

After Franks' testimony, a panel member, Prof. Sheldon J. Plager of the University of Illinois School of Law, asked Franks, "If we fail in what you are asking us to do, what then?"

Buffalo Grove Boys Play 'First Chairs'

Two Buffalo Grove boys, Steve LaSpina and Michael Harch, were among the musicians chosen to be first-chair instrumentalists during the second two-week session of Illinois Summer Youth Music for 1971.

LaSpina plays a string bass and Harch an alto saxophone.

The sessions were conducted at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. They were operated by the extension in music of the University of Illinois division of university extension, in cooperation with the University of Illinois School of Music and university bands.

Colfax Project Getting $100,000 ... But When?

Palatine won't be getting any funds from the state to help finance the Colfax Street improvement project from Smith to Quentin, but will receive $100,000 for later improvement of Colfax east from Smith to Hicks.

The village recently received a letter from the Illinois Division of Highways explaining that state participation of the Colfax improvement was recognized and a total of $100,000 would be credited to Palatine for street resurfacing in future improvements on the road.

Two letters previously had been sent to the village from the division of highways saying the state would not provide any money for Colfax improvements.

"The state is willing to make a $100,000 contribution for resurfacing of Colfax, but it doesn't have the money now in its budget," Village Mgr. Berton Braun said. "What their letter said was that they would recognize their obligation here and when improvements are done on Colfax between Smith and Hicks, they would give us the $100,000 for that."

IN OFFERING the credit to Palatine, the state division of highways suggested that the maintenance agreement between the state and the village for Colfax Street be dropped. However, Braun said the village will release the state from the maintenance agreement only at the time the $100,000 credit is actually received.

If the village accepted the credit now without receiving actual funds, some $2,500 appropriated for maintenance of Colfax would be dropped as part of the maintenance agreement. The total funds to be received by the village from the state for the coming year for patching, plowing and salting in the maintenance agreement is $19,900.

At the present time, the village has no definite plans for the improvement of Colfax Street from Smith to Hicks. However, Braun said in a letter to the state the village anticipates that "traffic volumes along this route will require action some time in the next five to ten years."

Because of the time gap, Braun said it would be "inappropriate for the village to give up the maintenance reimbursement for this portion of the roadway until such time as the cash contribution has actually been realized."

LAST MONTH, the village board formally approved the proposal for the $1.3 million widening of Colfax to be financed by 70 per cent public benefit and 30 per cent special assessment to property owners along Colfax. The public benefit funds will come from local funds and from motor fuel taxes.

The 71 property owners along Colfax will pay approximately $50 per front foot in special assessment.

The road improvement plan calls for widening Colfax from two to four lanes from Smith to Quentin and installing sidewalks, street lights and sewers along the 4,758-foot stretch of roadway. The improvements are needed to handle anticipated growth in traffic volume.

X-Ray Unit To Come To Palatine Monday

Beginning Monday a mobile X-ray unit will be located at the Palatine Plaza near the National Food Store.

Free X-rays will be given by the Suburban Cook County Tuberculosis Sanitarium District assisted by members of Palatine Junior Woman's Club.

The mobile unit will be in Palatine in an effort to find new cases of tuberculosis, according to Dr. E. A. Piszcek, field director of the district who pointed out, "not only does the X-ray detect tuberculosis but other chest pathology as well."

On Monday from 1 until 8 p.m. the unit will be open and from 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Suburbanites To March On O'Hare?

by BOB LAHEY

A mass of "nice people" from the suburbs may march on O'Hare Airport to disrupt international air traffic unless they receive some relief to nerves jangled by roaring jet aircraft, their spokesman told a federal panel yesterday.

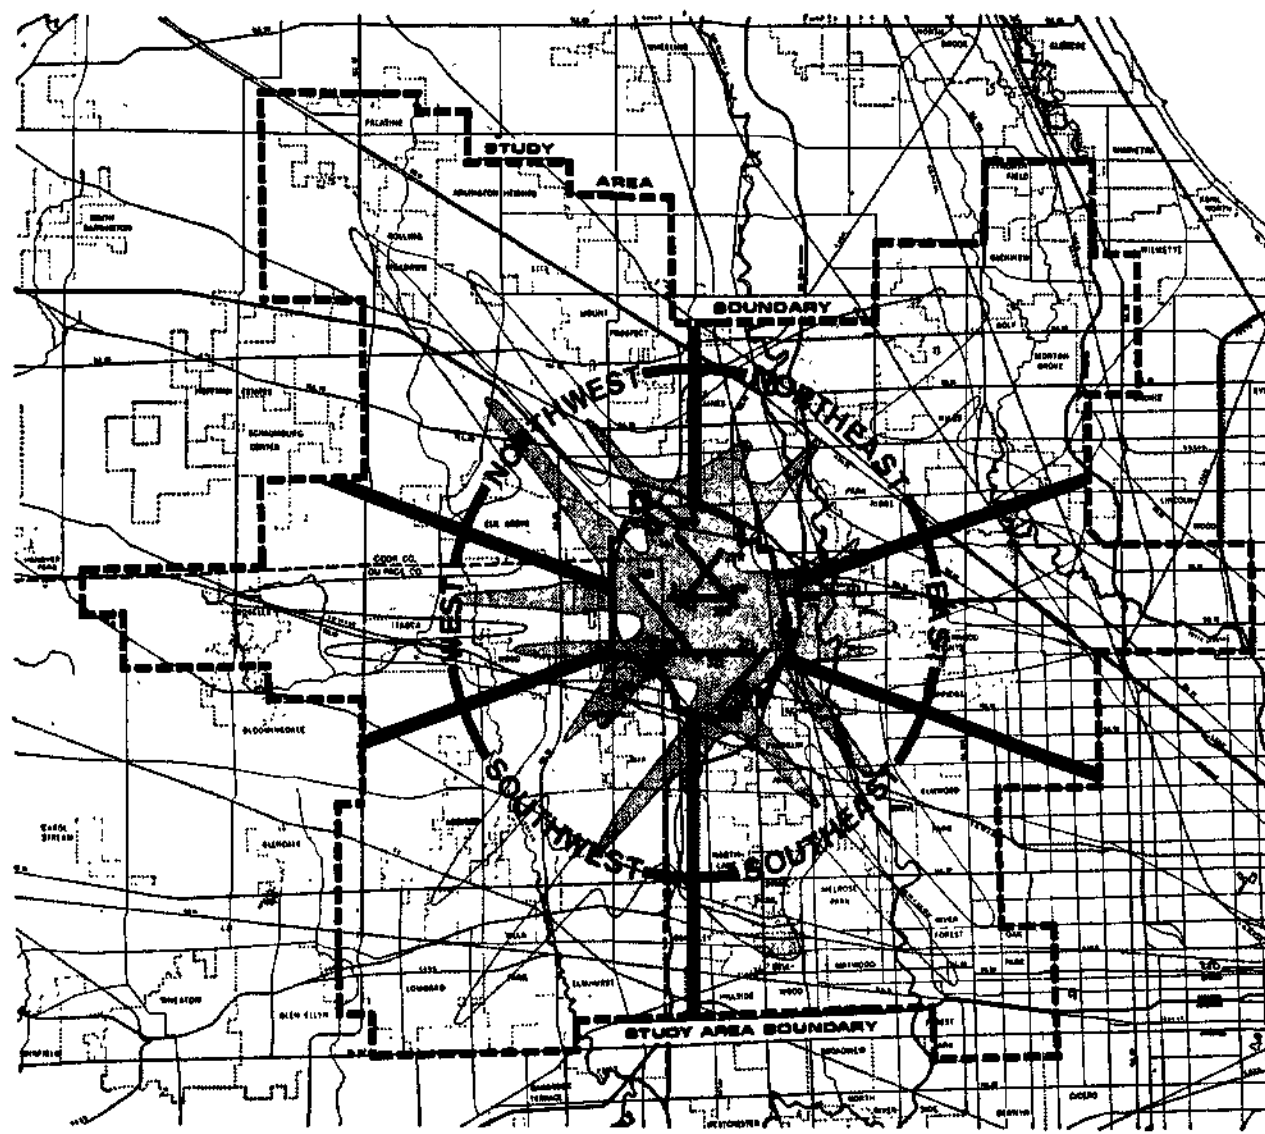

The gentle threat came during the course of the second day of hearings by the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) at the Sheraton-Chicago Hotel.

Nearly 100 witnesses paraded before a six-man panel which spent two days collecting evidence for recommendations to Congress on legislation for control of "noise pollution."

Much of the testimony in the Chicago hearings, one of six conducted simultaneously at various locations in the country, centered on noise at O'Hare and other major airports in the Midwest.

One of the most dramatic presentations was given yesterday by George Franks, chairman of the O'Hare Area Noise Abatement Council.

UNLESS CHANGES are made in noise abatement procedures at O'Hare Airport, more areas of the northwest suburbs will be experiencing serious noise pollution problems by 1975, according to the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC) study released this week. — Darkest shaded areas of the map indicate land which should not be used for any residential purposes. Slightly lighter shaded areas show land in which the only living units should be highly insulated apartments constructed according to NIPC standards.

at O'Hare. ONE LETTER, from J. R. Coad, superintendent of Bensenville Elementary School Dist. 2 and Fenton High School Dist. 100, estimated that those disruptions totaled the loss of 20.3 pupil-teaching hours per day. Coad's letter also informed the panel that one elementary school for the handicapped located near O'Hare before recent construction of new runways there will be sold by the district because teaching had become impossible. Also testifying was Ron W. Edwards, a member of the Elk Grove Aviation Committee and the Noise Abatement Council. Edwards told the panel that Elk Grove had adopted a master plan in 1967 in an attempt to allow orderly development while accommodating anticipated increases in noise irritation from the airfield. He said the village spent $30,000 on the plan, basing its forecasts on information from governmental agencies and O'Hare officials. But he said later changes in runway construction, made without informing local officials, destroyed the effectiveness of the plan. FRANKS' presentation brought an ovation from an audience which had been lulled for two days with technical and scientific data concerning the problems of noise produced by jet aircraft. He said that in desperation the Noise Abatement Council had abandoned appeals to government and produced copies of a letter he recently mailed to twelve major airlines appealing to their "humanity."

"We have followed the due process," Franks said, "and we will run due process right into the ground. But then we may go out to the runways." Franks appealed to the EPA to ask Congress to take control of airports away from the FAA and give it to an agency which would have the power to force airlines to give considerations to people on the ground. Franks replied, "Don't fail. Don't put that burden on us. We are nice people; we want to stay that way."

Stations will be set up along the sidewalks where balloons will be distributed to youngsters. The chamber has sponsored the annual Sidewalk Days for almost 20 years as a way of "getting close to the public" and maintaining community spirit, Dobkin said. In case of rain today or tomorrow, the merchandise will be moved back indoors and the sale continued there.

Late Gifts Save Center

That was the happy report issued Tuesday by officials of The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center, which faced an Aug. 2 deadline to meet the most serious financial crisis in its history.

The Northwest suburban family service agency had to raise one-half of its current $15,000 deficit by Monday or face the necessity of cutting back service to area families.

If a minimum of $7,500 could be raised by the budget deadline a private foundation has agreed to make a "matching grant."

To help the Center reach its goal, the Herald June 21 launched an emergency fund appeal to its readers.

By yesterday, the fund total was $9,162 — $1,662 over the minimum needed.

"With several more days to go, we are hopeful additional last-minute contributions will bring the fund total to at least $9,500," said Charles E. Hayes, Herald editor in chief. "The response of our readers as well as township officials, churches, and civic organizations has been most gratifying. We hope others will take advantage of this final opportunity to help preserve the only family agency available to our suburbs which is equipped to solve family problems."

Donations may still be sent to the Herald "Center Fund," P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

A final list of donors will be published in Tuesday's Herald.

Among the flood of last-minute donations to the fund were gifts of $300 from the Kiwanis Club of Des Plaines and $100 from Honeywell, Inc., Arlington Heights. Several individual donations ranging from $25 to $50 also were received yesterday as well as numerous $5 and $10 gifts.

Streets Become Stores For Sale

Merchandise will fill the sidewalks beginning today at the Palatine Plaza on Northwest Highway and downtown with the Palatine Chamber of Commerce annual Sidewalk Days sale.

Community residents will be able to wander through the central business district and the plaza without entering a store to do their shopping today and tomorrow. The outdoor shops will be open from about 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. both days.

The sale will take on the form of an old-fashioned European market, according to Dobby Dobkin of the Chamber of Commerce. Many of the participating merchants, which includes most of the merchants in the chamber, will be offering specials on merchandise both days.

Stations will be set up along the sidewalks where balloons will be distributed to youngsters.

The chamber has sponsored the annual Sidewalk Days for almost 20 years as a way of "getting close to the public" and maintaining community spirit, Dobkin said.

In case of rain today or tomorrow, the merchandise will be moved back indoors and the sale continued there.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The Apollo 15 astronauts are in lunar orbit after firing their main spacecraft engine partly by hand. They are preparing to begin a rich, six-day harvest of secrets held by the moon for billions of years. Today they will begin their long-awaited descent to a small valley ringed on three sides by rugged mountains and flanked by a mile-wide chasm.

House and Senate leaders have reached a behind-the-scenes compromise that could provide Lockheed Aircraft Corp. with a government guaranteed loan in time to stave off bankruptcy. Under the agreement, the Nixon administration would abandon its demand for a broad $2 billion loan guarantee fund to help other big U.S. firms in financial trouble. Opponents of the loan would drop their filibuster against help for Lockheed.

Rail talks have resumed in Washington but little hope is seen of averting a rail strike set today against six more lines.

Ford Motor Co. announced it will hike new car prices by at least 4.9 per cent and Chrysler said its price increases would be "in the same ballpark." General Motors refused to say if GM cars would cost more.

The State

Chicago newspapers contend former Gov. Otto Kerner bought $25,000 worth of race track stock while he was governor in 1966 and sold it 10 months later for $150,000. Federal sources say Kerner reported the profit as a capital gain. Only 50 per cent of a capital gain is taxable and the tax comes to only 25 per cent. Illinois Racing Board records of the alleged transaction are missing, perhaps destroyed, according to the board's secretary.

The World

Chile's pro-Marxist government looked toward the U.S.-owned telephone company and First National City Bank of New York as its next targets in progressive nationalization of the country's major private industries.

Sudan President Jaafar Numeiry said the reaction of the Soviet press to the execution of 14 ringleaders in last week's short-lived Communist coup has strained Sudan's relations with eastern Europe.

The War

Three battalions of Laotian army troops have retaken from the Communists the strategic town of Saravane, which guards a main junction on the Ho Chi Minh supply trail in southern Laos, U.S. military spokesmen announced.

Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk said that President Lyndon B. Johnson "did not have any plans" to widen the Vietnam War prior to the 1964 Gulf of Tonkin incident. Rusk testified before the Senate judiciary subcommittee on separation of powers.

The Market

The threat of a steel strike and a rail strike that has shut down four major roads helped send the market reeling to its lowest level in six months. After tumbling nearly 17 points in two previous sessions, the Dow Jones Average plunged another 10.59 to 861.42. Other indicators also were down. Declines overwhelmed advances, 1,232 to 206. Volume swelled to 14,570,000 shares from 13,940,000 the day before. Prices eased in moderate turnover on the American Exchange.

Speakout

Yes, Agnew Did Take A Trip

by PAUL GREENFIELD

Vice President Spiro Agnew's 10-nation good will tour-golfing exhibition has caught the fancy of most of the nationally syndicated newspaper columnists, political cartoonists and news magazines, but apparently the average citizen either knows nothing of the trip or just doesn't care.

This is in spite of the fact that the 141-man entourage that accompanied Agnew spent $3,000 of the taxpayers' money each night for accommodations, not to mention the cost of the four Boeing 707s and two bullet-proof Cadillacs used for transportation of the vice president and his caddies.

For this week's Speakout column, nearly all of the people asked by the Herald for their reactions to his trip had no comment because they knew nothing about the trip. Some, in fact, didn't even know Agnew had made the trip.

Whether this is because the people called simply don't keep up with the news or because the Vice President doesn't have much of a following is open to conjecture. However, two people did respond to the Speakout topic, and while one was in favor of the trip, the other was opposed to it.

Mrs. Herbert P. Snyder, 4503 Thorntree Lane, Rolling Meadows, was in favor of the trip. "If it helps our relationship with the other countries, then it's a good idea. I'm not against trips like those as long as they help."

Mrs. Ralph W. Morris, 901 Arrowhead Dr., Palatine, had a different opinion. "I'm sure Agnew is a very intelligent man, but I can't see how he can gain from such a short tour. I think it would be hard to get any real knowledge of the country in such a short time."

Police Seeking Rapists' Names

by BOB CASEY

Des Plaines police yesterday were seeking the identities of several men who reportedly raped two women visitors Saturday night at the Big Bend Lake Indian camp in Des Plaines.

Police Chief Arthur Hintz and representatives of the state's attorney's office yesterday refused to comment on the reported incident, although police indicated that an investigation is underway.

The two women, both in their late 20's, reportedly were sexually assaulted late Saturday night after spending all day Saturday and Saturday evening at the Indian camp, the Herald learned.

The women, both suburban residents, reportedly brought supplies and household items to the Indian camp Saturday and were invited to stay for what reportedly was described as an "Indian ceremony."

About 10 p.m., one of the women reportedly was told by an Indian man that her companion, who was on the other side of the Indian campsite, wanted to leave the site and go home.

The woman then reportedly started walking toward their car when she was grabbed by two Indian men and dragged into one of several tents set up at the campsite. Inside the tent, the two men forcibly disrobed her and she was raped, reports said.

AT ABOUT the same time, her companion was dragged into the woods surrounding the campsite where she reportedly was sexually molested for two hours by several men.

The two women were later released by their attackers and driven home by another visitor to the Indian campsite.

Police, who met yesterday with Mike Chosa, Indian leader, reportedly know the name of at least one of the women's attackers.

It could not be determined whether the attackers were regular residents of the Indian camp or among the hundreds of visitors, both Indian and white, who swell the camp's numbers on weekends.

Police refused to comment yesterday on whether the two women, who reported the crime this week, are willing to press charges.

Chosa could not be reached for comment yesterday.

POLICE REPORTEDLY have been hampered in their investigation by difficulties in interviewing the campsite residents.

Hintz, Capt. Dale Mensching, Det. Robert Zelmet of the Des Plaines police and two members of the state's attorney's office met twice yesterday with the Indians at the campsite and later refused to make any statement.

The Indians, who moved into the forest preserve campsite July 2 and set up a number of tents without a permit, had been routed by police from the former Belmont Harbor Nike base in Chicago. They have said they originally occupied the Nike base after an apartment building in Chicago housing several Indian families burned down.

The Indians have complained of police harassment at the campsite, which has been the scene of several fights and a knife fight recently. Police report widespread drunkenness among the camp residents at nights and on the weekends.

County officials have given the Indian group, which ranges in size from less than 100 during the week to more than 200 or 300 on week ends, permission to stay in the Big Bend Forest Preserve site at least temporarily.

TRISH SOMERS, last year's queen, places the Miss American Derby crown on this year's winner, Karen Jurasek, 21, of Aurora. The contest was held yesterday at Arlington Park Race Track, where Miss Jurasek will reign over the American Derby festivities this Saturday.

Karen Jurasek New 'Miss American Derby'

Miss Karen Jurasek, a 21-year-old student from Aurora College, was named Miss American Derby 1971 yesterday at Arlington Park Race Track.

Miss Jurasek, a resident of 1049 Garfield, Aurora, was one of 19 entrants in the annual beauty pageant which precedes this Saturday's "Race of the Year," the $125,000 added American Derby.

As Miss American Derby, she will reign over the festivities, draw the post positions for the race and present the trophy to the winning jockey. The Derby will be telecast live and in color between 5 and 5:30 p.m. on CBS.

Miss Jurasek was also presented a $100 bond by race track officials and will be welcomed, with her family, as guests of the track on Derby day.

First runner up in the contest was Donna DeLord, 18, 200 N. Pine, Prospect Heights. Second runner up was Kris Clark, 19, 454 Banbury, Arlington Heights.

The contest was sponsored by Arlington Park Race Track and Judged by representatives of the Chicago area press.

$16 Million Budget Asked

A $16 million tentative budget for the 1971-72 school year will be presented to the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education Planning Committee Monday night by school administrators.

The committee, on which all seven board members serve, will go over the budget before it is presented for tentative approval at the Aug. 12 board meeting.

"We will have a balanced budget this year, though a couple of our funds will still show deficits from previous years," Business Manager James Slater, who has been coordinating budget planning for several months, said.

This is the second year administrators and board members have worked to reduce the $1 million deficit the district accumulated through 1969.

"WE CAME out with a $750,000 cash balance at the end of the last fiscal year (June 30, 1971), but we still have a couple of funds in the red," Slater said. Part of the cash balance is early taxes for next year.

Primarily, the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund (IMRF), the rent fund for Schaumburg High School, and the Bond and Interest Fund will have budgeted deficits in the coming year.

"We have had an unexpected increase in non-certificated staff, whose pension is covered by the IMRF. The levy for the fund was passed a year ago, so it will take us a couple of years to make up the difference," Slater said.

By June 30, 1973, the district plans to have the IMRF in the black.

"What happened on the rent fund was that we levied for the exact amount and didn't figure on not collecting all the taxes, so we had to borrow from other funds to make the $240,000 payment to the Illinois School Building Commission, (ISBC)," Slater said.

Next spring the rent fund will be in the black, Slater says.

Through the Rent Fund, Dist. 211 is buying Schaumburg High School from the ISBC on an interest free loan. It will take a little more than 16 years to complete payments for the school. The district has already made three payments.

THE BOND Interest Fund provides tax money to pay for bonds approved by voters in referenda. A year ago, when levies for funds to operate the 1971-72 school year were set, district officials were not sure when interest payments on bonds sold this summer for construction of School No. 5 would come due.

A $3 million bond sale with two interest payments due before July 1, 1972, has been set up for Aug. 12.

"Actually, we will be saving the taxpayers $150,000 in the long run. By paying so much interest early, we are saving ourselves money. This fall, when the board decides how much it wants to levy for next year, in the Bond and Interest Fund that interest deficit will be added on," Slater said.

Station Operator Urges City Limit Price Sign Size

A Rolling Meadows service station owner has recommended an ordinance to limit the size of gasoline price signs at service stations in the city.

George Bonner, owner of the Union 76 service station on Kirchoff Road, told the city council this week that a uniform gasoline price sign would "stabilize the gasoline prices." He suggested that all signs be 12 inches.

Bonner, who has made numerous appearances before the council this year with grievances, including sign inspections he called inadequate, said "the city needs a little more tightening up as far as gasoline stations go." He added that many service stations are losing money by continuing gasoline wars which are strengthened by large signs displaying extremely low gasoline prices. He said that 45 per cent of all gasoline stations in the Chicago area have changed hands within the past year partly because of price wars.

"Right now, I'm losing money on my gasoline and trying to sell other products to make money," he told the council. "Gasoline has become a come on for other sales."

He also said some stations falsely advertise their gasoline prices which is actually more when numerous taxes are included. "Stabilized sign pricing could prevent this."

AFTER BONNER'S presentation Mayor Roland Meyer said the problem of decreased profits may be with the gasoline and oil suppliers. Meyer, a former partner in a Rolling Meadows service station, said the rents are becoming a joke. He suggested that Bonner and other dealers contact the distributor to ask for lower prices during the gasoline price cutting.

However, he said the sign ordinance recommendation will be deferred to the ordinance and judiciary committee for further study.

Bonner's previous meetings with city officials included his criticism of use of city sales tax revenue and inadequate sign inspections.

He complained earlier this year that the sales tax revenue, which nears $100,000 each month, should be distributed in part to city businesses. He stated that the businesses were the cause of added revenue and should be rewarded for it.

He also alleged that building and zoning inspectors had only visually checked his service station sign.

Meyer was once affiliated with the service station Bonner now operates.

Cub Scout Pack 68 Conducts Can Drive

Rolling Meadows Cub Scout Pack 68 is conducting a can drive Saturday from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m.

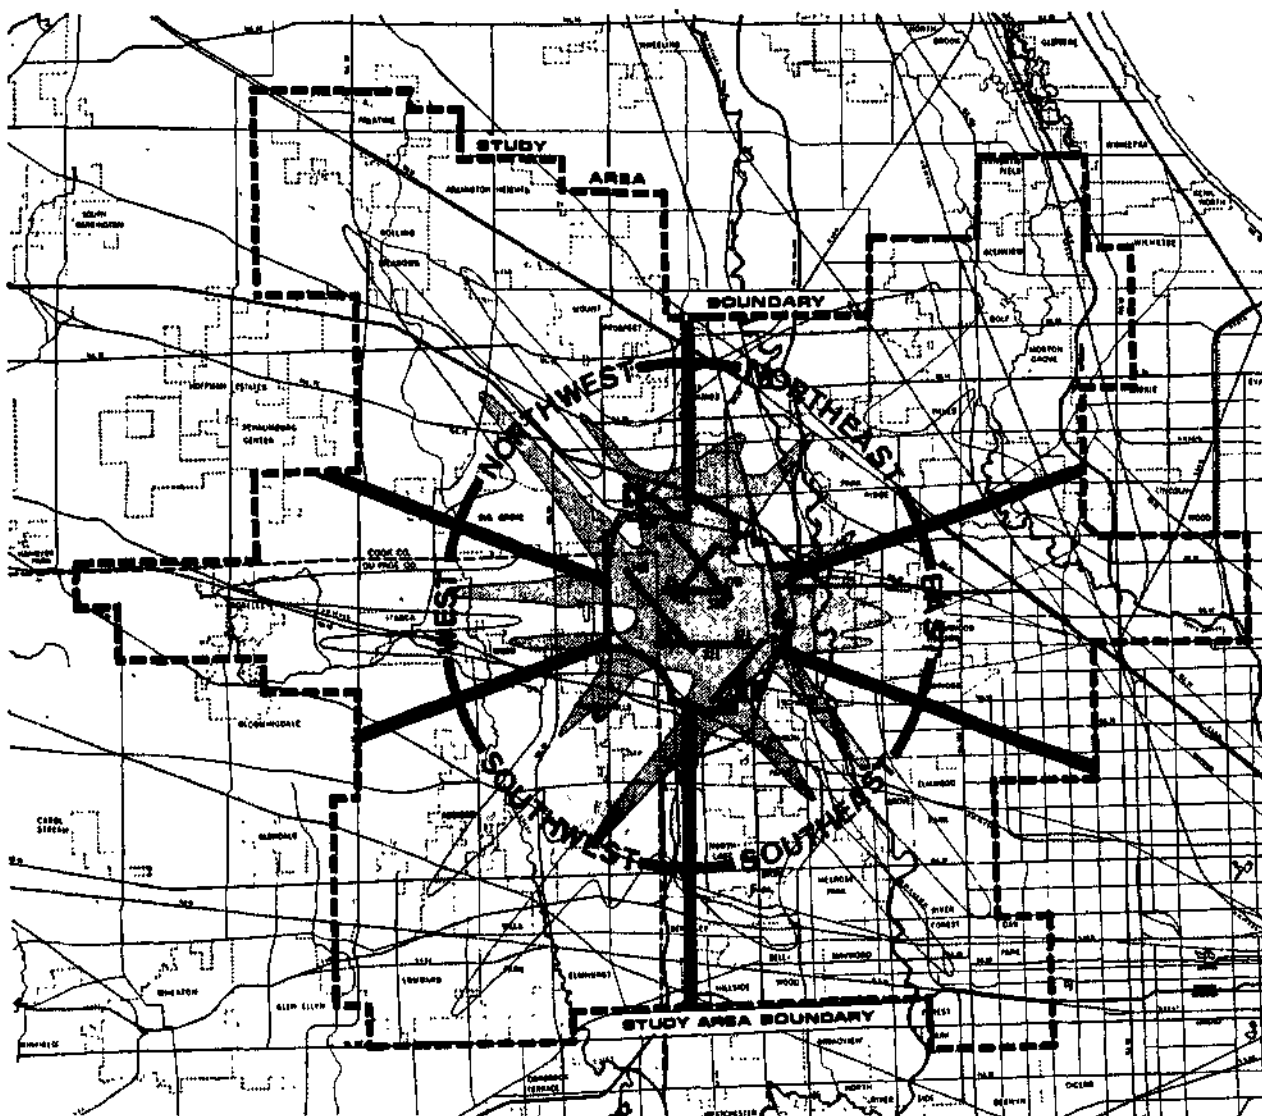

All cans should be taken to the Topps parking lot on Kirchoff Road. A city public works truck will be used to haul the cans, which should be washed before being brought to the pick up point.

Suburbanites To March On O'Hare?

by BOB LAHEY

A mass of "nice people" from the suburbs may march on O'Hare Airport to disrupt international air traffic unless they receive some relief to nerves jangled by roaring jet aircraft, their spokesman told a federal panel yesterday.

The gentle threat came during the course of the second day of hearings by

UNLESS CHANGES are made in noise abatement procedures at O'Hare Airport, more areas of the northwest suburbs will be experiencing serious noise pollution problems by 1975, according to the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC) study released this week. — Darkest shaded areas of the map indicate land which should not be used for any residential purposes. Slightly lighter shaded areas show land in which the only living units should be highly insulated apartments constructed according to NIPC standards.

Counseling Center Saved!

That was the happy report issued Tuesday by officials of The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center, which faced an Aug. 2 deadline to meet the most serious financial crisis in its history.

The Northwest suburban family service agency had to raise one-half of its current $15,000 deficit by Monday or face the necessity of cutting back service to area families.

If a minimum of $7,500 could be raised by the budget deadline a private foundation has agreed to make a "matching grant."

To help the Center reach its goal, the Herald June 21 launched an emergency fund appeal to its readers.

By yesterday, the fund total was $9,162 — $1,082 over the minimum needed.

"With several more days to go, we are hopeful additional last-minute contributions will bring the fund total to at least $9,500," said Charles E. Hayes, Herald editor in chief. "The response of our readers as well as township officials, churches, and civic organizations has been most gratifying. We hope others will take advantage of this final opportunity to help preserve the only family agency available to our suburbs which is equipped to solve family problems."

Donations may still be sent to the Herald "Center Fund," P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

A final list of donors will be published in Tuesday's Herald.

Among the flood of last-minute donations to the fund were gifts of $300 from the Kiwanis Club of Des Plaines and $100 from Honeywell, Inc., Arlington Heights.

Several individual donations ranging from $25 to $50 also were received yesterday as well as numerous $5 and $10 gifts.

neously at various locations in the country, centered on noise at O'Hare and other major airports in the Midwest.

One of the most dramatic presentations was given yesterday by George Franks, chairman of the O'Hare Area Noise Abatement Council.

IT WAS HE who indicated to the panel that direct action is being considered by suburbanites who he said have received only lip service from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and other governmental agencies during a 10-year campaign to curtail noise around O'Hare.

After outlining campaigns ranging from letters to the President to appeals to local officials, Franks said in answer to a member of the panel, "We may hold our next meeting out on the runway."

Franks and other members of the Noise Abatement Council later confirmed that a sit-in at O'Hare will definitely be considered by early next summer unless they receive relief from noise over the summer months.

A suburban village official, Ted Deka of Wood Dale, dramatized the noise problem for the hearing officials when he presented letters from school officials testifying that teaching is suspended in Wood Dale schools for 20 seconds each time an airplane takes off or lands at O'Hare.

ONE LETTER, from J. R. Eoad, superintendent of Bensenville Elementary School Dist. 2 and Fenton High School Dist. 100, estimated that those disruptions totaled the loss of 20.3 pupil-teaching hours per day.

Coad's letter also informed the panel that one elementary school for the handicapped located near O'Hare before recent construction of new runways there will be sold by the district because teaching had become impossible.

Also testifying was Ron W. Edwards, a member of the Elk Grove Aviation Committee and the Noise Abatement Council. Edwards told the panel that Elk Grove had adopted a master plan in 1967 in an attempt to allow orderly development while accommodating anticipated increases in noise irritation from the airfield.

He said the village spent $30,000 on the plan, basing its forecasts on information from governmental agencies and O'Hare officials. But he said later changes in runway construction, made without informing local officials, destroyed the effectiveness of the plan.

FRANKS' presentation brought an ovation from an audience which had been lulled for two days with technical and scientific data concerning the problems of noise produced by jet aircraft. He said that in desperation the Noise Abatement Council had abandoned appeals to government and produced copies of a letter he recently mailed to twelve major airlines appealing to their "humanity."

"We have followed the due process," Franks said, "and we will run due process right into the ground. But then we may go out to the runways."

Pair Appointed To Ecology Group

Mayor Roland Meyer has appointed Mrs. Rosalie Hansen and Robert Iannone to the newly created Recycling, Ecology and Beautification Commission (REB). The appointments were approved by Rolling Meadows City Council this week.

With the appointments the present membership of REB is four, including Ald. Daniel Weber and Mrs. Alice McFeggan.

Mrs. Hansen has conducted recycling projects in conjunction with local youth organizations while Iannone is chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Ecology Committee. Representatives from other city organizations are being sought for appointment to the commission which will consist of 10 or 12 persons, according to Weber, REB chairman.

The REB commission was established to improve the beautification of Rolling Meadows with money made from city-sponsored recycling projects. The recycling will be handled through the city public works department which will furnish transportation and use of the garbage compacting station.

REB is financed by city council.

Speakout

Yes, Agnew Did Take A Trip

by PAUL GREENFIELD

Vice President Spiro Agnew's 10-nation goodwill tour-golfing exhibition has caught the fancy of most of the nationally syndicated newspaper columnists, political cartoonists and news magazines, but apparently the average citizen either knows nothing of the trip or just doesn't care.

This is in spite of the fact that the 141-man entourage that accompanied Agnew spent $3,000 of the taxpayers' money each night for accommodations, not to mention the cost of the four Boeing 707s and two bullet-proof Cadillacs used for transportation of the vice president and his caddies.

For this week's Speakout column, nearly all of the people asked by the Herald for their reactions to his trip had no comment because they knew nothing about the trip. Some, in fact, didn't even know Agnew had made the trip.

Whether this is because the people called simply don't keep up with the news or because the Vice President doesn't have much of a following is open to conjecture. However, two people did respond to the Speakout topic, and while one was in favor of the trip, the other was opposed to it.

Mrs. Herbert P. Snyder, 4503 Thorntree Lane, Rolling Meadows, was in favor of the trip. "If it helps our relationship with the other countries, then it's a good idea. I'm not against trips like those as long as they help."

Mrs. Ralph W. Morris, 901 Arrowhead Dr., Palatine, had a different opinion. "I'm sure Agnew is a very intelligent man, but I can't see how he can gain from such a short tour. I think it would be hard to get any real knowledge of the country in such a short time."

Police Seeking Rapists' Names

by BOB CASEY

Des Plaines police yesterday were seeking the identities of several men who reportedly raped two women visitors Saturday night at the Big Bend Lake Indian camp in Des Plaines.

Police Chief Arthur Hintz and representatives of the state's attorney's office yesterday refused to comment on the reported incident, although police indicated that an investigation is underway.

The two women, both in their late 20's, reportedly were sexually assaulted late Saturday night after spending all day Saturday and Saturday evening at the Indian camp, the Herald learned.

The women, both suburban residents, reportedly brought supplies and household items to the Indian camp Saturday and were invited to stay for what reportedly was described as an "Indian ceremony."

About 10 p.m., one of the women reportedly was told by an Indian man that her companion, who was on the other side of the Indian campsite, wanted to leave the site and go home.

The woman then reportedly started walking toward their car when she was grabbed by two Indian men and dragged into one of several tents set up at the campsite. Inside the tent, the two men forcibly disrobed her and she was raped, reports said.

AT ABOUT the same time, her companion was dragged into the woods surrounding the campsite where she reportedly was sexually molested for two hours by several men.

The two women were later released by their attackers and driven home by another visitor to the Indian campsite.

Police, who met yesterday with Mike Chosa, Indian leader, reportedly know the name of at least one of the women's attackers.

It could not be determined whether the attackers were regular residents of the Indian camp or among the hundreds of visitors, both Indian and white, who swell the camp's numbers on weekends.

Police refused to comment yesterday on whether the two women, who reported the crime this week, are willing to press charges.

Chosa could not be reached for comment yesterday.

POLICE REPORTEDLY have been hampered in their investigation by difficulties in interviewing the campsite residents.

Hintz, Capt. Dale Mensching, Det. Robert Zeimet of the Des Plaines police and two members of the state's attorney's office met twice yesterday with the Indians at the campsite and later refused to make any statement.

The Indians, who moved into the forest preserve campsite July 2 and set up a number of tents without a permit, had been routed by police from the former Belmont Harbor Nike base in Chicago. They have said they originally occupied the Nike base after an apartment building in Chicago housing several Indian families burned down.

The Indians have complained of police harassment at the campsite, which has been the scene of several fights and a knife fight recently. Police report widespread drunkenness among the camp residents at nights and on the weekends.

County officials have given the Indian group, which ranges in size from less than 100 during the week to more than 200 or 300 on week ends, permission to stay in the Big Bend Forest Preserve site at least temporarily.

Teachers, Board Reach Agreement On Pact Terms

Dist. 23 teachers' salaries for the 1971-72 school year have been settled by the negotiating teams of the school board and the teachers' association.

Late Gifts Save Center

That was the happy report issued Tuesday by officials of The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center, which faced an Aug. 2 deadline to meet the most serious financial crisis in its history.

The Northwest suburban family service agency had to raise one-half of its current $15,000 deficit by Monday or face the possibility of cutting back service to area families.

If a minimum of $7,500 could be raised by the budget deadline a private foundation has agreed to make a "matching grant."

To help the Center reach its goal, the Herald June 21 launched an emergency fund appeal to its readers.

By yesterday, the fund total was $9,162 — $1,662 over the minimum needed.

"With several more days to go, we are hopeful additional last-minute contributions will bring the fund total to at least $9,500," said Charles E. Hayes, Herald editor in chief. "The response of our readers as well as township officials, churches, and civic organizations has been most gratifying. We hope others will take advantage of this final opportunity to help preserve the only family agency available to our suburbs which is equipped to solve family problems."

Donations may still be sent to the Herald "Center Fund," P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

A final list of donors will be published in Tuesday's Herald.

Among the flood of last-minute donations to the fund were gifts of $300 from the Kiwanis Club of Des Plaines and $100 from Honeywell, Inc., Arlington Heights. Several individual donations ranging from $25 to $50 also were received yesterday as well as numerous $5 and $10 gifts.

The new salary schedule will not be announced before the board's August 11 meeting, at which time board members are expected to approve the schedule. Members of the Prospect Heights Education Association are also expected to meet soon to ratify the salary settlement.

The negotiating teams have been meeting since March to determine salary increases. Earlier, Supt. Edward Grodsky predicted that the increases will probably be less this year than last year. He said, "The increase in the cost of living is lower than last year. And we are short of money. We have lost several referendums proposing tax hikes."

Dist. 23 teachers' salaries are based on a merit system rather than the salary index scale used in neighboring districts, on training and experience. Under the merit system, teachers are paid a cost-of-living increase and a merit increase.

The merit increases are based on five ratings: Unsatisfactory, below average, competent, above average, and superior. The last three ratings carry an increase in salary.

IN THEIR FIRST proposal, the teachers asked that a superior teacher be given $850, an above-average teacher be given $800 and a competent teacher be given $750. However, the board originally proposed $260 for superior teachers, $130 for above average teachers and $85 for competent teachers.

The negotiators agreed before they reached a settlement to use last year's salary scale to determine the teachers' base pay. And they have agreed that the cost of living increase will be 5.5 per cent of the base pay.

Last year teachers rated as competent received a merit increase of $200, above-average teachers received $400, and superior teachers received $600.

Funds allotted for teachers' salaries in the 1971-72 budget ($925,596) reflect a decrease of $92,000 from last year. The total education fund, $1,401,731, is about $23,000 under last year's budget figure.

According to Business Manager James Hendren, the decrease of instruction expenditures resulted from cutting five positions from the teaching staff, reducing contractual services and reducing the amount budgeted for substitute teachers.

Her Do-It-Yourself Nursery School

by BETSY BROOKER

Laughter and eager voices echo from the yard behind the two-story white frame house. A child darts from a garage in a paint-smeared smock and disappears through the back door. In the garage, children and toys have crowded out a Buick and an assortment of lawn tools.

Four children are grouped around a small table in the garage and are blowing through straws at blobs of paint smeared on sheets of white paper. As they blow, the paint swirls and mixes with more paint, forming a psychedelic pattern.

A lone boy sits at another table industriously drawing a portrait of "my house" with colored crayons. Two other children take turns swinging on an old tire hung from a tree branch while a third inspects a bookcase filled with games and puzzles.

An adult voice calls the children into the house where they beeline for a phonograph in the corner of the living room. It is the end of the "free play" period and time for a music lesson.

THE CHILDREN are all students at a nursery school in Prospect Heights. Their teacher is Kathy Wingert. Six months ago, after a futile search for a "good, economical school close to home," Kathy decided to start her own nursery school. A teacher by profession, Kathy is now studying for her doctorate in reading education.

Her do-it-yourself project has developed into a full-fledged school that uses a mixture of Jean Piaget, Maria Montessori and Sesame Street teaching techniques.

Kathy describes the school as a "cooperative." None of the students pay an attendance fee, but all of the mothers pitch in and make teaching materials, organize games and drive the children on field trips.

While the school is housed in Kathy's garage during the summer, it is moved from home to home during the regular school year. The mothers take turns teaching the children, going to Kathy for technical advice. Kathy's co-teachers in the non-certified school are Carol Williams, Lenore Collins, Diane Guarniere, Grace Wagner, Anne Thornes, Kathy Huber, Debbie Tracy and Carol Peterson.

It all began with an off hand remark from her husband Roger. Kathy had complained that she wasn't satisfied with any of the nursery schools in the area, with the exception of the Montessori School which she said was too expensive. Roger's reply was, "I bet you could do a better job yourself."

"I MADE A FEW telephone calls to people in the community who I knew had pre-schoolers," said Kathy. "Most of the mothers were very excited about the idea of starting our own nursery school. We all share a common problem. Because of the large house lots and absence of sidewalks in this area, most of our preschoolers do not have playmates within walking distance."

The mothers met at Kathy's home and discussed their problem. They decided they wanted to give their children an op-

Under Trains And Over Barbed Wire

Czech Makes His Own 'Great Escape'

by TOM VON MALDER

It sounded like any one of a hundred movie escapes from behind the Iron Curtain, complete with the escapee hanging from the undercarriage of a streaking train.

But it wasn't. It was real and it happened to George Lippert 18 years ago.

"I don't know about it being like the movies," Lippert said in a recent interview, while recalling his adventure. "I only know I wouldn't want to do it a second time. I don't know if I could."

Lippert, who lives at 1301 Cottonwood

Ln. in Mount Prospect, was born in Prague, Czechoslovakia in 1921. He vividly remembers the 1938 Munich agreement by which France and Great Britain gave his Czechoslovakia to Hitler and the Nazis.

"I got married in 1944," Lippert said. "It was after the war, in 1945, that I became an active member of the anti-Communist party, called the Beles Party after our president."

BUT IT WASN'T until 1949 that Lippert got into serious trouble with the Communist regime.

"I openly voted against the Communists in 1949 and was placed on their blacklist," Lippert said. The next year, Lippert was kicked out of his job as a chemist because "I didn't have a positive approach to the Communist regime."

The soft-spoken former refugee took a puff on his cigarette. "There was nothing I could do. They suggested I go to work in the coal mines."

But, with the help of a friend, he managed to avoid the mine pits and get a job as a buyer in the steel industry.

The period of respite for Lippert was short however. In the spring of 1953, he received a secret message from a member of the Communist-controlled labor union. "The message said that my days over there are counted."

THIS MESSAGE forced a decision and the decision was to escape. "I knew it was impossible for my whole family to escape as at that time Czechoslovakia was blocked from all sides. Buy by listening to Radio Free Europe I got the impression that in two to three years the

House and Senate leaders have reached a behind-the-scenes compromise that could provide Lockheed Aircraft Corp. with a government guaranteed loan in time to stave off bankruptcy. Under the agreement, the Nixon administration would abandon its demand for a

Rail talks have resumed in Washington but little hope is seen of averting a rail strike set today against six more lines.

Ford Motor Co. announced it will hike new car prices by at least 4.9 per cent and Chrysler said its price increases would be "in the same ballpark." General Motors refused to say if GM cars would cost more.

The State

Chicago newspapers contend former Gov. Otto Kerner bought $25,000 worth of race track stock while he was governor in 1966 and sold it 10 months later for $150,000. Federal sources say Kerner reported the profit as a capital gain. Only 50 per cent of a capital gain is taxable and the tax comes to only 25 per cent. Illinois Racing Board records of the alleged transaction are missing, perhaps destroyed, according to the board's secretary.

Chile's pro-Marxist government looked toward the U.S.-owned telephone company and First National City Bank of New York as its next targets in progressive nationalization of the country's major private industries.

Sudan President Jaafar Numeiry said the reaction of the Soviet press to the execution of 14 ringleaders in last week's short-lived Communist coup has strained Sudan's relations with eastern Europe.

Three battalions of Laotian army troops have retaken from the Communists the strategic town of Saravane, which guards a main junction on the Ho Chi Minh supply trail in southern Laos, U.S. military spokesmen announced.

Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk said that President Lyndon B. Johnson "did not have any plans" to widen the Vietnam War prior to the 1964 Gulf of Tonkin incident. Rusk testified before the Senate judiciary subcommittee on separation of powers.

The Market

The threat of a steel strike and a rail strike that has shut down four major roads helped send the market reeling to its lowest level in six months. After tumbling nearly 17 points in two previous sessions, the Dow Jones Average plunged another 10.59 to 861.42. Other indicators also were down. Declines overwhelmed advances, 1,232 to 206. Volume swelled to 14,570,000 shares from 13,940,000 the day before. Prices eased in moderate turnover on the American Exchange.

Sometimes college students spend the summer as camp counselors, store clerks, or construction workers. But Bruce Boxleitner is spending his summer as a villain. He is The Creepy Salami in "The Misadventures of Sherlock Holmes," now playing for children at Chicago's Goodman Theatre.

Bruce has completed a three-year course in dramatic art at Goodman Theatre. During his senior year at Prospect High School, he had a leading role in the play that won the high school state championship — the part of Sir Thomas More in "A Man for All Seasons." Bruce is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Boxleitner, 212 N. Dale Ave.

COUPLES from South Church Community-Baptist will renew their wedding vows Sunday at the church's annual Wedding Bells Service. Special invitations were sent to about 300 couples who were united in marriage at South Church or by one of its pastors. This is the 24th year for this special service. In the past, couples have come long distances to participate.

The Rev. Edwin Stevens encourages couples to sit together and hold hands while he reads the wedding vows. He laughingly reminds teenagers in the congregation that listening to the vows while holding hands does not amount to a marriage.

An off-duty Mount Prospect patrolman accidentally shot his seven-year-old nephew Thursday afternoon.

Toby Romine, of Stone Park, Ill., was shot in the right side between the rib and hip bone. Mount Prospect police reported. He was admitted to Northwest Community Hospital where he was listed in good condition.

Police said that about 1:30 p.m. George A. Cangialosi had just finished cleaning the gun in the kitchen of his 1729 W. Magnolia Ln. home when he placed it in the holster on the kitchen table. At that time, Toby and his sister were present.

Police said Cangialosi's niece pointed to the trigger and asked if anything would happen if she touched it.

Cangialosi told his niece that nothing would happen because the gun could not go off, police said. Then, the police report continued, he touched the trigger and the gun went off, with the bullet striking his nephew.

Chief Newell Edmond said Cangialosi has been on the Mount Prospect police force for four months. He said no disciplinary action is being considered at the present time. "We will certainly be looking into the incident some more," Edmond said.

2 Women Hurt In Accident

Two women were injured at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday when three cars were involved in an accident on Central Road.

Taken to Northwest Community Hospital were one driver, Gail M. Urban, 28, of 212 S. Hi-Lusi Ave., and one passenger, Helen Keller, of Chicago. Both were treated and released. Miss Keller was riding in a car operated by Earl P. Steinmetz, 36, of Chicago.

Police said that an unknown vehicle forced Ronald J. Frazzlo, 19, of 114 Bob-

Blood Sought For Tot, 2½

Residents of Buffalo Grove have begun a drive to collect blood donations for a 2½-year-old leukemia victim.

The boy, Danny Sandler, recently was returned home from Children's Memorial Hospital in Chicago, where he was treated for about 2½ weeks. However, his release does not mean that the boy has been cured.

During the short hospital stay, Danny received more than 20 units of blood as part of his treatment, and if he is readmitted more blood will be needed.

Doctors have diagnosed his illness as lymphatic leukemia. Danny is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Sandler of Buffalo Grove.

The blood drive will be held beginning at 9 a.m. on Saturday, Aug. 7, at the James Fenimore Cooper Junior High School, on Plum Grove Circle, just east of Arlington Heights Road in Buffalo Grove.

The Beverly Blood Center, Inc., a professional, non-profit service, will be in charge of drawing blood.

Donors may have any blood type. However, there are some restrictions.

THOSE WHO cannot act as donors include persons who have had malaria, hepatitis, high blood pressure, or heart disease, as well as persons who have had major surgery or given birth within the past six months.

Prospective donors must not eat fatty foods for four hours before they plan to donate blood. It was also recommended that prospective donors call their own doctors if they have any questions about their own physical condition and its relation to being a blood donor.

A group of volunteers will schedule blood donations in an effort to avoid delays and long lines.

Persons interested in donating blood were asked to call the following volunteers: Mrs. Evan Fader, 537-3273; Mrs. Richard Friedman, 537-3839; Mrs. Richard Henrich, 537-2085; Mrs. Merrill Hoyt, 537-3670; and Mrs. Les Minkus, 537-3494.

The Steinmetz car was waiting to make a left turn at the time. All three cars were going east on Central Road, 60 feet east of Northwest Highway when the accident occurred, police said. The unknown car did not stop, they added.

Frazzlo was charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident and will appear in court at 9:30 a.m. Sept. 1.

Police Seeking Rapists' Names

by BOB CASEY

Des Plaines police yesterday were seeking the identities of several men who reportedly raped two women visitors Saturday night at the Big Bend Lake Indian camp in Des Plaines.

Police Chief Arthur Hintz and representatives of the state's attorney's office yesterday refused to comment on the reported incident, although police indicated that an investigation is underway.

The two women, both in their late 20's, reportedly were sexually assaulted late Saturday night after spending all day Saturday and Sunday evening at the Indian camp, the Herald learned.

The women, both suburban residents, reportedly brought supplies and household items to the Indian camp Saturday and were invited to stay for what reportedly was described as an "Indian ceremony."

About 10 p.m., one of the women reportedly was told by an Indian man that her companion, who was on the other side of the Indian campsite, wanted to leave the site and go home.

The woman then reportedly started walking toward their car when she was grabbed by two Indian men and dragged into one of several tents set up at the campsite. Inside the tent, the two men forcibly disrobed her and she was raped, reports said.

AT ABOUT the same time, her companion was dragged into the woods surrounding the campsite where she reportedly was sexually molested for two hours by several men.

The two women were later released by their attackers and driven home by another visitor to the Indian campsite.

Police, who met yesterday with Mike Chosa, Indian leader, reportedly know Communist regime would be over. Then I could come back."

Yet once the decision to escape had been made, it could never be certain that he would return or even make it out of the country. So, Lippert and his wife got a divorce, with her taking care of their two children.

Since it was impossible to get to West Germany directly at that time, the plan was to go over the border to East Germany. This was in July.

"At the border I could see the soldier and hear the dogs about 200 yards away. I laid down on the ground. I had brought some black pepper which I spread around my resting place."

The pepper was to throw the dogs off his scent. "The pepper saved my life," Lippert said. He was then free to move across the border into East Germany.

It was then a 50-mile hike to Dresden where Lippert sold his wedding ring for German money. He needed the money to purchase the train fare for East Berlin.

LIPPERT LEFT Dresden on a regular Berlin express. After an hour's ride, a Russian patrol bordered the train.

"They came from one side only so I was able to climb under the car until the next station," Lippert said. The next station was some 50 miles and 30 minutes away.

Once back in the train, Lippert had only a short ride before another patrol boarded the train. This time it was the East Germans.

"These were regular patrols. But when the Germans came on I had no choice but to face them. They came from both sides and I was in the middle with nowhere to go.

"I still recall they asked for the identification card of the man next to me and the woman across from me. I had already given up. It was just plain luck."

The guards left without asking to see a card from Lippert, who had none.

The train reached East Berlin without further incident. There Lippert was shocked to see the buildings still bombed out. "I could only orientate myself by watching the sun go down. I couldn't recognize anything."

The sun went down — to the west, Lippert's goal. He walked to the Brandenburg Gate. There was no wall yet dividing the city, but barbed wire and armed guards had the same effect. Lippert could not get across to West Berlin.

"THERE I WAS completely lost. So I decided to go ask somebody to help me."

The time was about 5 p.m. and Lippert began walking through the park, trying to judge people by their faces. He picked out an old man and "in my broken German I asked for help to get to West Berlin."

The man advised him to sit and wait until the next morning at 4 a.m. when the border would be opened again.

"This changed my opinion of Germany. From my childhood I had been brought up to hate the Germans and their 300 years of control over my people. It was amazing for me. I realized then there were only good and bad people."

He later met a woman who approached him with the straight question if he were trying to cross the border. Lippert said that in his naivete he told her the truth. She told him she too was waiting to cross and they spent the next lonely, frightening hours together.

The next morning, after hiding from patrols among crowds all night long, they separated with Lippert taking the elevated train to West Berlin. Once there he tried to get a policeman's attention by changing his clothes and swimming in a public fountain.

"I thought one had to do something wrong to get a policeman's attention," Lippert laughed.

When he went to the Canadian embassy, there were so many other refugees ahead of him that he was taken to the American Army Intelligence service. Six weeks with them, three with the British and three with the French, as the Allies tried to learn as much as possible from Lippert about conditions in Czechoslovakia.

AT ONE POINT, the French intelligence service asked Lippert to become a spy for them and carry secret codes back to his country. In return, they offered him immediate passage to the United States. Otherwise he faced a two-year waiting period.

Lippert said he refused when he learned that agents were being sent over with false codes. Arrangements were made by the French to have the Czechs capture these agents so they would be confused by the false codes.

Before coming to the United States, Lippert worked for the U.S. refugee program in West Berlin and Munich. He married again in 1958 to Edith, a German girl. In January 1966 he entered this country and settled in Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Edith followed later.

The couple now have a five-year-old son, Erik. They moved to Arlington Heights in 1961 when Lippert was offered a job at Pre-Finished Metals in Elk Grove Village, his first job as a chemist since being black-listed by the Communists in 1950.

The Lipperts also have lived in Park Ridge and will shortly move to Schaumburg.

Back in 1968, Lippert helped his son, George, escape. He is now an electronic engineer in San Francisco. The other child from his first marriage, Donna, got as far as Munich where she met and fell in love with a German boy. Lippert's first wife had no desire to leave Czechoslovakia, he said.

Suburbanites To March On O'Hare?

by BOB LAHEY

A mass of "nice people" from the suburbs may march on O'Hare Airport to disrupt international air traffic unless they receive some relief to nerves jangled by roaring jet aircraft, their spokesmen told a federal panel yesterday.

The gentle threat came during the course of the second day of hearings by the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) at the Sheraton-Chicago Hotel.

Nearly 100 witnesses paraded before a six-man panel which spent two days collecting evidence for recommendations to Congress on legislation for control of "noise pollution."

Much of the testimony in the Chicago hearings, one of six conducted simultaneously at various locations in the country, centered on noise at O'Hare and other major airports in the Midwest.

One of the most dramatic presentations was given yesterday by George Franks, chairman of the O'Hare Area Noise Abatement Council.

IT WAS HE who indicated to the panel that direct action is being considered by suburbanites who he said have received only lip service from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and other governmental agencies during a 10-year campaign to curtail noise around O'Hare.

After outlining campaigns ranging from letters to the President to appeals to local officials, Franks said in answer to a member of the panel, "We may hold our next meeting out on the runway."

Franks and other members of the Noise Abatement Council later confirmed that a sit-in at O'Hare will definitely be considered by early next summer unless they receive relief from noise over the summer months.

A suburban village official, Ted Deka of Wood Dale, dramatized the noise problem for the hearing officials when he presented letters from school officials testifying that teaching is suspended in Wood Dale schools for 20 seconds each time an airplane takes off or lands at O'Hare.

ONE LETTER, from J. R. Coad, superintendent of Bensenville Elementary School Dist. 2 and Fenton High School Dist. 100, estimated that those disruptions totaled the loss of 20.3 pupil-teaching hours per day.

Coad's letter also informed the panel that one elementary school for the handicapped located near O'Hare before recent construction of new runways there will be sold by the district because teaching had become impossible.

Also testifying was Ron W. Edwards, a member of the Elk Grove Aviation Committee and the Noise Abatement Council. Edwards told the panel that Elk Grove had adopted a master plan in 1967 in an attempt to allow orderly development while accommodating anticipated increases in noise irritation from the airfield.

He said the village spent $30,000 on the plan, basing its forecasts on information from governmental agencies and O'Hare officials. But he said later changes in runway construction, made without informing local officials, destroyed the effectiveness of the plan.

FRANKS' presentation brought an ovation from an audience which had been lulled for two days with technical and scientific data concerning the problems of noise produced by jet aircraft. He said that in desperation the Noise Abatement Council had abandoned appeals to government and produced copies of a letter he recently mailed to twelve major airlines appealing to their "humanity."

"We have followed the due process," Franks said, "and we will run due process right into the ground. But then we may go out to the runways."

Franks appealed to the EPA to ask Congress to take control of airports away from the FAA and give it to an agency which would have the power to force airlines to give considerations to people on the ground.

After Franks' testimony, a panel member, Prof. Sheldon J. Plager of the University of Illinois School of Law, asked Franks, "If we fail in what you are asking us to do, what then?"

Union Choo-Choos Back Into History

by SUE JACOBSON

The rolling countryside surrounding the little farm town of Union, Ill., is peaceful most of the time.

Now and again, though, the silence is broken by the clang of a streetcar and the whistle of an old-time steam engine.

For Union is only a short distance from the site of the Illinois Railway Museum. With more than 100 pieces of old railway equipment on exhibit, the museum is billed as "the world's largest operating railway museum."

An active contributor to the development of the museum is Nick Kallas, a Mount Prospect resident and a coordinator of the Young Adult Program for returning high school drop-outs at Wheeling High School. Kallas spends most of his weekends at the railway museum, helping to restore the old trains and equipment to their original condition.

Kallas said he first became interested in trains when as a boy he sold newspapers on an "L" station in Forest Park.

Increasing interest in the restoration process of old trains led him to join the Illinois Railway Museum about eight years ago. The museum, a nonprofit corporation, is open to all who pay the modest annual membership dues.

THE WORK of maintaining the museum and restoring the items to resemble their original condition is done on a volunteer basis by museum members.

The group now includes about 50 regular members and 500 associate members; most are from the Chicago area.

The museum was started in 1953 at North Chicago. A Chicago streetcar — vintage 1907 — purchased from the Chicago Transit Authority, was the first piece of equipment in the museum.

In 1965 the museum was moved to a field near the small McHenry County town of Union, population 600.

Kallas explained that the reason for the move was the need to locate the engines in an unpopulated area.

"The engines cause smoke and noise and it really isn't good to have them in a highly populated area," he said. "Besides, Union is a more convenient location for most of the museum members."

Museum volunteers built more than three miles of track in the countryside surrounding the new museum for use by the growing number of steam and electric trains and streetcars in the collection. Eventually the track will be extended into Union, enabling passengers to ride right into the center of the town.

Museum members also bought the old railroad station in nearby Marengo for $1, moved it to the museum site and renovated it.

KALLAS NOTED that restoring the old trains and streetcars is a painstaking process.

"Our first piece of equipment, the CTA

streetcar, was three years in restoration. New roofing and siding were put on. The woodwork was refinished and the car was repainted.

"Generally we do the work from builders' photos and blueprints. Usually the builders have them on file and can come up with them after a little searching," he said.

Proper parts and equipment for the restoration work are obtained from companies throughout the country, and museum members often make weekend trips to collect the parts and bring them to the museum, he said.

An estimated 300 persons a day now visit the museum, open daily during the summer months and on weekends during the spring and fall as well.

The visitors ride on a turn-of-the-century Pullman train, relaxing on the plush green seats.

They wander through a 1919 railroad mail car, or the stainless steel "Nebraska Zephyr." Quite a train in its day, the sleek steel monster carried passengers to the West Coast in the 1930s.

There is a huge five-room private railway car, used by railroad executives around the turn of the century. Complete with crystal chandeliers, paintings, and elaborately carved woodwork, it demonstrates the elegance of train travel in bygone days.

GLASS CASES in the railroad station hold the smaller relics from the past — railroad lanterns, train tickets, conductors' badges.

Some of the more popular exhibits with visitors are the streetcars. Originally $50 of these vehicles rode Chicago streets, charging only a few pennies as fare. The last of them disappeared from the roads in the 1950s; only a few remain on view in the nation's museums.

Now young and old alike fill the rattan seats of the refurbished streetcars at the Illinois Railway Museum — for a short ride down the train tracks and into the past.

Water, Water Everywhere —75 Cents Per Thousand

The cost of water is going up in Mount Prospect.

The current water rate of 55 cents per 1,000 gallons is being raised to 75 cents. The increase in water rates was approved at a special village board meeting Wednesday, with only one trustee, Daniel Ahern, dissenting.

Funds from the increase in water rates will be used to pay for a program of expansion and improvements in the village's water supply, storage and distribution system. That program is expected to cost about $1.45 million and take about five years to complete.

The program itself was adopted unanimously by the village board. The program includes increasing the number of wells and water storage capacity as well as reconditioning and deepening other wells. Also included is the installation of alternate power sources for wells.

THE RECOMMENDATIONS were contained is a report prepared last spring by Acting Village Engineer Bill McManamon. Except for one of the proposed wells and part of the recommended increased storage capacity, the board adopted all of his proposals.

McManamon also pointed out in his report that the improvements could not be paid for with the present revenues generated by the water system.

This led to a recommendation by Mayor Robert Teichert that the rates be raised 20 cents. That recommendation, adopted Wednesday, will go into effect Sunday. According to village officials, all water for which bills are made up after Sunday will be at the new rate.

The unanimity over the need for the improvements was not reflected in the discussions over how to pay for those improvements.

Ahern told the board he favored paying for the water system, including the improvements, by raising the village's property tax levy. Ahern's contention was that residents could deduct the higher levy from their federal income tax and thus, in effect, regain some of the higher charges through larger federal income tax deductions.

Ahern, in a prepared statement, told the board, "I do not believe we can pay for the improvements proposed in increasing the water rate 35 per cent (20 cents), and I believe we can make the improvements with far less expense to our residents as a whole than in the manner suggested."

Ahern also said the contention that the rate increase would pay for the improvements was based on the premise that water usage would continue at its present level. But, he warned, it could drop if people were forced to pay more.

AS TO THE CHARGE that placing the water expenses in the tax levy would result in an unfair situation for those who use little water (they would be subsidizing the heavy users), he pointed out that all residents pay for such things as police and fire protection though relatively few persons actually use them.

Teichert opposed Ahern's proposal, contending that property taxes are already too high. He also said that users' fees for water means that people who don't want to use additional water don't have to pay for it.

Scholten also opposed Ahern saying, "We all admit there are inequities in the water system, but do we want to increase them?" Teichert also said that Ahern's proposal to incorporate the water changes in the real estate tax in effect constituted a matter of policy. "If what you say is true for this, then it is true for other things."

One of the approximately half dozen residents who attended the meeting, Wes Pinchot, questioned why present village residents should pay for facilities that would be used for future village annexations. "Even if we would not annex one more foot, we'd still need this plan," said Trustee Donald Furst.

The matter ended with the vote: four trustees approved the rate hike; one trustee, Ahern, voted against it.

Counseling Center Saved!

That was the happy report issued Tuesday by officials of The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center, which faced an Aug. 2 deadline to meet the most serious financial crisis in its history.

The Northwest suburban family service agency had to raise one-half of its current $15,000 deficit by Monday or face the necessity of cutting back service to area families.

To help the Center reach its goal, the Herald June 21 launched an emergency fund appeal to its readers.

By yesterday, the fund total was $9,162 — $1,862 over the minimum needed.

"With several more days to go, we are hopeful additional last-minute contributions will bring the fund total to at least $9,500," said Charles E. Hayes, Herald editor in chief. "The response of our readers as well as township officials, churches, and civic organizations has been most gratifying. We hope others will take advantage of this final opportunity to help preserve the only family agency available to our suburbs which is equipped to solve family problems."

Donations may still be sent to the Herald "Center Fund," P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

A final list of donors will be published in Tuesday's Herald.

Among the flood of last-minute donations to the fund were gifts of $300 from the Kiwanis Club of Des Plaines and $100 from Honeywell, Inc., Arlington Heights. Several individual donations ranging from $25 to $50 also were received yesterday as well as numerous $5 and $10 gifts.

Cop Shoots Nephew, 7

An off-duty Mount Prospect patrolman accidentally shot his seven-year-old nephew Thursday afternoon.

Toby Romine, of Stone Park, Ill., was shot in the right side between the rib and hip bone, Mount Prospect police reported. He was admitted to Northwest Community Hospital where he was listed in good condition.

Police said that about 1:30 p.m. George A. Cangialosi had just finished cleaning the gun in the kitchen of his 1729 W. Magnolia Ln. home when he placed it in the holster on the kitchen table. At that time, Toby and his sister were present.

Police said Cangialosi's niece pointed to the trigger and asked if anything would happen if she touched it.

Cangialosi told his niece that nothing would happen because the gun could not go off, police said. Then, the police report continued, he touched the trigger and the gun went off, with the bullet striking his nephew.

Chief Newell Esmond said Cangialosi has been on the Mount Prospect police force for four months. He said no disciplinary action is being considered at the present time. "We will certainly be looking into the incident some more," Esmond said.

Reception Will Honor Manager

A cocktail reception for Mount Prospect's new village manager, Robert Eppley, will be held Sunday afternoon by the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce.

The reception, from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. will be at the Mount Prospect Holiday Inn, 200 E. Rand Rd.

Eppley takes over as the new Mount Prospect village manager Monday. He was hired by the village board July 20.

Eppley had been the city manager in Wheaton for the last six years. A native of Youngstown, Ohio, his first post as city manager came in 1946 in Washington, Ohio, a town of about 12,000.

Eppley, who is 50, has also served as the manager of Palatine, Northlake and Lombard. Twice he left the village administration field to enter private business.

Under Trains And Over Barbed Wire

Czech Makes His Own 'Great Escape'

by TOM VON MALDER

It sounded like any one of a hundred movie escapes from behind the Iron Curtain, complete with the escapee hanging from the undercarriage of a streaking train.

But it wasn't. It was real and it happened to George Lippert 18 years ago.

"I don't know about it being like the movies," Lippert said in a recent interview, while recalling his adventure. "I only know I wouldn't want to do it a second time. I don't know if I could."

Lippert, who lives at 1301 Cottonwood Ln. in Mount Prospect, was born in Prague, Czechoslovakia in 1921. He vividly remembers the 1938 Munich agreement by which France and Great Britain gave his Czechoslovakia to Hitler and the Nazis.

"I got married in 1944," Lippert said. "It was after the war, in 1946, that I became an active member of the anti-Communist party, called the Belles Party after our president."

BUT IT WASN'T until 1949 that Lippert got into serious trouble with the Communist regime.

"I openly voted against the Communists in 1949 and was placed on their blacklist," Lippert said. The next year, Lippert was kicked out of his job as a chemist because "I didn't have a positive approach to the Communist regime."

The soft-spoken former refugee took a puff on his cigarette. "There was nothing I could do. They suggested I go to work in the coal mines."

But, with the help of a friend, he managed to avoid the mine pits and get a job as a buyer in the steel industry.

The period of respite for Lippert was short however. In the spring of 1953, he received a secret message from a member of the Communist-controlled labor union. "The message said that my days over there are counted."

THIS MESSAGE forced a decision and the decision was to escape. "I knew it was impossible for my whole family to escape as at that time Czechoslovakia was blocked from all sides. Buy by listening to Radio Free Europe I got the impression that in two to three years the Communist regime would be over. Then I could come back."

Yet once the decision to escape had been made, it could never be certain that he would return or even make it out of the country. So, Lippert and his wife got a divorce, with her taking care of their two children.

Since it was impossible to get to West Germany directly at that time, the plan was to go over the border to East Germany. This was in July.

"At the border I could see the soldier and hear the dogs about 200 yards away. I laid down on the ground. I had brought some black pepper which I spread around my resting place."

The pepper was to throw the dogs off his scent. "The pepper saved my life," Lippert said. He was then free to move across the border into East Germany.

It was then a 50-mile hike to Dresden where Lippert sold his wedding ring for German money. He needed the money to purchase the train fare for East Berlin.

LIPPERT LEFT Dresden on a regular Berlin express. After an hour's ride, a Russian patrol bordered the train.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The Apollo 15 astronauts are in lunar orbit after firing their main spacecraft engine partly by hand. They are preparing to begin a rich, six-day harvest of secrets held by the moon for billions of years. Today they will begin their long-awaited descent to a small valley ringed on three sides by rugged mountains and flanked by a mile-wide chasm.

House and Senate leaders have reached a behind-the-scenes compromise that could provide Lockheed Aircraft Corp. with a government guaranteed loan in time to stave off bankruptcy. Under the agreement, the Nixon administration would abandon its demand for a broad $2 billion loan guarantee fund to help other big U.S. firms in financial trouble. Opponents of the loan would drop their filibuster against help for Lockheed.

Rail talks have resumed in Washington but little hope is seen of averting a rail strike set today against six more lines.

Ford Motor Co. announced it will hike new car prices by at least 4.9 per cent and Chrysler said its price increases would be "in the same ballpark." General Motors refused to say if GM cars would cost more.

The State

Chicago newspapers contend former Gov. Otto Kerner bought $25,000 worth of race track stock while he was governor in 1966 and sold it 10 months later for $150,000. Federal sources say Kerner reported the profit as a capital gain. Only 50 per cent of a capital gain is taxable and the tax comes to only 25 per cent. Illinois Racing Board records of the alleged transaction are missing, perhaps destroyed, according to the board's secretary.

The World

Chile's pro-Marxist government looked toward the U.S.-owned telephone company and First National City Bank of New York as its next targets in progressive nationalization of the country's major private industries.

Sudan President Jaafar Numeiry said the reaction of the Soviet press to the execution of 14 ringleaders in last week's short-lived Communist coup has strained Sudan's relations with eastern Europe.

The Market

The threat of a steel strike and a rail strike that has shut down four major roads helped send the market reeling to its lowest level in six months. After tumbling nearly 17 points in two previous sessions, the Dow Jones Average plunged another 10.59 to 861.42. Other indicators also were down. Declines overwhelmed advances, 1,232 to 206. Volume swelled to 14,570,000 shares from 13,940,000 the day before. Prices eased in moderate turnover on the American Exchange.

Sometimes college students spend the summer as camp counselors, store clerks, or construction workers. But Bruce Boxleitner is spending his summer as a villain. He is The Creepy Salami in "The Misadventures of Sherlock Holmes," now playing for children at Chicago's Goodman Theatre.

Bruce has completed a three-year course in dramatic art at Goodman Theatre. During his senior year at Prospect High School, he had a leading role in the play that won the high school state championship — the part of Sir Thomas More in "A Man for All Seasons." Bruce is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Boxleitner, 212 N. Dale Ave.

COUPLES from South Church Community-Baptist will renew their wedding vows Sunday at the church's annual Wedding Bells Service. Special invitations were sent to about 300 couples who were united in marriage at South Church or by one of its pastors. This is the 24th year for this special service. In the past, couples have come long distances to participate.

The Rev. Edwin Stevens encourages couples to sit together and hold hands while he reads the wedding vows. He laughingly reminds teenagers in the congregation that listening to the vows while holding hands does not amount to a marriage.

Blood Sought For Tot, 2½

Residents of Buffalo Grove have begun a drive to collect blood donations for a 2½-year-old leukemia victim.

The boy, Danny Sandler, recently was returned home from Children's Memorial Hospital in Chicago, where he was treated for about 2½ weeks. However, his release does not mean that the boy has been cured.

During the short hospital stay, Danny received more than 20 units of blood as part of his treatment, and if he is readmitted more blood will be needed.

Doctors have diagnosed his illness as lymphatic leukemia. Danny is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Sandler of Buffalo Grove.

The blood drive will be held beginning at 9 a.m. on Saturday, Aug. 7, at the James Fenimore Cooper Junior High School, on Plum Grove Circle, just east of Arlington Heights Road in Buffalo Grove.

The Beverly Blood Center, Inc., a professional, non-profit service, will be in charge of drawing blood.

Donors may have any blood type. However, there are some restrictions.

THOSE WHO cannot act as donors include persons who have had malaria, hepatitis, high blood pressure, or heart disease, as well as persons who have had major surgery or given birth within the past six months.

Prospective donors must not eat fatty foods for four hours before they plan to donate blood. It was also recommended that prospective donors call their own doctors if they have any questions about their own physical condition and its relation to being a blood donor.

A group of volunteers will schedule blood donations in an effort to avoid delays and long lines.

Persons interested in donating blood were asked to call the following volunteers: Mrs. Evan Fader, 537-3273; Mrs. Richard Friedman, 537-3839; Mrs. Richard Henrich, 537-2086; Mrs. Merrill Hoyt, 537-3870; and Mrs. Les Minkus, 537-3494.

2 Women Hurt In Accident

Two women were injured at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday when three cars were involved in an accident on Central Road.

Taken to Northwest Community Hospital was one driver, Gail M. Urban, 28, of 212 S. Hi-Lusi Ave., and one passenger, Helen Keller, of Chicago. Both were treated and released. Miss Keller was riding in a car operated by Earl P. Steinmetz, 36, of Chicago.

Police said that an unknown vehicle forced Ronald J. Frazzino, 18, of 114 Bobby Lane, Mount Prospect, into the center lane. The Frazzino car then hit the rear of the Urban car, forcing it into the Steinmetz car, police said.

The Steinmetz car was waiting to make a left turn at the time. All three cars were going east on Central Road, 60 feet east of Northwest Highway when the accident occurred, police said. The unknown car did not stop, they added.

Frazzino was charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident and will appear in court at 9:30 a.m. Sept. 1.

Police Seeking Rapists' Names

by BOB CASEY

Des Plaines police yesterday were seeking the identities of several men who reportedly raped two women visitors Saturday night at the Big Bend Lake Indian camp in Des Plaines.

Police Chief Arthur Hintz and representatives of the state's attorney's office yesterday refused to comment on the reported incident, although police indicated that an investigation is underway.

The two women, both in their late 20's, reportedly were sexually assaulted late Saturday night after spending all day Saturday and Sunday evening at the Indian camp, the Herald learned.

The women, both suburban residents, reportedly brought supplies and household items to the Indian camp Saturday and were invited to stay for what reportedly was described as an "Indian ceremony."

About 10 p.m., one of the women reportedly was told by an Indian man that her companion, who was on the other side of the Indian campsite, wanted to leave the site and go home.

The woman then reportedly started walking toward their car when she was grabbed by two Indian men and dragged into one of several tents set up at the campsite. Inside the tent, the two men forcibly disrobed her and she was raped, reports said.

AT ABOUT the same time, her companion was dragged into the woods surrounding the campsite where she reportedly was sexually molested for two hours by several men.

The two women were later released by their attackers and driven home by another visitor to the Indian campsite.

Police, who met yesterday with Mike Chosa, Indian leader, reportedly know tion was some 50 miles and 30 minutes away.

Once back in the train, Lippert had only a short ride before another patrol boarded the train. This time it was the East Germans.

"These were regular patrols. But when the Germans came on I had no choice but to face them. They came from both sides and I was in the middle with nowhere to go.

"I still recall they asked for the identification card of the man next to me and the woman across from me. I had already given up. It was just plain luck."

The guards left without asking to see a card from Lippert, who had none.

The train reached East Berlin without further incident. There Lippert was shocked to see the buildings still bombed out. "I could only orientate myself by watching the sun go down. I couldn't recognize anything."

The sun went down — to the west, Lippert's goal. He walked to the Brandenburg Gate. There was no wall yet dividing the city, but barbed wire and armed guards had the same effect. Lippert could not get across to West Berlin.

"THERE I WAS completely lost. So I decided to go ask somebody to help me."

The time was about 5 p.m. and Lippert began walking through the park, trying to judge people by their faces. He picked out an old man and "in my broken German I asked for help to get to West Berlin."

The man advised him to sit and wait until the next morning at 4 a.m. when the border would be opened again.

"This changed my opinion of Germany. From my childhood I had been brought up to hate the Germans and their 300 years of control over my people. It was amazing for me. I realized GEORGE LIPPERT recalls his 1953 escape from Communist Czechoslovakia. "When I first came to the United States, I found it hard to adjust. I wanted to go back immediately. Fortunately, I didn't have the money."

then there were only good and bad people."

He later met a woman who approached him with the straight question if he were trying to cross the border. Lippert said that in his naivete he told her the truth. She told him she too was waiting to cross and they spent the next lonely, frightening hours together.

The next morning, after hiding from patrols among crowds all night long, they separated with Lippert taking the elevated train to West Berlin. Once there he tried to get a policeman's attention by changing his clothes and swimming in a public fountain.

"I thought one had to do something wrong to get a policeman's attention," Lippert laughed.

When he went to the Canadian embassy, there were so many other refugees ahead of him that he was taken to the American Army Intelligence service. Six weeks with them, three with the British and three with the French, as the Allies tried to learn as much as possible from Lippert about conditions in Czechoslovakia.

AT ONE POINT, the French intelligence service asked Lippert to become a spy for them and carry secret codes back to his country. In return, they offered him immediate passage to the United States. Otherwise he faced a two-year waiting period.

Lippert said he refused when he learned that agents were being sent over with false codes. Arrangements were made by the French to have the Czechs capture these agents so they would be confused by the false codes.

Before coming to the United States, Lippert worked for the U.S. refugee program in West Berlin and Munich. He married again in 1958 to Edith, a German girl. In January 1956 he entered this country and settled in Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Edith followed later.

The couple now have a five-year-old son, Erik. They moved to Arlington Heights in 1961 when Lippert was offered a job at Pre-Finished Metals in Elk Grove Village, his first job as a chemist since being black-listed by the Communists in 1950.

The Lipperts also have lived in Park Ridge and will shortly move to Schaumburg.

Back in 1968, Lippert helped his son, George, escape. He is now an electronic engineer in San Francisco. The other child from his first marriage, Donna, got as far as Munich where she met and fell in love with a German boy. Lippert's first wife had no desire to leave Czechoslovakia, he said.

Suburbanites To March On O'Hare?

by BOB LAHEY

A mass of "nice people" from the suburbs may march on O'Hare Airport to disrupt international air traffic unless they receive some relief to nerves jangled by roaring jet aircraft, their spokesmen told a federal panel yesterday.

The gentle threat came during the course of the second day of hearings by the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) at the Sheraton-Chicago Hotel.

Nearly 100 witnesses paraded before a six-man panel which spent two days collecting evidence for recommendations to Congress on legislation for control of "noise pollution."

Much of the testimony in the Chicago hearings, one of six conducted simultaneously at various locations in the country, centered on noise at O'Hare and other major airports in the Midwest.

One of the most dramatic presentations was given yesterday by George Franks, chairman of the O'Hare Area Noise Abatement Council.

IT WAS HE who indicated to the panel that direct action is being considered by suburbanites who he said have received only lip service from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and other governmental agencies during a 10-year campaign to curtail noise around O'Hare.

After outlining campaigns ranging from letters to the President to appeals to local officials, Franks said in answer to a member of the panel, "We may hold our next meeting out on the runway."

Franks and other members of the Noise Abatement Council later confirmed that a sit-in at O'Hare will definitely be considered by early next summer unless they receive relief from noise over the summer months.

A suburban village official, Ted Deka of Wood Dale, dramatized the noise problem for the hearing officials when he presented letters from school officials testifying that teaching is suspended in Wood Dale schools for 20 seconds each time an airplane takes off or lands at O'Hare.

ONE LETTER, from J. R. Coad, superintendent of Bensenville Elementary School Dist. 2 and Fenton High School Dist. 100, estimated that those disruptions totaled the loss of 20.3 pupil-teaching hours per day.

Coad's letter also informed the panel that one elementary school for the handicapped located near O'Hare before recent construction of new runways there will be sold by the district because teaching had become impossible.

Also testifying was Ron W. Edwards, a member of the Elk Grove Aviation Committee and the Noise Abatement Council.

Edwards told the panel that Elk Grove had adopted a master plan in 1967 in an attempt to allow orderly development while accommodating anticipated increases in noise irritation from the airfield.

He said the village spent $30,000 on the plan, basing its forecasts on information from governmental agencies and O'Hare officials. But he said later changes in runway construction, made without informing local officials, destroyed the effectiveness of the plan.

FRANKS' presentation brought an ovation from an audience which had been lulled for two days with technical and scientific data concerning the problems of noise produced by jet aircraft. He said that in desperation the Noise Abatement Council had abandoned appeals to government and produced copies of a letter he recently mailed to twelve major airlines appealing to their "humanity."

Union Choo-Choos Back Into History

by SUE JACOBSON

The rolling countryside surrounding the little farm town of Union, Ill., is peaceful most of the time.

Now and again, though, the silence is broken by the clang of a streetcar and the whistle of an old-time steam engine.

For Union is only a short distance from the site of the Illinois Railway Museum. With more than 100 pieces of old railway equipment on exhibit, the museum is billed as "the world's largest operating railway museum."

An active contributor to the development of the museum is Nick Kallas, a Mount Prospect resident and a coordinator of the Young Adult Program for returning high school drop-outs at Wheeling High School. Kallas spends most of his weekends at the railway museum, helping to restore the old trains and equipment to their original condition.

Kallas said he first became interested in trains when as a boy he sold newspapers on an "L" station in Forest Park.

Increasing interest in the restoration process of old trains led him to join the Illinois Railway Museum about eight years ago. The museum, a nonprofit corporation, is open to all who pay the modest annual membership dues.

THE WORK of maintaining the museum and restoring the items to resemble their original condition is done on a volunteer basis by museum members.

The group now includes about 50 regular members and 500 associate members; most are from the Chicago area.

The museum was started in 1963 at North Chicago. A Chicago streetcar — vintage 1907 — purchased from the Chicago Transit Authority, was the first piece of equipment in the museum.

In 1965 the museum was moved to a field near the small McHenry County town of Union, population 600.

Kallas explained that the reason for the move was the need to locate the engines in an unpopulated area.

"The engines cause smoke and noise and it really isn't good to have them in a highly populated area," he said. "Besides, Union is a more convenient location for most of the museum members."

Museum volunteers built more than three miles of track in the countryside surrounding the new museum for use by the growing number of steam and electric trains and streetcars in the collection. Eventually the track will be extended into Union, enabling passengers to ride right into the center of the town.

Museum members also bought the old railroad station in nearby Marengo for $1, moved it to the museum site and renovated it.

KALLAS NOTED that restoring the old trains and streetcars is a painstaking process.

"Our first piece of equipment, the CTA

streetcar, was three years in restoration. New roofing and siding were put on. The woodwork was refinished and the car was repainted.

"Generally we do the work from builders' photos and blueprints. Usually the builders have them on file and can come up with them after a little searching," he said.

Proper parts and equipment for the restoration work are obtained from companies throughout the country, and museum members often make weekend trips to collect the parts and bring them to the museum, he said.

An estimated 300 persons a day now visit the museum, open daily during the summer months and on weekends during the spring and fall as well.

The visitors ride on a turn-of-the-century Pullman train, relaxing on the plush green seats.

They wander through a 1919 railroad mail car, or the stainless steel "Nebraska Zephyr." Quite a train in its day, the sleek steel monster carried passengers to the West Coast in the 1930s.

There is a huge five-room private railway car, used by railroad executives around the turn of the century. Complete with crystal chandeliers, paintings, and elaborately carved woodwork, it demonstrates the elegance of train travel in bygone days.

GLASS CASES in the railroad station hold the smaller relics from the past — railroad lanterns, train tickets, conductors' badges.

Some of the more popular exhibits with visitors are the streetcars. Originally 950 of these vehicles rode Chicago streets, charging only a few pennies as fare. The last of them disappeared from the roads in the 1950s; only a few remain on view in the nation's museums.

Now young and old alike fill the rattan seats of the refurbished streetcars at the Illinois Railway Museum — for a short ride down the train tracks and into the past.

Studies Show No Sites Here For Low-Cost Housing

A recent study of the Northwest suburbs shows no sites are available which can meet federal requirements for low-income housing, according to statements made at last night's meeting of the low and moderate-income housing study committee.

The high cost of land in the suburban area, including Arlington Heights, exceeds the limitations established by the federal government, according to Bernard Lee who made a surprise visit to the meeting. Lee is a commissioner of the Cook County Housing Authority (CCHA).

During the question-and-answer period, following a speech on the Rockford scattered-site housing project, Lee told committee members that "unless the federal government loosens its restrictions there just aren't any sites available."

Lee said any discussion of Arlington Heights forming a housing authority to build low-income units was merely "academic." The high land costs in the village more than exceed limitations of cost as established by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Later in the meeting, the executive director of the CCHA said that he agreed with Lee's comments. Victor Walchirk said HUD uses a general rule of thumb on the cost of property. This general rule states that land purchased to build one unit of low-income housing will cost no more than $3,000.

As one resident in the audience pointed out, the lowest priced lot in Arlington Heights is probably about $8,500.

In a high-cost area, low-income housing site proposals are generally for what is now publicly owned property, Walchirk said. By donations of the publicly owned property or selling below market cost, CCHA is able to build low-income housing projects.

Walchirk reported to the committee that he thought a need for low-income housing built by a public housing authority was not needed in Arlington Heights. However, the village does have a need for moderate-income housing, preferably built by private developers, he said.

When private developers build moderate-income housing projects the federal government subsidizes certain costs and the property remains on the public tax rolls. When developments are built by a public housing authority the property is taken off the tax rolls.

Walchirk cited these two facts as reasons why housing built by private developers is better than housing built by public housing authorities.

In commenting on moderate-income housing in the Northwest suburban area Walchirk said, "industries need for a closely-based labor supply is recognized by everybody. There may be problems with land costs, but in terms of need it's fair."

FEELING JUST A LITTLE BIT SCRAMBLED? These youngsters enjoy an afternoon's ride during the opening yesterday of Sidewalk Days in Arlington Heights. The Scrambler is one of 10 rides that will be operating during the three-day celebration sponsored each year by the retail committee of the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce.

WHAT DO YOU THINK of Women's Liberation? That question was asked by judges more than once of contestants of the Miss American Derby beauty pageant yesterday at Arlington Park Race Track. Finally, one judge, a sportswriter, quipped, "Maybe I should ask it in a different way — what do you think of male chauvinist pigs?"

"THEY SAID IT couldn't be done, and by golly, it couldn't," reads a plaque hanging on the office wall of Arlington Heights Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson, who is known and respected for being a practical man.

SUICIDE: The director of the Northwest Headstart program explained to members of the Arlington Heights Park Board this week that the idea of the project is designed to phase itself out by involving parents. Park Board Pres. Charles Cronin responded by saying, "I've never heard of that type of government before."

THEY ARE CURIOUS (YELLOW?)—During the park board meeting, someone said the video tapes made of park programs would be screened by the board before the tapes were put into circulation for use in social studies classes in Dist. 25. Board member Roy Bressler said the screening of the tapes was a good idea because "We don't want to go out rated X."

WRECKLESS DRIVERS: During a meeting of the plat and subdivision committee of the Plan Commission, one committee member suggested that a bicycle path of 15 feet rather than 20 feet would be wide enough for cyclists. Committee member Jack Edwards quipped, "I don't know... we've got some pretty wobbly bike riders in this town."

CHINA TOWN: One committee member was late to the plat and subdivision committee meeting Thursday. Victor Beister, committee chairman, commented that traffic was probably bad on the freeway and then added, "Freeways will become like the harbor in Hong Kong — people will be born on the freeways, grow up on the freeways, get married and start the whole thing over again on the freeways."

Apartment Complex Plan Hits Snag

Chelsea Square, an apartment complex proposed for northwest Arlington Heights, ran into another snag yesterday during a meeting of the plat and subdivision committee of the Arlington Heights Plan Commission.

Members of the committee criticized the proposed development for about 40 acres on the northeast corner of Palatine and Wilke roads, just east of Rte. 53. During the afternoon session, committee members said the complex was "too dense" and representatives of the land owner agreed to work on another proposal.

The proposal included building 536 units on the site, with 168 one-bedroom apartments, 344 two-bedroom apartments and 24 three-bedroom apartments. The plan also showed a wide strip of land on the eastern side as a park, to be dedicated to the Arlington Heights Park District and to be used as a bicycle path.

The development has been repeatedly opposed by residents of the Greenbrier subdivision, which is just to the east of the site. Hearings on this project began last fall.

ORIGINALLY, Chelsea Square was scheduled for a public hearing by the Plan Commission Aug. 11. However, after yesterday's session, representatives for the owner said they will request a continuance to allow them to prepare a new proposal.

Committee members suggested the representatives of the petitioner meet with the village's planner, Joseph Kessler, to work out a proposal that would allow more open green areas for the proposed 6 four-story buildings and 22 two-story buildings.

Counseling Center Saved By Late Gifts

The Center is saved! That was the happy report issued Tuesday by officials of The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center, which faced an Aug. 2 deadline to meet the most serious financial crisis in its history.

The Northwest suburban family service agency had to raise one-half of its current $15,000 deficit by Monday or face the necessity of cutting back service to area families.

If a minimum of $7,500 could be raised by the budget deadline a private foundation has agreed to make a "matching grant."

To help the Center reach its goal, the Herald June 21 launched an emergency fund appeal to its readers.

By yesterday, the fund total was $9,162 — $1,662 over the minimum needed.

"With several more days to go, we are hopeful additional last-minute contributions will bring the fund total to at least $9,500," said Charles E. Hayes, Herald editor in chief. "The response of our readers as well as township officials, churches, and civic organizations has been most gratifying. We hope others will take advantage of this final opportunity to help preserve the only family agency available to our suburbs which is equipped to solve family problems."

Donations may still be sent to the Herald "Center Fund," P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

A final list of donors will be published in Tuesday's Herald.

Among the flood of last-minute donations to the fund were gifts of $300 from the Kiwanis Club of Des Plaines and $100 from Honeywell, Inc., Arlington Heights. Several individual donations ranging from $25 to $50 also were received yesterday as well as numerous $5 and $10 gifts.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The Apollo 15 astronauts are in lunar orbit after firing their main spacecraft engine partly by hand. They are preparing to begin a rich, six-day harvest of secrets held by the moon for billions of years. Today they will begin their long-awaited descent to a small valley ringed on three sides by rugged mountains and flanked by a mile-wide chasm.

House and Senate leaders have reached a behind-the-scenes compromise that could provide Lockheed Aircraft Corp. with a government guaranteed loan in time to stave off bankruptcy. Under the agreement, the Nixon administration would abandon its demand for a broad $2 billion loan guarantee fund to help other big U.S. firms in financial trouble. Opponents of the loan would drop their filibuster against help for Lockheed.

Rail talks have resumed in Washington but little hope is seen of averting a rail strike set today against six more lines.

Ford Motor Co. announced it will hike new car prices by at least 4.9 per cent and Chrysler said its price increases would be "in the same ballpark." General Motors refused to say if GM cars would cost more.

The State

Chicago newspapers contend former Gov. Otto Kerner bought $25,000 worth of race track stock while he was governor in 1966 and sold it 10 months later for $150,000. Federal sources say Kerner reported the profit as a capital gain. Only 50 per cent of a capital gain is taxable and the tax comes to only 25 per cent. Illinois Racing Board records of the alleged transaction are missing, perhaps destroyed, according to the board's secretary.

The World

Chile's pro-Marxist government looked toward the U.S.-owned telephone company and First National City Bank of New York as its next targets in progressive nationalization of the country's major private industries.

Sudan President Jaafar Numeiry said the reaction of the Soviet press to the execution of 14 ringleaders in last week's short-lived Communist coup has strained Sudan's relations with eastern Europe.

The War

Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk said that President Lyndon B. Johnson "did not have any plans" to widen the Vietnam War prior to the 1964 Gulf of Tonkin incident. Rusk testified before the Senate judiciary subcommittee on separation of powers.

TRISH SOMERS, last year's queen, places the Miss American Derby crown on this year's winner, Karen Jurasek, 21, of Aurora. The contest was held yesterday at Arlington Park Race Track, where Miss Jurasek will reign over the American Derby festivities this Saturday.

Karen Jurasek New 'Miss American Derby'

Miss Karen Jurasek, a 21-year-old student from Aurora College, was named Miss American Derby 1971 yesterday at Arlington Park Race Track.

Miss Jurasek, a resident of 1049 Garfield, Aurora, was one of 19 entrants in the annual beauty pageant which precedes this Saturday's "Race of the Year," the $125,000 added American Derby.

As Miss American Derby, she will reign over the festivities, draw the post positions for the race and present the trophy to the winning jockey. The Derby will be telecast live and in color between 5 and 5:30 p.m. on CBS.

Miss Jurasek was also presented a $100 bond by race track officials and will be welcomed, with her family, as guests of the track on Derby day.

First runner up in the contest was Donna DeLord, 18, 200 N. Pine, Prospect Heights. Second runner up was Kris Clark, 19, 454 Banbury, Arlington Heights.

The contest was sponsored by Arlington Park Race Track and Judged by representatives of the Chicago area press.

Suburbanites May March On O'Hare

by BOB LAHEY

A mass of "nice people" from the suburbs may march on O'Hare Airport to disrupt international air traffic unless they receive some relief to nerves jangled by roaring jet aircraft, their spokesman told a federal panel yesterday.

The gentle threat came during the course of the second day of hearings by the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) at the Sheraton-Chicago Hotel.

Nearly 100 witnesses paraded before a six-man panel which spent two days collecting evidence for recommendations to Congress on legislation for control of "noise pollution."

Much of the testimony in the Chicago hearings, one of six conducted simultaneously at various locations in the country, centered on noise at O'Hare and other major airports in the Midwest.

One of the most dramatic presentations was given yesterday by George Franks, chairman of the O'Hare Area Noise Abatement Council.

IT WAS HE who indicated to the panel that direct action is being considered by suburbanites who he said have received only lip service from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and other governmental agencies during a 10-year campaign to curtail noise around O'Hare.

After outlining campaigns ranging from letters to the President to appeals to local officials, Franks said in answer to a member of the panel, "We may hold our next meeting out on the runway."

Franks and other members of the Noise Abatement Council later confirmed that a sit-in at O'Hare will definitely be considered by early next summer unless they receive relief from noise over the summer months.

A suburban village official, Ted DeKa of Wood Dale, dramatized the noise problem for the hearing officials when he presented letters from school officials testifying that teaching is suspended in Wood Dale schools for 20 seconds each time an airplane takes off or lands at O'Hare.

ONE LETTER, from J. R. Coad, superintendent of Bensenville Elementary School Dist. 2 and Fenton High School Dist. 100, estimated that those disruptions totaled the loss of 20.3 pupil-teaching hours per day.

Coad's letter also informed the panel that one elementary school for the handicapped located near O'Hare before recent construction of new runways there

Police Seeking Identities Of Rapists

by BOB CASEY

Des Plaines police yesterday were seeking the identities of several men who reportedly raped two women visitors Saturday night at the Big Bend Lake Indian camp in Des Plaines.

Police Chief Arthur Hintz and representatives of the state's attorney's office yesterday refused to comment on the reported incident, although police indicated that an investigation is underway.

The two women, both in their late 20's, reportedly were sexually assaulted late Saturday night after spending all day Saturday and Sunday evening at the Indian camp, the Herald learned.

The women, both suburban residents, reportedly brought supplies and household items to the Indian camp Saturday and were invited to stay for what reportedly was described as an "Indian ceremony."

About 10 p.m., one of the women reportedly was told by an Indian man that her companion, who was on the other side of the Indian campsite, wanted to leave the site and go home.

The woman then reportedly started walking toward their car when she was grabbed by two Indian men and dragged into one of several tents set up at the campsite. Inside the tent, the two men forcibly disrobed her and she was raped, reports said.

AT ABOUT the same time, her companion was dragged into the woods surrounding the campsite where she reportedly was sexually molested for two hours by several men.

The two women were later released by their attackers and driven home by another visitor to the Indian campsite.

Police, who met yesterday with Mike Chosa, Indian leader, reportedly know the name of at least one of the women's attackers.

It could not be determined whether the attackers were regular residents of the Indian camp or among the hundreds of visitors, both Indian and white, who swell the camp's numbers on weekends.

Police refused to comment yesterday on whether the two women, who reported the crime this week, are willing to press charges.

Chosa could not be reached for comment yesterday.

POLICE REPORTEDLY have been hampered in their investigation by difficulties in interviewing the campsite residents.

Hintz, Capt. Dale Mensching, Det. Robert Zeitmet of the Des Plaines police and two members of the state's attorney's office met twice yesterday with the Indians at the campsite and later refused to make any statement.

The Indians, who moved into the forest preserve campsite July 2 and set up a number of tents without a permit, had been routed by police from the former Belmont Harbor Nike base in Chicago. They have said they originally occupied the Nike base after an apartment building in Chicago housing several Indian families burned down.

The Indians have complained of police harassment at the campsite, which has been the scene of several fights and a knifing recently. Police report widespread drunkenness among the camp residents at nights and on the weekends.

County officials have given the Indian group, which ranges in size from less than 100 during the week to more than 200 or 300 on week ends, permission to stay in the Big Bend Forest Preserve site at least temporarily.

Hersey High Band To Perform At Game

The John Hersey High School Marching Band will perform in pregame and halftime shows at the All-Star Football Game in Chicago tonight.

The band will be the first from an Illinois high school to perform at the All-Star game. The game will begin at 8:30 p.m. at Soldier Field in Chicago. An estimated 70 million viewers are expected to watch nationally over the ABC television network and locally on WGN-TV, Channel 9.

Band director Donald Caneva said Hersey's will be the first band to perform under strobe lighting. The lighting, which will be used for portions of the show, will give a flickering, old-time movie effect. The band will perform in precision drill, "boogaloo" dance numbers and concert arrangements.

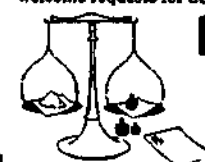

What Should You Do In Hot Weather?

Summer heat can have a telling effect on your body and it is important to take normal precautions to reduce this effect. You must realize that you burn up just as much energy in heat as in cold, so you should keep up a normal diet. Dressing properly can help. Remember that even a single layer of clothing helps protect you against heat reflections as well as from the direct rays of the sun.

You lose fluid in the heat and so you should drink plenty of water to avoid dehydration when you are perspiring heavily. Guard against heat and sunstroke by avoiding exhausting work or exercise — even in the shade. Remember that we carry many products for making hot summer living more comfortable.

Still Unknown To Many

Methodists' Camp Played Major Role In City's History

by VICKI HAMENDE

"It's funny how many people in Des Plaines don't know we're here," said 83-year-old Mrs. Mark Christy, a resident of the 111-year-old Des Plaines United Methodist Camp Grounds.

According to historical accounts, Des Plaines was a "hamlet containing six dwelling houses" when the camp grounds were first staked out.

"Two Brickton farmers paced the railroad platform at Des Plaines Station early one August afternoon in 1860," wrote a former camp grounds resident, Virginia Freeburg, in "History of Des Plaines Methodist Camp Ground, 1860-1940."

"When the suburban train pulled into the station, two clergymen from the Chicago district alighted. After rearranging their cravats, straightening their top hats and brushing the dust of 16 miles from their Prince Alberts, they climbed into the waiting wagon, which bumped off a mile and a half along the Des or Aux Plaines River to the farm home of Squire Socrates Rand.

"Rand greeted them heartily and led them out into his fine grove of hardwood trees. Satisfied that this would be an ideal spot for outdoor protracted meetings, the city clergymen suggested stakes be cut to mark the site chosen and then asked all present to join in a prayer of consecration for the task ahead."

The "task ahead" is now in its 112th year. Squire Rand's grove grew into a woodland Des Plaines community of 105 cottages and the oldtime week-long religious revival sessions which began there have expanded into five months of spiritual services.

"IT'S A REGULAR sort of family affair out here," said Mrs. Christy, the first woman ever elected to the camp's nine-member board of trustees, the governing body for the Chicago District Camp Ground Association. "Everybody knows everybody else."

Mr. and Mrs. Christy have a permanent residence in Oak Park. "We live down here from May 'til October," she said. "It's the 25th year we've lived in our cottage, but I've been coming to the camp with friends and relatives since I was a young girl."

The Methodist community is cradled between the Des Plaines River and the Poyer Creek boundary of the Northwestern Woods Forest Preserves. Shaded on all sides by Wesley, North, East and Asbury Groves, the camp grounds are "an outdoor heaven," to the Methodists who still flock there each summer, Mrs. Christy said.

In her article "Eighty Years at the Camp Grounds," Methodist Florence Johnson wrote in 1940 of an 1865 welcome sign at the site which read, "Do not come in for fun. Do not come in for a picnic. Do not come in to sponge on your friends. Do not come in to criticize the preaching."

The years have stripped the strictness from the religious community. A walk through the grounds today will reveal picnic areas, a swimming pool, tennis courts, a snack shop, outdoor grills, a hotel, a rummage shop, day camps, horseshoe courts and a banquet dining hall.

GONE TOO ARE the huge tents and open-air platforms, where the Wesleyan preachers would exhort the faithful, who came to Des Plaines for the kind of evangelism that has since all but vanished from the Midwest.

Methodist William Norton wrote in 1909, "Each year Des Plaines was a battle ground whereon a holy warfare was waged in private tents, in remote corners of the encampment, under the great canvas, and often far into the night, and on one occasion at least, and we know not on how many other occasions, all through the night."

In 1931, Billy Sunday railed against the repeal of prohibition before a camp grounds crowd estimated at more than

THE PEACEFULNESS OF the 111-year-old United Methodist Camp Grounds in Des Plaines is reflected in a stroll down Thompson Avenue, one of the many paths that wind throughout the cottages, stores and recreational areas of the growing community. Mrs. Mark

Corn Festival Set Sunday

All the corn you can eat will be served from noon until 8 p.m. Sunday in the Maine West High School parking lot, 1755 S. Wolf.

The annual corn festival, sponsored by the Des Plaines Moose, will include hamburgers, soda pop, and corn — straight from farm fields in Elk Grove township, according to Charles Rohr, lodge governor.

Money from the festival will go to the Maine West High School principals fund — which is used to help needy students, according to Maine West officials.

Last year, more than 1,500 persons came to see how much corn they could eat, according to Elmer Tucker, 2207 Willow Lane, Rolling Meadows, event chairman.

The corn and other food costs 50 cents for children, $1.50 for adults.

Park District Water Carnival Is Tonight

The Des Plaines Park District will hold its Annual Water Carnival at 7 p.m. tonight at Rand Park Pool, 2025 Miner St.

The program will include a band concert by the Maine West High School Jazz Band, synchronized swimming demonstrations, progressive swimming awards and a penny grab for qualifiers from the summer learn-to-swim program.

The highlights of the evening will be "The Champions" diving show, featuring Olympic gold medal champion Ken Sitzberger and University of Wisconsin diving coach Jerry Darda.

The carnival is free and open to the public.

Local O'Hare Control Urged

by LEON SHURE

Increased community, regional and state control over Chicago decisions on O'Hare Airport expansion is recommended by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC) in a summary made public yesterday of its massive two-year study of O'Hare noise problems.

In the 20-page summary of the still-to-be-released report, the regional planning agency recommends coordinated, local, state and federal actions on zoning and area development to deal with the increasing noise problems.

In what may be its most controversial recommendation, the NIPC study asks that the state be given power to condemn the most noise affected areas.

Apparent leaks by some NIPC officials of this recommendation brought community protests this week that NIPC was advocating large-scale leveling of homes. NIPC officials denied this, and the summary states that large-scale condemnation is financially unfeasible.

AT A PRESS conference Monday, NIPC officials outlined the contents of the 250-page O'Hare study report but the release yesterday of the summary at last provided a first hand look at the report's recommendations for reducing noise near O'Hare.

The $60,000 study, financed by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and the Department of Transportation, terms the area directly northwest and northeast of O'Hare — Des Plaines, the Northwest suburbs, Park Ridge — as being "the most affected" by the airport noise.

Maps released Monday by NIPC spokesmen indicate that if no action is taken to decrease jet noise, by 1975 more than half of Des Plaines will be subjected to uncomfortable and unhealthy

Counseling Center Saved!

The Center is saved!

That was the happy report issued Tuesday by officials of The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center, which faced an Aug. 2 deadline to meet the most serious financial crisis in its history.

The Northwest suburban family service agency had to raise one-half of its current $15,000 deficit by Monday or face the necessity of cutting back service to area families.

If a minimum of $7,500 could be raised by the budget deadline a private foundation has agreed to make a "matching grant."

To help the Center reach its goal, the Herald June 21 launched an emergency fund appeal to its readers.

By yesterday, the fund total was $9,162 — $1,862 over the minimum needed.

"With several more days to go, we are hopeful additional last-minute contributions will bring the fund total to at least $9,500," said Charles E. Hayes, Herald editor in chief. Suburbanites To March On O'Hare?

by BOB LAHEY

A mass of "nice people" from the suburbs may march on O'Hare Airport to disrupt international air traffic unless they receive some relief to nerves jangled by roaring jet aircraft, their spokesman told a federal panel yesterday.

The gentle threat came during the course of the second day of hearings by the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) at the Sheraton-Chicago Hotel.

Nearly 100 witnesses paraded before a six-man panel which spent two days collecting evidence for recommendations to Congress on legislation for control of "noise pollution."

Much of the testimony in the Chicago hearings, one of six conducted simultaneously at various locations in the country, centered on noise at O'Hare and other major airports in the Midwest.

One of the most dramatic presentations was given yesterday by George Franks, chairman of the O'Hare Area Noise Abatement Council.

IT WAS HE who indicated to the panel that direct action is being considered by suburbanites who he said have received only lip service from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and other governmental agencies during a 10-year campaign to curtail noise around O'Hare.

After outlining campaigns ranging from letters to the President to appeals to local officials, Franks said in answer to a member of the panel, "We may hold our next meeting out on the runway."

Franks and other members of the Noise Abatement Council later confirmed that a sit-in at O'Hare will definitely be considered by early next summer unless they receive relief from noise over the summer months.

A suburban village official, Ted DeKa of Wood Dale, dramatized the noise problem for the hearing officials when he presented letters from school officials testifying that teaching is suspended in Wood Dale schools for 20 seconds each time an airplane takes off or lands at O'Hare.

ONE LETTER, from J. R. Coad, superintendent of Bensenville Elementary School Dist. 2 and Fenton High School Dist. 100, estimated that those disruptions totaled the loss of 20.3 pupil-teaching hours per day.

Coad's letter also informed the panel that one elementary school for the handicapped located near O'Hare before recent construction of new runways there will be sold by the district because teaching had become impossible.

Also testifying was Ron W. Edwards, a member of the Elk Grove Aviation Committee and the Noise Abatement Council. Edwards told the panel that Elk Grove had adopted a master plan in 1967 in an attempt to allow orderly development while accommodating anticipated increases in noise irritation from the airfield.

He said the village spent $30,000 on the plan, basing its forecasts on information from governmental agencies and O'Hare officials. But he said later changes in runway construction, made without informing local officials, destroyed the effectiveness of the plan.

FRANKS' presentation brought an ovation from an audience which had been lulled for two days with technical and scientific data concerning the problems of noise produced by jet aircraft. He said that in desperation the Noise Abatement Council had abandoned appeals to government and produced copies of a letter he recently mailed to twelve major airlines appealing to their "humanity."

"We have followed the due process,"

Franks said, "and we will run due process right into the ground. But then we may go out to the runways."

Franks appealed to the EPA to ask Congress to take control of airports away from the FAA and give it to an agency which would have the power to force airlines to give considerations to people on the ground.

After Franks' testimony, a panel member, Prof. Sheldon J. Plager of the University of Illinois School of Law, asked Franks, "If we fail in what you are asking us to do, what then?"

noise levels.

In the affected parts of Des Plaines, including the southern, northeastern and downtown areas of the city the only type of construction adequate to withstand noise and protect residents would be highly insulated apartments, under NIPC standards.

In the O'Hare area, "the two runways built since 1965 will enlarge the noise impacted area to include the homes of half a million persons by 1975," the summary states. The most "seriously affected are patients in ten hospitals, children in 181 schools and 2,400 mobile homes."

TOTAL ACREAGE within the high noise area would increase 33 per cent from 1965 to 1975, and the number of residents affected would increase 68 per cent, largely as a result of expansion of the (noise-affected areas) into previously existing neighborhoods, the summary reports.

However, noise reduction efforts, including reduced power takeoffs, sharper angle landings, and muffling of airplane engines, would reduce the number of persons who would be disturbed by noise, to 360,000 persons, rather than the predicted 518,000, by 1975, according to the report.

NIPC found that the high noise increases turnover and vacancy rates, and lowers market value of residential units.

In the study, NIPC found a lack of coordinated zoning efforts, because zoning powers are fragments "31 cities and villages and two counties."

Efforts to deal with noise problems have been hampered by lack of a "coordinated airport systems plan to set the framework for O'Hare growth, the narrowly drawn-airport zoning statute which has had little impact on environs development, the lack of clearly defined noise forecasts that are readily available to the public and the apparent inability of communities in the airport environs to plan and zone land with aircraft noise as an important consideration, the report stated.

ON A LOCAL level, NIPC recommends that communities near O'Hare encourage industrial or commercial development on land in the noise affected area.

In a special study, required by HUD, NIPC examined four small vacant, or residential sites in two communities and determined that these could be redeveloped into commercial or industrial areas without a financial loss to relocated homeowners or taxing bodies.

Regionally, the summary recommends that "an organization be established to represent the interest of the communities in the airport area."

"Hearings on airport expansion or new construction should be held either by a state agency or by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission," the summary stated.

The summary is critical of "a lack of communications between Chicago and the affected communities around O'Hare, and blames frequent revisions of the Airport Master Plan for part of the gap in understanding."

"An airport systems plan should be developed for the bi-state metropolitan area which will establish clearly O'Hare's future role," and set limits within which other land strategies can operate, the summary states. The O'Hare Master Plan should be updated according to this metropolitan plan, it states.

COOK AND DuPAGE counties, and the Metropolitan Sanitary District should purchase more than 2,000 acres of now vacant land for approximately $39 million in the noise affect area, for flood water retention and recreation.

Laws should be changed to require Chicago to repay airport neighbors for the "adverse impact of aircraft noise," NIPC estimates this would cost $14 to $66 million in the worst noise affected area.

According to the summary, the state law should be changed to allow for condemnation because of noise, so that the state agency could condemn and sell back land for purposes which wouldn't be affected by noise.

However, NIPC said this would draw large scale opposition, and would be economically unfeasible since purchase of the land in the very worst noise areas would cost about $400 million.

Federally, the FAA should adopt standards which require aircraft to use noise-reduction equipment, and to purchase quieter airplanes, the summary said.

The federal government should also help finance airport planning it said. Aircraft noise should be considered "a blighting influence" in federal standards, and the Department of Health Education and Welfare should increase funds for soundproofing hospitals, the summary recommends.

A meeting of federal and state legislators and mayors will meet Aug. 13 in Park Ridge to discuss implementation of these recommendations, U.S. Rep. Harold Collier, R-10th, told the Herald yesterday after NIPC release of the summary.

Drum, Bugle Corps Departs Saturday

The Des Plaines Vanguard Drum and Bugle Corps will depart Saturday for its annual competition tour throughout Canada and the eastern United States.

During the 16-day trip, the corps will vie for national titles with many top-ranking drum and bugle corps at the Canadian Open in Toronto, Canada, and the U.S. Open in Marion, Ohio.

The Vanguards will also compete in seven other shows in Ottawa, Canada; Flint, Mich.; Irwin, Butler and Swissvale, Penn.; and West Milton, Ohio.

The corps is scheduled for four contests upon its return from the eastern trip including Delevan and West Allis, Wis., the weekend of Aug. 21-22; Lowell, Inc., Sept. 5; and the final show of the season Rockford, Ill., on Labor Day.

So far this summer the Vanguards have competed in nine shows, taking two first, three second, three third and one sixth place. The corps also hosted the annual Youth on Parade Contest in Des Plaines and performed an exhibition in Harvey, Ill. earlier this summer.

Des Plaines Gets $41,843 In Revenue

Suburban communities received $269,385 during May as their share of revenue in the Circuit Court of Cook County, it was announced by Court Clerk Matthew J. Danaher.

The money represents mostly traffic cases heard in the court's five suburban districts. The May revenue brings to $1,381,659 the amount earned during 1970 by the 124 suburban municipalities in suburban Cook County.

Middleton's Medical License Is Revoked

The medical license of Dr. James Middleton was formally revoked yesterday by the Illinois Department of Registration and Education.

Dr. Middleton, a Des Plaines area physician who has been indicted on charges of sexual assault and illegal possession of explosives, had been found guilty by the department of three violations of the state Medical Practice Act.

The revocation order came yesterday morning when the state department announced that Middleton will not be granted a rehearing on the charges, according to Edward Price, the department's chief attorney.

The doctor was accused of failure to notify Illinois officials that his license was suspended in Missouri, where he formerly practiced medicine.

He also was charged with unethical and unprofessional practice.

DR. MIDDLETON'S attorney, Edward Genson, yesterday said a court appeal of the Registration and Education Department's ruling "would be called for" but said he will have to consult Middleton before deciding to file the appeal.

The doctor has 35 days to submit a request for administrative review of his license revocation to the Cook County Circuit Court.

Genson said the hearings before the department's state medical examining board were a "travesty of justice." He had objected to the hearings being conducted while Dr. Middleton faced criminal charges.

The doctor was arrested last December after two women said he had drugged and sexually assaulted them at his office, 969 Elmhurst Rd., in unincorporated Des Plaines.

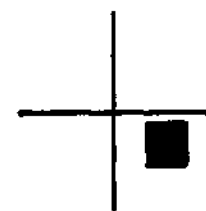

Subsequent raids by federal agents on Dr. Middleton's office and his Chicago apartment, 2800 N. Lake Shore Dr., resulted in indictments announced this week against the doctor for illegal manufacturing and possession of explosives.

Dr. Middleton will appear next Thursday in criminal court, where Judge Robert Downing is expected to rule on Genson's contention that the grand jury which indicted Middleton for deviate sexual assault and aggravated battery was prejudiced against him by pretrial publicity.

Methodist Camp Steeped In History

20,000. Now, preachers are imported from the South, where the Methodist tradition of evangelism still runs strong.

The camp grounds religious activities, which most summer residents attend daily, are centered in the circular Walford Tabernacle, a spacious structure in the middle of the camp supported by a steel frame.

THIS SUMMER'S "Spiritual Enrichment Services" included a visit to the camp by Harry Denman, a lay evangelist from Nashville, Tenn., and the 45-member Chicago Children's Choir, just back from a tour of Europe. The Rev. R.A.W. Bruhl from First United Methodist in Des Plaines also spoke at a centennial service July 18, commemorating the 1871 founding of the local Methodist Church.

For the children, there's a day camp that makes use of five camp ground cottages, providing daily activities and lunches for 500 kids from Des Plaines and surrounding communities.

Virginia Freeburg wrote about the camp's youths, "Soon after lunch, clean and fed, the youngsters would dash to the enclosure and scramble for front seats. Bible stories, Sunday School hymns, missionary stories and sometimes testimonies would follow."

"They plan all sorts of activities and they're buying a pool table as soon as they raise the money," Mrs. Christy said. "The Heydenbergs are in charge of the youth and recreational programs. They're a missionary couple — next year they'll be working in Nigeria."

THE CAMP SWIMMING pool, open to the public after 2 p.m., was built thanks to the efforts of the Aquatic Club. History says the club members used to play the piano in the woods and collect the money thrown at them to save for a swimming pool.

"We have all these modern things," said Mrs. Christy, "but what keeps us together are the oldtimers and their beautiful memories of the camp grounds."

300 Antique Bottles
Featured At Museum

The Des Plaines Historical Society museum, 777 Lee St. is now featuring a collection of about 300 antique bottles provided by Ed Johannes of Mount Prospect, past president of the First Chicago Bottle Club, and by Byron Hughes of Des Plaines, who is now vice president of that organization.

Part of the current exhibit of patent medicine bottles has been donated to the historical society to add to its collection of artifacts.

"Anyone interested in antique bottles is invited to view the exhibit any Wednesday, Saturday or Sunday from 2 to 4:30 p.m."

The history of the camp grounds reads, "Thousands came to meetings, crowding forty in a house, sleeping in groves on the ground, in trees, on benches and in hammocks. The accommodations were taxed to the utmost to supply necessities of living and food for stomachs as well as the souls of the thousands of hungry saints."

The camp women's auxiliary was founded in 1920 "to help the trustees and to beautify the grounds," according to Mrs. Mary Witt, who is in her third term as president.

"Our goals are the same today. The women used to meet under the trees to mend sheets. We meet under the trees to talk about building a new kitchen for us to use in the hotel," Mrs. Witt said.

MAE FREEBURG, 80, mother of the camp ground historian, is spending her 68th season in Des Plaines. "I met my husband here and my daughter met her husband here, too," said Mrs. Freeburg.

The cottage of Grace Artren, another resident, is dotted with antiques. "Buyers have been after me for years for some of my things," she said. A horizontal door at the top of a narrow staircase in her house can be closed to separate completely the three bedrooms on the second floor from the main floor of her house. "They don't make houses like these anymore," she said. Miss Artren makes her cottage her permanent home and spends the winter months traveling.

Coming up at the camp grounds this summer will be a homecoming tea, a square dance, a country fair and a swim carnival.

"In the old days the camp was only open for two weeks. We had speakers morning, noon and night. Everyone would open up their homes to visitors. Now people come and go," Mrs. Christy said. "They even come from Florida, Arizona, California and Kansas."

As Virginia Freeburg wrote, "Here was a retreat to peace and wholesome living from a world rotting at its foundations. Here was an opportunity to reaffirm one's belief that Christ's way could be practiced — a living instead of a talking religion."

"There used to be tents around the tabernacle," Mrs. Christy said. "We used to come in wagons and gather corn husks to sleep on. I remember once when a baby was born at the camp. There was

The Working Mother And Her Child

By DOROTHY OLIVER

Few will disagree that running a household and rearing children is a time-consuming, rewarding and full-time job. Yet thousands of mothers — either out of necessity or desire — leave their homes to work 10, 20 or 40 hours a week at a second job.

Child care is one of the working mother's problems. It is estimated that six million boys and girls under the age of six are the children of working mothers, according to Mary Dublin Keyserling, consulting economist and former director of the Women's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor. She has stated that most of these children are cared for in catch-as-catch-can fashion.

AT LEAST 18,000 of these children are left entirely on their own while mom is at work. Another 900,000 are brought to work by their mothers and "behind-the-counter" becomes their playground. Others are left home with older brothers and sisters kept home from school on a rotation basis to babysit. Neighbors take some and hundreds of mothers rely on women who care for several children in their unlicensed homes.

Nursery schools and day care centers care for only about a million of these children. Many mothers, however, can neither afford the $20-$40 per child per week charged by a nursery school nor are their incomes low enough to qualify them for day care centers created for low income families.

Society has conditioned women to believe a mother's place is in the home. The women's liberation movement, on the other hand, promotes the idea a woman should not feel guilty about leaving her children and pursuing a career.

PSYCHOLOGISTS AND social workers tend to agree on at least one area in the situation faced by working mothers and their children: It's not the quantity of time you spend with children — it's the quality.

"It is very important that the child receives adequate supervision while the parents are working," said Margaret Linsink, district supervisor of the Salvation Army Community Counseling Center in Des Plaines. "And it is important that the parents not always be working, that they give time to their child."

She explained that some parents come home from their jobs and start right in on home chores. Their response to their child's needs is "I'm busy now" or "Tell me later." You must take time for living, she said.

How you fill the time you have with your child is equally important.

"YOU MUST HAVE an honest relationship with your child," said Dr. Robert Willford, executive director of the Forest Hospital Post-Graduate Center for Mental Health. He discussed what working mothers — and all mothers for that matter — should strive for in rearing their children.

"Both the child and the parent should have opportunity to express their unhappiness with the situation (if the mother working) and the positive aspects of it," he said. "The parent should recognize that the child has the need to say, 'I don't feel you love me because you don't spend enough time with me' and not make him feel guilty."

Don't justify your working, Willford warned. Don't tell the child it's the only thing you can do or without your job he wouldn't be eating.

Listen, understand and let your child know it's okay to express his feelings. And be honest with him in return. Express your happiness and unhappiness.

"MOST CHILDREN are not given a time just for them to be with their mother," he continued. "It is easy for a child to believe he ranks about 37th in importance in his mother's life."

To remedy the situation, Willford suggested a mother set aside 15 minutes a day for her child — time that should not be interrupted, even by a phone call, "come hell or high water."

"Let the child decide what happens during this period, whether it be play time, talk time or just a time for quiet and closeness. One block of time like that can be worth 100 other times," he said.

"All mothers should make a special effort to give many 'positive strokes' to a child. Give him a hug just because he's alive; a kiss for no reason. Tell him how you feel about him just because it's there. Increase the quality of the 'stroke' to make up for the lacking quantity," he continued.

A MOTHER CAN help her child cope with her working period by giving him little things to look forward to. The younger the child the less is his concept of time periods. For the pre-schooler use short periods: "When I come home from work tonight we can play a game." For the older child you can lengthen the period: "Next weekend we can go bike riding together." Give him something to look forward to, Willford advised.

"Leave evidence at home that you are thinking about your child. A little note tucked in a place he will find it that says

'Have a nice day' or 'I love you a lot' reinforces the child's knowledge that you care," he said.

The working mother who works by choice is different from the one who works by necessity, Willford said. She has to give a lot of very honest thought to how she feels about working.

"IF A WOMAN hasn't reconciled working with herself she may punish the child unconsciously through 'emotional leakage.' The mother/child relationship will be healthier if she has gotten rid of her own guilt feelings for leaving her child at home. Otherwise she may resent her child for the inconvenience he causes her or the additional responsibility he presents.

"She should recognize guilt feelings and bad feelings toward the child and not lay them on him," Willford said.

Working women can suffer pure exhaustion from trying to serve as worker, wife and mother, he continued. Small home incidents can be blown out of proportion. A woman should be alert to her energy and tolerance level when she is home. And she should be able to tell her child, "I'm tired and have to lie down. If I talk to you now I might get upset easily." Tiredness gives way to inappropriate anger and the child should not be the recipient of this anger.

THE KNOWLEDGE of child development and a child's needs at different ages is very important for the working women — and, again, all women.

In a full day many positive and negative incidents pass between mother and child. The mother at home has more chance to equalize a negative incident, like getting angry, with a trip to the store, a positive incident.

A working woman's time at home is limited. She should be aware of the four basic needs in her child and maintain a positive relationship by fulfilling those needs.

Give him support — both emotional ("Mommy, I can't win this game") and physical ("Help me put on my shoe").

GIVE HIM NOURISHMENT — both emotional ("I love you") and physical ("Lunch is ready").

Give him protection. Let him know he is safe and secure.

Give him limits. Let him know what behavior is expected from him and set reasonable limits.

"Parents should listen carefully to what their child is really saying, listen for the need he is expressing," Willford said. "React to the need, not to the words. One is quality and the other quantity."

FREE TIME BECOMES a precious thing to the working mother and her child. Psychologists and social workers agree that the quality of that time is more important than the quantity of it.

If You're Buying A Lamp

"WEAR DEVIL" adhesive-backed carpet tiles from Sears are used to create a do-it-yourself graphic in this geometric looking entryway. They're also used to cover the corner pedestal and the bench topped with tasseled pillows, all for an investment of under $50.

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI) — Funny thing about buying a new lamp. You know exactly what kind of lamp you want — until you get to the lamp department and see lamps on tripods, lamps that look like flying saucers, lamps that have everything from milk pails to horse's heads for bases. You see one you like but it's too tall. Or too short.

Finally you see a lamp that looks great in the store. You get it home. It's too short or the light is not spread far enough to illuminate the whole page of reading material — or the darned bulb shines in your eyes while you're trying to read.

Height is one of the primary considerations in lamp selection, say General Electric lighting specialists at Nela Park lighting center here. What is the right height?

THE AUTHORITIES SAY the lower edge of the shade should be at eye level, or about 40 inches above the floor for an average person sitting in a couch or lounge chair. While sitting at a desk or in a straight chair, the eyes generally are 44 to 46 inches above the floor.

Assuming you're buying a lamp to put at the end of the couch, the first thing you want to do is measure the distance from your eye level to the floor. It will probably be close to 40 inches. Next you measure the height of the table. For simplicity assume it's 20 inches. Now you know you need a table lamp which measures about 20 inches from the bottom of the shade to table top.

Consider now the shade. The important dimension here is the width of the shade at the bottom. Lighting specialists recommend that the shade measure 16 to 18 inches at the widest point of the bottom edge.

THE DENSITY OF the shade or degree of light it will transmit depends on your own taste and the reflections of the wall surfaces and the lamp's intended use. If walls are a light color, then the shade can be light to moderate in density.

If walls are very dark, such as in some paneled rooms, a heavier density would be desirable. Lighter density shades are recommended for reading in bed or for piano lighting.

If the bulb or bulbs are situated under the shade in a base-down position, the usual position, the socket should be even with the bottom of the shade.

If the bulbs are base up or horizontal, the lowest point of the bulb should be no more than three inches above the bottom edge of the shade.

ABOUT THE SIZE OF bulbs. The GE specialists recommend a minimum of 150 watts in any single socket lamp used for reading or sewing. Three-way 50-150 watt bulbs add versatility. In lamps with two or more sockets, the total should be no less than 120 watts when sockets are in the base-up or horizontal position, and at least 180 watts when sockets are in a base-down position.

One safety hint: three way bulbs are designed to be operated only in the base-down position. GE engineers recommend against buying fixtures or lamps which burn three-way bulbs horizontally or base-up.

When you get the lamp into your home, put it approximately 20 inches to the right or left of the center of the reading material, in line with the reader's shoulder.

IF YOU ALREADY have table lamps or floor lamps which are more than two inches higher than your eye level, the only answer is to move them a bit to the rear of the user and out of the line of sight.

If lamps already on hand are too short, you may be able to raise shades a few inches with a riser generally available at hardware stores. Other possible solutions are to set the lamp on an auxiliary base such as a block of wood which would be compatible with the design of the lamp, or to place it on a higher table.

SUBURBAN LIVING

Fed Up With Abstract, Youth Take To Ballet

by GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—All the young audiences for the arts aren't tuned in to the rock sound.

Witness, for instance, the packed houses conductor Leonard Bernstein draws for his young people's concerts of the classics. Now the young are on a ballet kick too. Back of it all seems to be the revival of a romantic period in all phases of our culture.

There's the return to the romantic in fashion, revival of what some observers call "the civilized look," actually a recall of the quietly elegant clothes of the 1890s and '40s. "Real" movies like "Love Story" are an instant success with the young. A return to religion also is part of the scene.

Carla Fracci, prima ballerina of the La Scala ballet and now appearing with the American Ballet Theater, figures the whole trend results because the new art forms "speak directly to the audience."

"THEY WANT a story," she said.

"The young are fed up with the abstract."

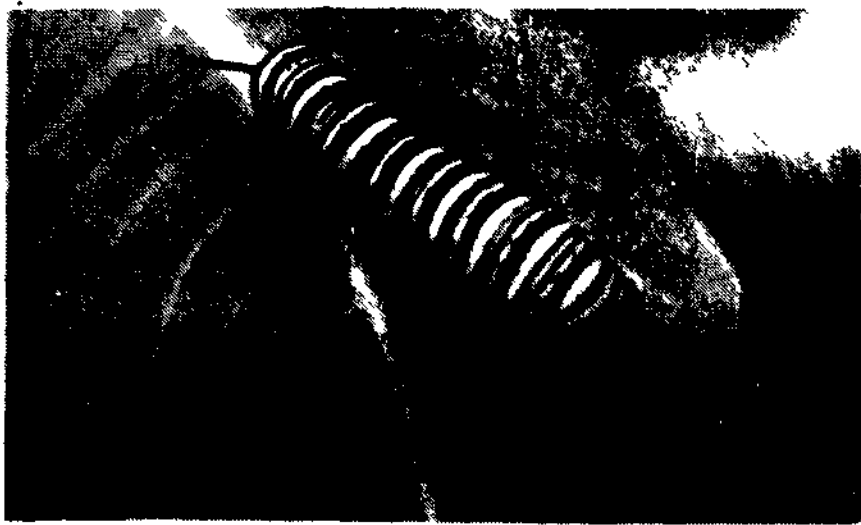

Mrs. Fracci, her husband, Beppe Menegatti, a theatrical director, were talking about the overwhelming numbers of young people, boys and girls, drawn to the ballet these days.

I'd expressed some amazement about the youth of the audience packed into Lincoln Center's New York State Theater one sparkling Sunday afternoon recently to see Miss Fracci and Erik Bruhn dance the classical "Giselle." The role is one of her most famous. But on a day like that in mid-summer, you'd have guessed that all the young would be at the beach.

The young are coming to the ballet theater not only in the United States but all over Europe. Menegatti said. Revival of so many of the ballets gives them a chance "just to enjoy... no mental fatigue," said Menegatti, recalling that "for the last 35 years you'd have to read the program, ask your friends and read the critics the next day to know what had been on the stage."

The Potting Shed

STRIPED INTERLOPER. If no one kills him for nibbling on a leaf, this zebra-striped crawlie will turn into a beautiful butterfly.

Something chewing on the lilacs? What's a woman to do about sick trees and bushes? Which sprays are safe? Are all pesticides dangerous?

Widespread confusion dominates the garden scene today, as more housewives become aware of pesticide pollution.

Most people realize that DDT is taboo, but what of the host of materials available for killing crabgrass, knocking out fungus, and splatting mosquitoes, slugs, plant lice, wasps, and all the other pests that roam the garden?

Given a choice, the average person would just as soon select a safe alternative rather than an environmental bludgeon, if she knew one from the other. Most times she doesn't. And the problem is further complicated by the fact that the majority of people do not understand chemical contents, they don't apply chemicals accurately, and some can't or don't read directions.

PLAYING SAFE means not using organo-phosphate or chlorinated hydrocarbon chemicals at all. Among the ranks of these most-dangerous sprays are DDT, DDD, aldrin, chlordane, dieldrin, endrin, heptachlor, kelthane, lindane, methoxychlor, oxex, tedion, thiodan, toxaphene, parathion, malathion. (Reference: The CDC Manual.)

Safe alternatives, according to the Ecology Action Educational Institute, University of California, include the following insecticides: Dormant oil; Per-Guard; pyrethrum, silica gel; tobacco dust; ryania; rotenone; sabadilla; Lime Doom; dried blood meal; Harris roach tablets; Tanglefoot; Thuricide.

The housewife's approach to nature should not be to beat it into submission. Nature has a way of fighting back. When man kills one set of insects, a second set on which the first set feeds runs rampant. Man invents a spray to annihilate an insect, then the insect develops a resistant strain. Until man learns to live with in his environment, instead of trying to control it, there will always be guerilla warfare between insects and man.

ONE STEP IN THE right ecological direction is to avoid the use of sprays as a preventive measure. (You wouldn't undergo rabies shots unless you had rabies, would you?) Sometimes insect invasions do little harm, although they are unsightly (example: the tiny, red warts of maple leaf gall). Oftentimes, an insect invasion will run its course in a week or two (if the ugly striped caterpillar doesn't live through its leaf-chewing stage, for example, it won't grow into a beautiful Monarch butterfly.)

Commercials Main Target Of Children's TV Reform

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mother and child are in a toy or food store this day. Charming child pulls or pushes mom to a display of a product advertised on a children's television program. Child repeats many of the points about product made in the entertaining commercial. What's mom to do? Or dad — if he's the parent in a tight spot.

"Just say 'no' and don't feel guilty about it," Mrs. Evelyn Sarson said in an interview.

Mrs. Sarson is one of three Newton, Mass., mothers who started a crusade to improve children's television programming nearly four years ago.

The three founded Action for Children's Television (ACT) and recruited parents and professionals nationwide to work on upgrading commercial television programming for children.

ORGANIZATION MEMBERS today include the National Education Association and the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. Affiliated groups operate in San Francisco; Pittsburgh, Pa.; Chicago, New York; Dallas; Providence, R.I.; Washington, D.C.; and Tucson, Ariz. In addition, 3,500 members living in 40 other states work as individuals to improve programming for children.

One of the major irritations cited by Mrs. Sarson is the 16 minutes of commercials per hour of children's programming on network television. This compares to eight to 10 minutes of commercials on prime-time programs aimed at adults or a mixed audience.

Other sources of discontent: Not enough daytime network programming for children.

On Saturday mornings network programming is offered one network against the other. She thinks it should be spaced out.

MRS. SARSON and the other founders of ACT, Mrs. Peggy Charen, and Mrs. Judith Chalfen, think they rocked some boats while in New York recently to participate in a workshop on children's television programming.

The workshop, organized by the American Management Association and sponsored by the ABC television network, resulted in no dirt action. "But I think we left some impressions," Mrs. Sarson said.

Mrs. Sarson, once with the Manchester Guardian, a British newspaper, believes children's programming will change for the better when enough parents nudge the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) with letters demanding reform.

An FCC inquiry into children's programming ended July 2, but it's still not too late to get off a letter, says Mrs. Sarson.

"Mark it Children's TV, FCC, 1919 M. gramming."

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I was glad to see your comment about some of the misleading signs one runs into while traveling. On our vacation just ended, we ran into a few lulu that almost had me ready to explode. But the problem is what can visitors do about these things? We're helpless — James D.

No, not entirely. Some highway engineers do want to be told these things. The point is that whenever you run into signs that confuse or mislead, write immediately to the state highway department. If you get an engineer like the one who wrote us — Richard Malone, his name — you're in luck. He read the column and wanted to know if the offending sign was in his area. He added that he wouldn't promise to make any changes, but wanted to investigate and do the right thing. If all the highway engineers had this attitude, we'd sure get some things done.

TIP TO BRIDES: If the man in your life likes fresh-squeezed orange juice, the job is a cinch if you rinse out the juicer, strainer — or whatever you use — immediately. Allow to dry, the pulp of oranges is the dickens to get off.

Dear Dorothy: A long time ago you mentioned that you had inveigled your husband into replacing the worn webbing on some chairs with some leftover army twill tape. I comed my better half into doing the same thing. Not only did he enjoy the project but he did such a beautiful job, he was ready to tackle anything. At any rate, after some time the webbing started to sag. Following your advice, we soaked the tape and, in drying, it tightened up to what it was originally. — Mrs. Bob B.

The United Methodist Camp Ground is a summer place that draws residents like Barbara Shrout, Phil Jurgenson and Paul Johnson from all over the Midwest.

Five hundred youngsters attend the campgrounds day camp.

Camp Is 'Outdoor Heaven'

"Here was a retreat to peace and wholesome living from a world tottering at its foundations. Here was an opportunity to reaffirm one belief's that Christ's way could be practiced — a living instead of a talking religion."

So wrote Virginia Freeburg in "History of Des Plaines Methodist Camp Ground, 1860-1940."

A history of the camp from 1941 to 1971 if written, would tell of the continuing growth of the United Methodist Camp Ground from a small circle of tents into a woodland community whose old-time week-long religious revival sessions have been transformed into five months of spiritual services.

Mrs. Mark Christy, 83, the first woman elected to the camp's nine-member board of trustees, described the site east of River Road in Des Plaines as "an outdoor heaven."

From May through October

more than 300 worshippers from across the country flock to the white frame cottages which have been built inside the forest preserves along the Des Plaines River.

In addition to the summer-long religious services, the Methodists make use of camp picnic areas, a swimming pool, tennis courts, a snack shop, outdoor grills, a hotel, a rummage shop, horseshoe courts and a banquet dining hall.

Suppose the cards got together after a bridge game to tell their experiences. Most of the talk would be handled by aces and kings but once in a while a spot card would get the floor.

West started out by playing the king, queen and jack of hearts. South ruffed the third heart with the deuce of trumps and East overruffed.

East decided that his partner's failure to play the ace was some sort of a suit preference signal so East returned the deuce of clubs. South won with dummy's ace and tried to get some club discards on dummy's diamonds only to go two down when West ruffed the second lead of the suit.

Now let's give the deuce of spades the floor at the card meeting. "I don't get much of a chance to be the hero of a hand," he would say, "but it is a shame that some mere human being will ruin my opportunity. There I was in full control at trick three and South reached over and played me. If he had just held back and thrown any other card in the hand except the club ace the rubber would have ended triumphantly for him."

So it would have. If the club shift came, dummy's ace would win. But now South would play that deuce of trumps; draw all the trumps and then put the high diamonds to real work.

Lutheran Scouting Group Elects

The Northwest Suburban Lutheran Committee on Scouting elected new officers at its recent General Meeting held at the Trinity Lutheran Church in Des Plaines: Chairman, Mr. W. A. Ziebell, 346 Woodbridge Road, Des Plaines; Vice Chairman, Mr. J. E. Johnson R.R. 3, Box 17, Lake Zurich; Secretary, Mr. W. Lindahl, 431 S. Hart St., Palatine; Treasurer, Mr. P. Lindahl, 1136 Second Avenue, Des Plaines; Chaplaincy Committee Chairman, Rev. Roger Pittelko, Pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Holy Spirit, 666 Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove; PRO DEO Committee Chairman, Mr. R. Brinkworth, 7548 N. Ozark Ave., Chicago; and Protestant Committee Representative, Mr. R. Johnson, 550 Arlington Ave., Des Plaines.

Through the efforts of the Chaplaincy Committee two Chaplains have been recruited for the two summer camps that will be operated by the Northwest Suburban Council, B.S.A.

Mr. Edward Vanderbur, a former Eagle Scout, and a student at the Cincinnati Bible Seminary (Non-Denominational) will serve as full time Chaplain at the Namekagon Scout Reservation near Trego, Wisconsin and Mr. William Trarbach, a former Explorer Scout, and a student at the Concordia Senior College, Fort Wayne, Indiana will serve as the full time Chaplain at Camp Napowan, near Wild Rose, Wisconsin.

It was voted that the Lutheran Committee on Scouting should contribute 800 dollars towards the support of Mr. Trarbach who is to attend the Lutheran Seminary in the fall.

The Lutheran Committee on Scouting also offered to assist the Protestant relations Committee to raise a like sum of 800 dollars toward the support of Mr. Vanderbur who is attending the Cincinnati Bible Seminary at present.

There are 39 Lutheran Churches in the Northwest Suburban Council area, and of these, 21 Lutheran Churches sponsor the Scouting program as part of their Youth Activities Program. Each of the Lutheran Churches have been asked to appoint representatives to the Lutheran Committee on Scouting to carry the PRO DEO ET PATRIA program back to the Scouts in each congregation.

The PRO DEO ET PATRIA program is sponsored by the Lutheran Church to give each Scout a better opportunity to serve his church. Interested Lutheran Scouters are asked to assist the Pastors with the technical and Scouting phases of the program.

This will give the Pastors more time for consultations with the Scouts and to meet the spiritual needs of the Scouts. Interested Lutheran Scouters are asked to assist the Pastors with the technical and Scouting phases of the program.

This will give the Pastors more time for consultations with the Scouts and to meet the spiritual needs of the Scouts. Each Lutheran Pastor in the area will be visited to explain the PRO DEO ET PATRIA program as it has been recently revised, and to be of assistance to promoting more Scouts to enroll in the program.

A Protestant Relations Committee has been operating since the fall of 1969 with Mr. LeRoy Nattress serving as chairman of this committee. Mr. Nattress lives at 811 Newberry Lane in Mount Prospect.

He is meeting with the Protestant Ministers on a regular basis. Anyone interested in the Protestant Relations Committee should contact him at his home.

Policeman Accidentally Wounds Nephew, Age 7

An off-duty Mount Prospect patrolman accidentally shot his seven-year-old nephew Thursday afternoon.

Toby Romine, of Stone Park, Ill., was shot in the right side between the rib and hip bone, Mount Prospect police reported. He was admitted to Northwest Community Hospital where he was listed in good condition.

Police said that about 1:30 p.m. George A. Cangialosi had just finished cleaning the gun in the kitchen of his 1729 W. Magnolia Ln. home when he placed it in the holster on the kitchen table. At that time, Toby and his sister were present.

Police said Cangialosi's niece pointed to the trigger and asked if anything would happen if she touched it.

Cangialosi told his niece that nothing would happen because the gun could not go off, police said. Then, the police report continued, he touched the trigger and the gun went off, with the bullet striking his nephew.

Chief Newell Esmond said Cangialosi has been on the Mount Prospect police force for four months. He said no disciplinary action is being considered at the present time. "We will certainly be looking into the incident some more," Esmond said.

Elks Earn Playoffs With Victory

The Elks clinched the second-half championship of the National League in the Des Plaines Mid-Teen League by handing Sellergren a 6-4 defeat Wednesday at Maine West High School.

The Elks, which have a 7-1 record, will play Kunkel Sunday at 1 p.m. for the National League title. Kunkel won the first half championship with an 8-0 record.

The winner of Sunday's game will play Bantam, the winner of both halves in the American League, Tuesday, beginning a best-of-three playoff. The playoff will continue on Wednesday and, if need be, on Thursday.

The Elks took advantage of six Sellergren errors and rallied behind the pitching of Bill Heyse for the victory.

Two errors, a single by Bill Besenfer, a fielder's choice, a stolen base and a passed ball enabled the Elks to take a 3-0 lead in the first inning.

The Elks made it 4-0 in the top of the fourth as Rich Veith reached an error, advanced on a bunt single by George Kinser and scored on a wild pitch.

Sellergren closed the gap to 4-2 in the bottom of the fourth as Roger Blumer reached safely on an error, Rich Wettendorf doubled and Dave Arnsward singled.

The Elks made it 6-2 in the top of the fifth with a double by Heyse, a sacrifice bunt by Rick Wolgram, a wild pitch, a single by Ken Schroeder, a single by Besensenhofer and an error.

Sellergren tallied twice in the bottom of the fifth as Bruce Freeman singled, Fred Schmidt singled and Jay Liggett reached safely on an error.

Roselle Still Undefeated

Action in the Rand Park Adult 12" Softball League this week will close out the regular season. A double elimination tournament will begin Thursday Aug. 5th. In games played this past week, two games were played on Thursday July 22nd.

In the first game, Johnson's Sporting Goods defeated Central Telephone 9-2. Winning pitcher Lou Bissa checked Central on six hits while fanning eight. Sutula and Larry Hall each homered for Johnson's and Dave Kern led Central with three hits and two RBIs.

In the second game, Joe Lee pitched Des Plaines Chrysler Plymouth to a 10-2 win over Dor-o-matic. Jim Tarter of Dor-o-matic led all hitters with three hits.

On Sunday, Woody Croom did his thing, except this time he reached his zenith. Pitching for Roselle Builders, Woody fired a perfect game against the second place team in the league, Guanaco's. The final score was 3-0. He fanned 13 and of course allowed no baserunners.

His pitching rival, Hank Duffy, hurled well for Guanaco's, but two unearned runs in the first inning put him behind behind to stay. Fred Karp and Bill Schlenning each had two hits for the Builders, who, with this win, clinched the championship.

In the second game, Johnson's Sporting Goods remained alive for a shot for second place in handing a 4-2 defeat to Des Plaines Chrysler Plymouth. Johnson's scored all four runs in the first three innings and then Joe Lee came in for the Roadrunners and pitched hitless ball the rest of the way.

In the final game Dor-o-matic scored six runs in the second inning and five in the fifth en route to a 12-3 defeat over Central Telephone. Tony Sherrard allowed four hits in getting the win. Jim Tarter drove in four runs with two hits for Dor-o-matic.

First Place Tie In Adult Loop

Play in the Rand Park Adult 16" Softball League was limited this past week because of the weekend rains. However, three games were played on Tuesday. In the evening opener Nick's LaCantina took a 4-0 lead after one inning and then held off a determined bid by Villa's Lounge and won the game, 8-7.

Villa's trailed by five runs in the top of the seventh when they exploded for 4 runs and then saw their hopes dashed when Wally Antoszek made the game ending out trying to stretch a single to a double. Chuck Chamberlain's hitting streak was stopped at 12 consecutive hits during the game.

In the second game, E. J. Doyle Pro Shop showed signs of coming back after a slow start this season by dumping Niedert Motor Service, 10-3. Mike Albrecht led the attack with four-for-four and two RBIs. Niedert's, currently in a mild slump, could gather only five hits off Tim Mordue.

Badger Mills rout West Side Inn, 14-5. After West Side Inn took an early 1-0 lead in the top of the second, Badger Mills came back in the bottom of the inning to score six runs and were never headed.

On Friday, all games were rained out. These will be played at a later date. On Saturday, Des Plaines Bowl scored all their runs in the first three innings and then held off E. J. Doyle's rally to win, 8-4. Mike Albrecht and Kevin Weller hit back-to-back home runs in the sixth inning to lead the losers. Mike Ahern drove in two for Des Plaines Bowl.

Illini Frosh Sets Records

Susan Sea, a 20-year-old freshman at the University of Illinois, shattered the world records for both men and women in the Class IV 75-meter medley in the swimming competition of the Pan American Wheelchair Games Wednesday.

Miss Sea, who hails from Clarendon, Ill., covered the three legs-backstroke, breaststroke and freestyle in 1:15.8. That easily bettered the old standard of 1:27.4 set by Mary Gobbs of England two years ago.

It also broke the men's world mark, 1:18.5, which Octavius Morgan of Jamaica, the host country, set 20 minutes earlier.

No More Imitating

Willie Davis of the Los Angeles Dodgers is presently having his best season in 12 years of professional baseball. He attributes his success this year to a return of his natural style of standing in the batter's box. After imitating Stan Musial and Matty Alou with indifferent success in previous seasons, he has reverted to his own stance this year.

"I never really hit until I became Willie Davis," he said.

Funds Granted For Netters

Chicago Tennis Patrons, Inc. today announced it is accepting applications from financially needy high school senior and college tennis players for a number of college scholarships made possible by the Sheehan Memorial Scholarship Fund.

In making the announcement, Alfred S. Alschuler, Jr., president of the Chicago Tennis Patrons, noted Sheehan Memorial Scholarships have been awarded to a number of tennis players in each of the past few years. The only requirements for eligibility are financial need, scholastic eligibility to enter or remain in college and a continuing interest in the game of tennis. Ability is not a prerequisite.

The Sheehan Memorial Scholarship Fund was created in memory of Tom and Mike Sheehan, two top young tennis prospects from Chicago who were killed in a boating accident several years ago. Application forms for these scholarships may be obtained from the Tennis Patrons office, 180 North Franklin, Chicago, Illinois 60606.

Preminger To Produce TV Movie

by RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Notes to watch television by:

The Headliners: Otto Preminger is the latest movie figure to take a crack at television in a major way . . . He will produce, direct and star in a two-hour motion picture made expressly for ABC-TV. "Open Question," a courtroom drama dealing with a controversial spy trial . . . Furthermore, says ABC-TV, Preminger has signed Louis Nizer, the prominent trial attorney and author to write the screenplay, which the network describes as "his first such venture for the film medium."

The youngest college president in the nation, Leon Botstein, 23, head of Franciscan College, N.H., reports on his first year in that job on NBC's "Today" next Tuesday . . .

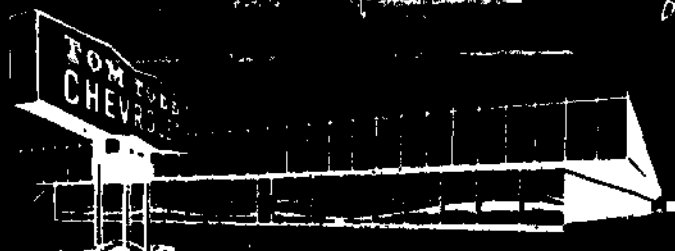

Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen, who once had a popular television series, is a guest on the same network's "Comment" program this Sunday . . . "If You Turn On," an award-winning documentary seen in Los Angeles and concerning narcotics abuse, will be presented for an hour on CBS-TV Aug. 17.

The Handwriting Is On The Wall For Everyone To See

Our Business Philosophy

A strong automobile dealership cannot be built overnight.
Nor can it be built on the basis of deals or gimmicks or price.
A customer may come in once because the dealership was recommended or is near by.
But, he has to be pleased with the way he is treated or he does not come back.
